Lie Seeking First to End Berlin Tangle Over Money

Solution of Currency Issue Held First Step Toward Resolving Dispute Over City

By Walter Kerr

Paris, Nov. 9 (NYHT).—The office of Trygve Lie, United Nations Secretary General, said today that he was not trying to negotiate a settlement of the Berlin dispute but that he was attempting to find a solution of the city's currency tangle as a first step toward such a settlement.

This technical study, begun about 10 days ago, is being carried on by experts directed by Abraham H. Feller, director of the organization's legal department and Lie's top legal adviser.

The hope is that a currency formula, acceptable both to the Soviet Union and the Western powers, may be found without entering into negotiations which the United States, Britain and France oppose as long as the Soviet government maintains its land blockade.

Such a formula presumably would call for the Soviet-sponsored mark as the city's sole currency, thus satisfying a Russian demand, and effective four-power control of this currency, as the three Western governments insist. This was the substance of the agreed Allied directive of August 30, but the four military governors in Berlin were unable to spell out its implementation.

Feller said his investigation to date had been carried on informally and that it had "moved along without special obstacles."

In the end he hopes to find a solution which Lie could place before the Americans, British, French and Russians. If the four governments found it satisfactory, it would not be difficult to fix a date for its implementation with the understanding that all restrictions on travel, transport and communications would be raised on the same day.

Bramuglia to See Other Neutrals Today

London, Nov. 9 (AP).—Argentine Foreign Minister Juan Atilio Bramuglia said tonight he will see the other five neutrals of the U. N. Security Council in Paris Wesdnesday to "explore new possibilities" of settling the Berlin question.

Just before leaving London at the end of a five-day official visit, Bramuglia said he "had some ideas—but only in my mind" regarding the problem.

Wave of Selling Slashes Prices On Stock Market

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Stock prices fell sharply today in a market shaken by a new postelection selling wave.

Losses ranged from $1 to $5 a share on the leading issues, with 180 stocks touching new low points for this year.

Selling was ascribed to pessimism aroused by statements describing future legislation planned by the newly elected Congress which would tend to limit business profits.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped $2 to $63.90, the lowest point since March 29 and only $3.60 from the low point of the year reached February 10.

The volume of trading was 2,260,000 shares, double yesterday's 1,130,000 when the market withstood the general downward movement that started the day after the election of President Truman.

Gen. Eisenhower's Own Story: Given Command of Theater After Outlining Job's Duties

IV

Very shortly after General Marshall returned from the April conference in London he called me to his office. He said that during his visit he had found little chance to look over American activity but had become concerned because American officers on duty in London were not familiar with the broader problems and objectives of the War Department.

Marshall directed me to visit London to see what I could do about correcting this situation and to bring back recommendations involving future organization and development of our European forces.

On June 8, I submitted to the Chief of Staff a draft of a "Directive for the Commanding General, European Theater of Operations," which provided for unified command of all American forces allocated to the European area. I remarked to General Marshall that this was one paper he should read in detail before it went out because it was likely to be an important document in the further waging of the war. His reply still lives in my memory: "I certainly do want to read it. You may be the man who executes it. If that's the case, when can you leave?" Three days later General Marshall told me definitely that I would command the European theater.

Naturally I have often wondered what led to that particular and apparently sudden decision. General Marshall has never volunteered a word, but of course I did realize that it was sudden only to me; he had thought the matter over carefully.

The transfer from staff to command duty would have been welcomed by any soldier; but the weight of responsibility involved was so great as to obliterate any thought of personal elation and so critical as to compel complete absorption in the job at hand. In any event, the unexpected orders started me on a hurried round of preparation, most of which involved the transfer of War Department duties to my successor, General Handy.

A call on President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, a guest at the White House, was no more than an informal chat. It had no military significance, but it was the first time I ever had a personal talk with either of these two men Tobruk, in the African desert, had just fallen to the Germans and the whole Allied world was thrown into gloom. These two leaders, however, showed no signs of pessimism. It was gratifying to note that they were thinking of attack and victory, not of defense and defeat.

General Clark and I, with a few assistants, left Washington in late June, 1942. This time the parting from my family seemed particularly difficult although it was, in a sense, a mere repetition of previous instances covering many years. Our son came down from West Point; he, my wife, and I had two days together, and then I left.

In late June, 1942, the press of the United States and Great Britain was echoing the Russian cry for a "second front." To the professional soldier this was disturbing, not because of any quarrel with the soundness of the idea but because the impatience of the public clearly demonstrated a complete lack of appreciation of the problems involved; particularly of the time that must elapse before any such operation could be launched.

My first job was to collect and organize a working team. General Marshall approved my request for Brig. Gen. Water B. Smith as my

Atlantic Storm Curves Toward Carolina Coast

Miami, Fla., Nov. 9 (AP).—An unusual November hurricane veered up the Atlantic toward the North Carolina coast tonight.

The surprise storm, which reached hurricane force early today, was centered at 10 p. m. (EST) about 380 miles east of Daytona Beach, Fla., moving northwestward at 18 miles an hour.

The Weather Bureau said it probably would continue a slow curve to the northward during the next 18 to 24 hours and would miss the Florida and Georgia coasts entirely. Strongest winds were 75 miles an hour.

Northeast storm warnings were ordered hoisted along the North Carolina coast south of Cape Hatteras to Wilmington and Southport.

The small hurricane should pass close to the North Carolina coast late Wednesday, the Weather Bureau said.

39-Year Marriage Dissolved

Wife's Refusal to Cook Ruled No Legal Cause to Leave Her

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

A wife's refusal to cook her husband's meals is not legal justification for him to leave home, Judge Alexander Holtzoff ruled yesterday in dissolving a marriage that lasted 39 years.

The ruling was made when Mrs. Dora M. Hartley, 62, of 1320 Quincy st. nw. obtained an absolute divorce from Jerome B. Hartley, 64, of 3815 Kansas ave. nw.

According to the District Court testimony, the Hartleys married in 1909 and were apparently happy together until 1934 when, after an argument, Hartley refused to talk to his wife. His silence lasted three years, it was said, with all messages between the parents delivered through their two grown children.

Hartley said that in 1937 his wife refused to cook any more meals for him so he left her. He claimed her action gave him grounds for a divorce.

She admitted failing to cook for him for the last ten days they were together. But, she testified, she did so because the money he gave her for household expenses ran out and she was waiting for more before she would cook.

Mrs. Hartley added with some chagrin that when she gave a party for their silver wedding anniversary in 1934, her spouse came in late, refused to talk to her and then walked out.

Judge Holtzoff reminded the elderly couple that marriage was a "better or worse proposition," but that justice was on the side

D. C. to Ask Rent Control Another Year

Cogswell Will Seek Safeguards Where Cooperatives Take Over Properties

U. S. Extension Sought

RENT CONTROL extension for at least a year, plugging "loopholes," to be asked nationally. Page 2.

Tighter Law Is Aim

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Congress will be asked to extend District rent controls through March 31, 1950, and to increase local protection of tenants, it was learned last night.

District Rent Control Administrator Robert F. Cogswell disclosed that he has already made an informal recommendation to the Commissioners for extension and tightening of the local rent controls.

Cogswell conferred with Commissioner Guy Mason earlier in the day, in the first move toward a later formal recommendation to Congress for continuing and strengthening the local rent law. The District Rent Act is a separate law from the National Rent Control Act, but they both end March 31, 1949, and this year were made to conform with each other on several points.

Backed Up Cogswell

In the past the District Commissioners have backed up Cogswell in his recommendations for year-to-year extensions of District rent control.

Cogswell said that at present he has in mind two changes in the District Rent Act to propose:

1. "I shall recommend to the Commissioners that some sort of safeguards be thrown around tenants in buildings being turned into cooperatives, so that the tenants will not suddenly be faced with the alternative of buying their apartments or being evicted," Cogswell said.

Thirty-three tenants of the Broadmoor Apartment have asked the District Court to permit them to keep their apartments there without joining the recently formed cooperative set up to buy the building and sell individual apartments in it. The court action is still pending.

No Details Yet

Cogswell said he had not worked out the legislative details of the proposal, but that the safeguards should probably be like those now provided in the national rent control law.

2. "I have in mind asking for the repeal of the section in this year's District rent control extension law which took the controls off certain converted housing," Cogswell said.

He pointed out that the conversion housing that was decontrolled in the District this year was limited to dwelling accommodations placed on the market after March 31, 1948, with the additional understanding that the decontrol feature would apply only to accommodations that added to the supply of housing. The idea was to increase the local housing supply, without removing rent controls for minor alterations in dwelling units already in use for housing.

King George School Work Is Restored

Board Replaces 3 of 5 Subjects It Dropped in Equalization Case

Bowling Green, Va., Nov. 9. (AP)—The King George County School Board today restored to the curriculum of its white high school three of five subjects it dropped last week as a school equalization measure.

The board conferred here with Circuit Judge Leon M. Bazile, who last week told the board the course-dropping measure was a technical way of complying with a Federal Court order to equalize facilities between Negro and white schools in the county.

The board restored the courses after Judge Bazile said the move was permissible since there were no candidates for the subjects in the Negro high school.

Conference to Be Asked

The subjects restored were physics, second-year algebra and geometry. Still excluded from the curriculum are chemistry and biology.

Commonwealth's Attorney Horace T. Morrison said after the meeting he would try tomorrow to schedule before Federal Judge Sterling Hutcheson a conference with attorneys for the plaintiffs in the school equalization case.

He said, "If I can't get a conference which will solve the difficulties relating to chemistry and biology, I shall probably go to the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals for a writ of mandamus" for restoration of the missing courses.

Morrison said he desired to confer with attorneys for the Negro pupils in the case because of the passage Saturday of a $150,000 bond issue in the county for the construction of a new Negro high school. Morrison said the conference was needed also in view of the answer he had filed to the Federal Court petition.

Contempt of Order Claimed

The petition of the plantiffs asks the King George School Board to be held in contempt of the Federal Court order to equalize school facilities. Morrison's answer asked that the petition either be dismissed or that a hearing be set in which the plantiffs should be required "to prove their every allegation" in the petition.

The school board said restoration of the three courses satisfied the scholastic needs of all but three students in the King George High School (white). Three of the students who are seniors, however, need the missing subjects for graduation this year.

Morrison today asked Judge Bazile if he were at the school board meeting as adviser to the board. Judge Bazile answered he was there in his capacity as a Circuit Court judge.

$935,000 Top Bid Rejected As Gas Co. Site Sale Fails

A top bid of $935,000 was rejected yesterday for Washington Gas Light Co.'s 6½-acre tract at Virginia ave. and Rock Creek Parkway.

With no other bidders for any part of the six-block, 287,752-square-foot tract, the widely advertised auction sale at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday of one of downtown Washington's largest undeveloped plots was a washout.

Only two persons offered bids among the more than 200 filling the hotel's East Room. They were Roy S. Thurman, builder and real estate operator, at 631 E st. nw., and Stanford Abel, treasurer, of Ring Engineering Co., Ring Building.

Thurman was a backer some years ago of proposed Crystal City development at Connecticut and Florida aves. nw., a housing project that failed to materialize. He opened the bidding at $750,000 and was high bidder at $935,000 when Abel stopped at $925,000.

Marcy L. Sperry, president of the gas light company, immediately advised the auctioneer, Ralph Weschler, that the figure was unacceptable. The company asked 3 million dollars for the site some months ago.

Weschler, working with the New York auctioneer firm of Joseph P. Day, Inc., then offered for individual sale, each of the six blocks comprising the site. Not one bid was made, and the sale was over.

Stephen A. McDonald, vice president of the Day company, said he would remain here for a week or so, in efforts to close a sale of all or any part of the property "to anyone who cares to make a satisfactory offer." Sperry said the gas light company has no plans for the site other than to await an offer acceptable to its directors.

Thurman said he had planned, if his bid had been accepted, to build an apartment project and shopping center. Abel said he had "nothing special" planned in the event he had acquired the site.

Weschler, of Adam A. Weschler and Sons, auctioneers, 905 E st. nw., said that in 57 years in business here his firm had found Washington peculiarly cool to auctions of big real estate holdings. Big realty buyers here, he said,

Seniority Rule May Get Test

South and East Due to Divide Nearly All Top Posts in House

(Maps on Page 3 Show Distribution of House and Senate Key Chairmanships by States)

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The South and the East will divide between them most of the House chairmanships in the Eighty-first Congress, leaving the Far Western two-thirds of the United States out in the cold.

At least that is the bleak outlook under the unwritten seniority rule. Legislators will automatically climb to the top of House committees by one test only—length of service.

If the rule is literally followed in the new House, only one State west of the Mississippi—the President's own State of Missouri—will rate a chairmanship. The others that helped tilt the election balance in favor of Truman won't even get a minor committee chair.

So great is the geographic disparity in the projected House leadership that the time-worn rule of seniority, which weathered even the LaFollette-Monroney reorganization of Congress, itself could face a crisis test.

With the newly won West sure to claim a proportionate share in the fruits of the election upset, it is sure to figure high in the legislative talks going forward this week at Key West.

The sectional disparity in the Eighty-first Congress picture isn't limited to the House. In the Senate, under the same longevity rule, the South, border territory and some of the Far Western States would be fairly well represented. But the East, the Midwest and the Pacific northwest would be practically blanked.

Under House procedure, chairmanship and committee assignments are made by a Democratic Committee on Committees, which is invariably comprised of Democratic members of the House Ways and Means Committee. Members of this group are elected by the House Democratic caucus. Before the group can function one vacancy must be filled. Then five new Democratic members will be elected to assure the party a 15-to-10 Ways and Means majority.

Fifteen Democratic Ways and Means committeemen, sitting as a committee on committees, would then make all majority committee assignments, from chairman down. Under the old rule, they had no leeway in naming a chairman. They simply move up the top-ranking Democrat. In making other committee assignments, they have all the scope in the world. Here they freely weigh geographic representation, special talents, and even members' preferences. Party leaders are consulted, and they often influence the decisions.

In the Senate, the Democratic Steering Committee sits as a com-

Suspect Held In Glen Burnie Car Murders

'Looks Good,' Say Police of Arrest On Gun Evidence

Ferndale, Md., Nov. 9 (AP).—Anne Arundel County police announced today the arrest of a "definite suspect" in the killings of a young Glen Burnie, Md., pair almost two months ago.

The man was said to have been in possession of a pistol which fired bullets of the same caliber as those which killed Miss Mary Kline, 18, and her escort, John H. Mahlan, 25-year-old war veteran.

Police said the man is about 38 years old and lives in Marley, a short distance from the spot where Mahlan's bloodstained car was found September 18.

Arrest 'Looks Good'

Auhorities, asked for comment on the arrest, said:

"It looks good."

The man was questioned three weeks ago, then released. He was taken into custody again last night, police said, after they learned he had a gun.

Late today, Chief John H. Souers, of the county police force, said the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington reported the gun was of the caliber which figured in the slaying of the young pair.

Police said the bullets are of a caliber not unusual in foreign weapons, but rare in American-made firearms.

Outsized Weapon Sought

[Investigators have concentrated on finding an outsized weapon, since the slugs which killed Mahlan and Miss Kline are believed to have been somewhere between .32 and .38 caliber.

[At least one of five empty cartridges found in the vicinity of the abandoned automobile and the site where the bodies were discovered was of such an odd size.

[Fragments of three slugs, believed to be .38 caliber, were found in the car and in both bodies. Results of tests to determine their exact size never were disclosed.

[Last September 28, police broadcast a lookout to neighboring States for a .38 caliber weapon. They said then that evidence showed it was not a .32 caliber pistol which killed the couple.]

Forrestal Acts For Unity at Academy Level

Orders Commissioning Some of '49 Annapolis Class in Air Force

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Defense Secretary James Forrestal yesterday attacked the problem of interservice bickering at the ground floor—issuing a three-point unification order affecting West Point and Annapolis.

His directive—hailed as a major, first step toward a long-range solution of the armed forces unity troubles—provides:

(1) Commissioning some members of the 1949 Naval Academy class in the Air Force.

(2) Assignment of Air Force officers to the faculty of the Annapolis school.

(3) An interservice study of the broad problem of procurement of officers for the armed forces, to determine whether establishment of an Air Force Academy or some "other feasible solution" is the best answer to the problem.

Many critics of the armed forces squabbling have put a good share of the blame on rivalry bred at West Point and Annapolis. Drawing of some of the Air Force's future officers from the Naval Academy and the assignment of USAF officer instructors there is expected to promote better relations.

Forrestal asked the Secretaries of Army, Navy and Air Force to comment on the makeup of a board to study the entire service academy situation. Its scope would seem to be unlimited under the directive made public yesterday.

The latter provides for the appointment of up to 7 per cent of the 1949 Annapolis class as second lieutenants in the Air Force—50-odd midshipmen. Assignment would be solely from among volunteers.

As in the past, 40 per cent of the West Point class may go into the Air Force.

There are at present 785 members in the June graduating class at Annapolis and 576 at the Military Academy.

It is understood the Air Force wanted a larger proportion of the Naval Academy class than the Navy allowed them. Forrestal's directive declared that the present percentages are not to be taken as a precedent.

Overpopulation Problem

War Foreseen Unless World Checks Rise in Birth Rate

Minneapolis, Nov. 8 (AP). — A quick damper on the world's birth rate is necessary if serious international conflict is to be avoided, Warren S. Thompson said tonight.

Thompson explained "there are too many people, and their competition for enough food, enough furniture and enough machinery means a constant threat to peace.

"We should be sending birth control kits along with the economic aid we're shipping abroad," Thompson told the week-long symposium on population trends being held at the University of Minnesota. Thompson is director of the Scripps Foundation for Research in Population Problems at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio.

He cited southern and eastern Europe, Japan and part of South America as areas of rapid population growth.

"There are increasingly more and more people to share those countries' resources," Thompson said. "That kind of society makes it easy for a little group—like Japan's leaders before World War II—to whip up national sentiment for taking by force the things they say their nations need."

South and east Asia, making up 60 per cent of world population, have high birth rates held in balance by comparable death rates, Thompson said. As industrialization raises living standards, the death rates will decrease and a spurt in population can be expected.

Prof. Philip M. Hauser of the University of Chicago, said in a symposium report yesterday that women now outnumber men in the United States and stand to strengthen their ranks in coming decades.

He said women now hold a numerical lead of 100 to 99. In 1900 it was 106 men to 100 women.

Told How To Testify, Policeman Informs ABC

Warned to Follow Line Taken by Grill's Accuser, Private Manthos Says

A policeman yesterday testified he had been warned of Police Trial Board action if his testimony before the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board didn't follow the line of previous testimony by a fellow policeman.

Pvt. Frank N. Manthos, the First Precinct's one-man vice squad, told the ABC board the other policeman, Pvt. Samuel E. Wallace, assigned to the Police Vice Squad, had given him a "friendly warning" to "watch your testimony—you might get hurt."

Then Manthos branded as "all false, untrue" 57 charges of violations brought by Wallace against Mitchell's Grill, 235 G st. nw.

"I'm not afraid if I go to the trial board, as I've been told I will," Manthos declared. "I'm right, and if I have to suffer for it, I will."

Saw Nothing Charged

Manthos testified he had been in the cafe every night, with the exception of one, from September 15 to 23, 1948, the period in which Wallace based the charges. He said he had seen Wallace there "every night," but had seen nothing of what the other officer had charged.

The charges include 17 counts of sale to intoxicated persons; 20 counts of use of premises for unlawful purposes, such as permitting intoxicated persons to remain; seven counts of use of the premises for disorderly purposes, such as permitting use of profane and obscene language.

Also, nine counts of permitting use of the premises for unlawful purposes, including solicitation of prostitution, and many others.

The restaurant is operated by Henry G. David, holder of a retail Class C license for sale of all beverages. He is assisted by a brother, Fred. Another brother, Mitchell David, is a policeman attached to the Tenth Precinct.

Cites Conviction Record

Plainsclothesman Manthos, who said in eight months on the force he had gained about 150 vice convictions against losing two, heatedly declared the proprietors of the restaurant "have done a wonderful job."

Manthos rose in his chair, placed his hands on the desk, and declared, "I know it isn't ethical to testify against a police officer." Then he added, "I can't call that officer a liar, but he knows in his heart some of the things are wrong."

"People are people," he added. "G st. is not Connecticut ave."

Manthos testified that yesterday morning Wallace had said to him, "Frank, watch yourself—you might get hurt."

"Straight or Not at All"

"Testimony against an officer is a bad thing, and I know it. If anything comes of this I can't help it. I'm going to tell it straight or not at all," he concluded.

Earlier, a total of 19 police officers, all of the First Precinct but one, testified generally that the cafe had always been well run.

The hearing will be resumed at 2 p. m. today, when Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert D. Wise will cross-examine Manthos.

Counsel for Mitchell's Grill, F. Joseph Donoghue and Thomas M. David, indicated Policeman Wallace also would be returned to the stand.

Tax Collector Fired for Stand On Segregation

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 9 (U.P.).—Mortimer Jordan said today he had been fired as collector of internal revenue in Alabama because he refused to obey a Treasury order to abolish segregation in his office.

Jordan made public a letter from Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder, informing him of his dismissal.

Jordan, appointed less than a year ago, answered President Truman's executive order 9980, which demanded elimination of segregation. Jordan in the communication refused to carry out the order.

The letter from Secretary Snyder, dated yesterday, indicated that he took the refusal as Jordan's resignation, which he said he "accepts."

Taunt by Chicago Rent Chief Started Woods on Road to Be Housing Expediter

Tighe E. Woods became Federal Housing Expediter all because of a challenge hurled into his Irish face six years ago.

TIGHE E. WOODS

It happened like this:

When national rent controls descended on Chicago in 1942, a group of real estate men got together and named a committee of one to keep a close watch on OPA's rent division and protect the landlords' interests.

Big, beefy Tighe (pronounced tie)—the committee of one—not only kept an eagle-eye watch on the OPA rent control office, but he beefed out loud every time things got fouled up. There came a day when the Chicago rent chief's cup of woe overflowed, and turning to his principal tormentor snarled:

"If you know so much about rent controls, why don't you come to work for us and show us how to do it?"

It's never been recorded whether the dare was an outburst of vexation or the real McCoy. It is a fact that Tighe accepted the challenge, cut his ties with the real estate business, and went to work for Uncle Sam.

Fought Against Japs

Woods spent the next two years sitting on the rent lid as an OPA examiner. In '44 he temporarily left Chicago to help the Navy in forcibly removing armed the belligerent Jap squatters from certain real estate in the Pacific. That assignment took two years.

In 1946 Tighe returned to the Chicago rent office. Twenty-two months later, in December, 1947, through a series of lightning-like promotions, Tighe found himself at 37 running the Office of the Housing Expediter with its 14 million rents, 50,000 veterans' complaints, and a couple of thousand miscellaneous headaches.

Since becoming the Nation's rent boss, Woods has been preaching and trying to practice a simple policy: "We run this thing right down the middle." As a result he has been attacked by the real estate interests for favoring the tenants; and he has been attacked by the tenants for favoring the real estate interests.

A lesser man might be rent asunder by all the rows over rents, but Tighe has 6 feet and 200 pounds of knock-absorber, and best of all, he is endowed with a good-natured disposition which rarely allows his latent Irish dander to get out of hand.

Bluntness a Characteristic

But the Housing Expediter also has a bluntness and frankness of speech which just naturally stick his chin out when he has something to say. Such as yesterday, when he came out for both extension and tightening of rent controls. That's sure to stir up brickbats from some quarters.

The baby-doll blue eyes of Tighe Edward Woods first caught glimpse of day in Chicago in 1910. Tighe took up journalism at Notre Dame because his father, Clifton F. Woods, had been a newspaperman. He got out of Notre Dame in 1933 in time to discover that the family's investments in mortgages had been defaulted into real estate. Whereupon, he went to Northwestern U. for a year, took a few courses, and went into the real estate business for himself.

Meanwhile, the nicest thing that happened to him occurred in his senior year at Notre Dame, where he met Lucy Beasly, then attending St. Mary's of Notre Dame just across the road. They were married in 1935. They've three children, Bryan, 12, Margaret, 9, and Hope, 7. Dad likes to go ice skating with the gang whenever he gets the chance.

No Personal Ceiling Problem

The Woodses live in a stucco house at 3705 Huntington st. They own the house, have no rent ceiling problem. (Anyway, Washington rents don't come under the jurisdiction of the Federal Housing Expediter, but under an independent District Rent Administrator.)

Tighe had a trying period of some five months when the Senate Banking and Currency Committee tied up his nomination as Housing Expediter because of objections to the appointment by the CIO. No sooner was the nomination approved, than the anti-rent-control forces were breathing heavy on his neck.

But if the hefty housing chief was ever worried, his round smiling face never showed it. He'd show up in the agency cafeteria just as usual, getting into chow line like the clerks and the others, with a pleasant word or two for all.

Put Curb on FTC Authority, Senate Investigators Urged

By The Associated Press

A small businessmen's representative urged yesterday that Congress curb the authority of the Federal Trade Commission.

DeWitt Emery, Chicago, president of the National Small Businessmen's Association, told a Senate Commerce subcommittee that the commission has moved "in a hundred different ways on a thousand different fronts to destroy freedom of enterprise."

He testified as the subcommittee, headed by Senator Capehart (R., Ind.), opened 13 days of hearings into the impact of the Supreme Court basing point decision in the so-called cement case.

While there is disagreement as to the exact effect of the ruling, many businessmen have contended that it means the abandonment of the basing point system of pricing.

Under that system, a company quotes identical prices for its products in all parts of the country, regardless of the freight haul involved.

The trade commission argued in its case against the American Cement Institute that the system discriminated against consumers located near producers, and that the prices fixed were artificial. The commission's jurisdiction was upheld by the Supreme Court.

"If the basing point method of pricing has been abused by one industry or another, has been used as a means of setting up conspiracies in restraint of trade, those things should be corrected," Emery said.

"But it isn't necessary to kill or otherwise destroy the whole pricing system in order to correct these abuses."

John M. Hancock, New York businessman and associate of Bernard M. Baruch, told the Senators that businessmen are concerned because lawyers "cannot say with any degree of certainty just what the rules of the game are—or what they may be next week.

"Most disconcerting is the constantly repeated notion that what is to be lawful or unlawful is to be determined not by reasonably clear congressional enactment but by theories about an economic market which from time to time occur in the minds of administrative officials," Hancock said.

"This is not a healthy situation for American business. Administrative improvisation is not good government."

Another witness, President William Schoenberg of the AFL United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers, said the effect of the decision may be to create scores of ghost towns where small cement plants are now located.

"Should we knowingly permit the Federal Trade Commission to change and eliminate customary 'delivered price' selling practices, so widely prevalent throughout industrial America, we are virtually inviting chaotic conditions within our economic system," he said.

U. S. to Ask Rent Power Extension

By Sterling F. Green
Associated Press Staff Writer

Plans to ask Congress for some wartime rent powers extended "at least one year" beyond next March 31 were reported yesterday by a spokesman for Housing Expediter Tighe Woods.

He said Woods will seek authority to sue landlords for triple damages in behalf of tenants in cases of overcharge. Criminal penalties—a jail term or fine, or both—also will be sought, the spokesman said.

As a still further tightening, it was stated, the armed forces probably will request that Woods be empowered to restore rent ceilings in areas of revived defense activity, in cases where control has been lifted.

The Office of Housing Expediter has found it possible to remove ceilings from all or part of only 17 of the 600 areas under control when the present law took effect last April 1, the spokesman said. This is in spite of the fact, he added, that decontrol studies have been undertaken in all areas, embracing more than 13 million families, and 250 of the studies have been acted upon—mostly with a decision to continue the ceilings.

'Demand Not Met'

"In the great majority of cases we have been unable to decontrol because the demand for housing has not been met," the official said.

Under existing law, Woods lacks authority to restore controls in an area once the ceiling has been abolished. The military establishment is expected to join Woods in a request for recontrol powers, the spokesman said, in view of plans to reopen some defense plants and to reactivate certain posts and stations of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

The construction of rental building has failed to keep pace with unexpected postwar population growth in many areas, the OHE official reported.

This is particularly true of the West Coast, he added. However, some Eastern cities, such as Erie, Pa., have undergone a virtual doubling of population and employment in their metropolitan areas since the beginning of the war.

College towns are another source of concern to housing authorities, he added, because of record enrollments and the high percentage of former GIs who are bringing wives and children to the campuses.

Was Part of OPA Act

The treble-damage provision was part of the OPA price ceiling act. Under today's law, a tenant may obtain three times the overcharge only if he himself sues in Federal District Court. If OHE sues in his behalf, it can recover the exact amount of the overcharge.

"We have found that few tenants wish to go into Federal court because they are afraid of eviction," the spokesman said.

"We will propose that Congress empower OHE to seek treble damages in the tenant's behalf, and protect the tenant from retaliation by restoring Federal control over evictions."

OHE cannot now act in an eviction case until the tenant has been ousted.

The spokesman reported that Woods is satisfied with the working of the present decontrol machinery. Local rent advisory boards operate in each area to recommend whether the community should be kept under ceilings or freed from control. Woods has authority, after conducting his own investigation, to turn down a decontrol request.

Decontrol recommendations have been filed in the minority of cases, OHE has reported. The National Association of Real Estate Boards has interpreted this differently from Woods, however. The association's weekly news letter has contended that what it calls the tendency of OHE to turn down decontrol proposals has "intimidated" the boards and discouraged decontrol proposals.

World Survey

U. N. Reports Big Jump in Grain Crops

Bumper crops, compared with 1947, are being harvested all over the world, the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization reported yesterday.

The four chief grain crops of Europe—wheat, rye, barley and oats—are estimated at 83.4 million tons, as against 63 million last year, the report stated.

The gain totaled 32 per cent. Breadgrains, wheat and rye, will be 51 million metric tons—just short of two billion bushels. This is 44 per cent greater than last year's harvest of 35.5 million tons, or 1.3 billion bushels.

The November crop report for the United States will be made public today. But the October estimate was for about 1.3 billion bushels of wheat and rye.

The European potato crop, FAO estimates, will show an increase of 20 per cent above last year. The total is placed at 125 million metric tons. Last year's harvest was 104 million.

"The increase in the potato crop will permit increased human consumption as well as allowing additional quantities for livestock feed," FAO reported.

Mounting food crops are not limited to Europe, the report states. Breadgrains in North and Central America total about 47.5 million metric tons (1¾ billion bushels)—approximately the same as last year. But feed grain crops, particularly corn, are much larger. Production of wheat, barley, rye and oats in North and Central America is 8 per cent above 1947. Potato production in the same area is 8 per cent above 1947.

In Asia, total breadgrain production is estimated at 43.1 million metric tons; about 10 per cent above last year. In Africa it is 27 per cent above 1947.

U. S. Exports Dip for Third Month in Row

United States exports dropped in September to the lowest point in nearly two years despite heavier shipments under the Marshall Plan. It was the third straight month of decline.

The Census Bureau reported yesterday total shipments abroad fell to $926,500,000 in September, a slump of $61,700,000 from August.

Chiefly responsible was a $40,800,000 drop in the Army's shipments of civilian relief supplies for occupied areas. These shipments amounted to $60,800,000 in September.

Imports of goods from other countries also declined for the second straight month. They totaled $558,200,000 in September, off $40,200,000 from August.

Of significance was a further decline in the United States export surplus. This represents the amount by which shipments from this country exceed shipments by foreign countries to the United States.

The export surplus figure for September was $368,300,000, smallest since October, 1946. This reflected a long-continued movement of exports and imports toward a closer balance.

AUCTION ENTHUSIAST—Stephen A. McDonald, vice president of the New York auctioneer firm of Joseph P. Day, Inc., livens things up at the auction that failed by shouting for higher bids. What the sale of the gas company's property lacked in success, McDonald made up in enthusiasm

"just don't go in for making their deals at auction sales." He expressed belief that private negotiations eventually may bring about transfer of the property on satisfactory terms.

In the gathering that sat on its hands throughout the hour or so it took to read the terms of sale, and then wait for bids that didn't come, were Moiris Cafritz and many other Washington real estate operators, and some speculators from other cities. They all seemed to be merely curious.

The lack of interest and the size of the highest bid left many puzzled. The site had been advertised as the "most strategic" in downtown Washington for construction of about 2000 apartment units in five-story and eight-story structures to cost 17 million dollars, with theater and shopping center, or for office buildings, hotels, department store or institutional use.

Bounded by Virginia and New Hampshire aves. and Rock Creek and Potomac pkwys., the property touches F, G, H, 26th and 27th sts. in what is called the Northwest Triangle. It is within a 2-mile radius of many of the most important places in the city, and overlooks the Potomac River.

Landlord's Right to Quit Rental Market Upheld

Philadelphia, Nov. 9 (AP).—The Third United States Court of Appeals today ruled that a landlord has the right to evict tenants by simply taking his property out of the "rental market" for the duration of the Federal rent-control law.

Neither the present owner nor any future owner can rerent the property once it has been removed from the rental market, the court said in upholding a decision by the United States Circuit Court.

The decision affects landlords and tenants in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware only.

Federal rent officials are expected to appeal the decision to the United States Supreme Court.

The Circuit Court ruling upholds a decision made by the United States District Court at Newark, N. J., in favor of Mrs. Elizabeth Ellis Durr of South Orange, N. J. Mrs. Durr was prevented by the housing expediter from evicting a tenant in a house she owned at Newark. Mrs. Durr wanted to sell the property because she said she was unable to keep up the expense of maintaining it.

Democrats Won't Name Slate For Charter Group Election

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

Montgomery County Democrats yesterday refused outright to participate in selection of candidates for the seven-member charter council which will be elected next January.

The statement of policy followed a four-hour meeting in Rockville of the county's Democratic State Central Committee. Attending was E. Brooke Lee, veteran Democratic leader who last year indorsed the charter and simultaneously announced his retirement from politics.

Mrs. Opal

Replying to a letter from Allen H. Gardner, chairman of the nominating committee for the county charter committee, in which Gardner asked county Democrats to suggest names for a slate of council candidates which will receive charterite backing, the State Central Committee said.

"The Democratic State Central Committee will support and will recommend to the Democratic voters of this county that they vote on January 6 next for the slate of seven candidates which the Montgomery County Charter Committee selects and supports.

"This assures complete and absolute responsibility in the charter group, and eliminates any necessity as reason for any deal with any political party."

County Republicans will select candidates for the charter council, but they have not yet decided whether to join with the charter nominating committee or select their own slate, Chairman Walter W. Dawson of the Republican State Central Committee said yesterday.

In another development yesterday, Mrs. Almas T. Opal of Takoma Park announced that she would become an "at-large" candidate in the charter council election.

In still another development, the county school board at its regular meeting disclosed that it is considering requesting the county's legislative delegation to introduce a bill next January which would raise the 7 per cent debt limit imposed by the charter.

In their second session since the charter was voted November 2, the Republican County Commissioners yesterday transacted little business, and held the shortest meeting since they took office in December, 1946. At a desultory session on November 4, the commissioners also transacted little county business.

President Making Important Decisions

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Key West, Fla., Nov. 9.—The victorious Democratic ticket of '48 was under the same roof here in Florida this evening, and important political decisions were in the making.

Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, the Vice President-elect, flew down from Washington to join President Truman in his winter White House here. With him was Leslie Biffle, who will again be secretary of the Senate when the Eighty-First Congress convenes.

Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and his assistant, William Boyle, are scheduled to arrive here tomorrow.

It is billed as a vacation, but it is considered inevitable that such matters as Cabinet changes will be discussed.

James Forrestal, Secretary of Defense, is expected to leave the Cabinet, probably before Mr. Truman and Mr. Barkley are inaugurated on January 20.

Forrestal Successor Unsettled

The Chief Executive, according to the best information available, has not yet settled on a successor to Forrestal. It probably will be somebody not now in the Administration.

Stuart W. Symington, the Air Secretary, also is expected to leave.

John L. Sullivan, Secretary of the Navy, is certain to stay on if that is his desire. Mr. Truman is grateful for Sullivan's 17 campaign speeches in his behalf and discounts the talk that he spent his time playing golf at the Burning Tree Club.

No clear-cut information is available about Kenneth C. Royall, Secretary of the Army.

It was twilight when Senator Barkley and Biffle drove up to President Truman's quarters today.

"Hi, Boss," yelled Mr. Truman at his running mate. "You almost ran over my cat."

He was referring to a black-and-white pet that had been playing in the driveway.

Mr. Truman was wearing seersucker trousers and a tight-fitting white sport shirt. He was surrounded by men with cameras.

"I thought you were a photographer," Barkley said, as he prepared to greet Mr. Truman.

"I wish I could qualify," said the President, laughing. "It would be a lot easier job."

The Navy plane that brought Senator Barkley and Biffle to Key West landed at the Boca Chia airfield at 5:15 p. m. The two men were greeted by A. Maitland Adams, mayor of Key West.

Responding to Mayor Adams' greeting, Barkley said that if Key West was half as good as people say it is, he would "camp" here. The mayor said that it was even better than that.

"The half has not been told, as Solomon said," remarked Barkley.

In reply to questions by reporters, the Vice President-elect said he had come here to rest, not to talk about politics or a legislative program. He meant, obviously, that he had not come here to talk about such things to reporters.

Anticipates Change

He looked forward with some pleasure to the change from Democratic floor leader to presiding officer of the Senate.

"I won't be down in the bull pen," he said. "I'll be a sort of umpire."

This morning a delegation of American Legion officials called on Mr. Truman and presented him with a gold medal in token of his speech before the Legion convention last month. They also presented him with three linen sports shirts, one of which he was wearing when Barkley and Biffle arrived.

The delegation was made up of Albert J. Mills, vice president of the American Legion National Corporation; Vance Stirrup, commander of the thirtieth district, and George Allen Warren, commander of the Key West post.

GOP Is Told To Aid Solid Democrats

Barre, Vt., Nov. 9 (AP).—A Republican Party tie-in with the "more solid elements" in the Democratic Party was proposed today by Senator Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.).

Flanders told a Chamber of Commerce meeting the Republicans "should actively, not passively, concern ourselves with legislation whose objective is the public welfare."

He suggested the Republicans "search out the more solid elements in the Democratic Party and join them in promoting the solid underlying interests of the American people."

He said the programs should be in the interests of the ordinary citizen "and should not be merely flashy and attractive without any hope of real benefit."

The Senator expressed the belief there was "grave danger" that the Administration and the Congress may be moving in that direction.

Wright Scoffs at 'Deal' For Blocking Truman

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 9 (AP).—Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi scoffs at reports of a move to block the electoral college vote for President Truman unless he drops the civil rights program.

The Governor declared at a news conference yesterday that he had not heard of such a move and would have no part of it if one existed.

But speaking for the Mississippi slate of electors, Wright said, he did not see how "our presidential electors can vote for Truman."

The Governor, who ran for vice President on the States Rights ticket, went on to say that voters of Mississippi were not against President Truman "as an individual, or for Thurmond as an individual," but were voting for a principle.

The fact that President Truman has been elected," doesn't change our position in the least," he added.

Widow Hands Out $100 Bills at Street Corner

Newark, N. J., Nov. 9 (AP).—A widow handed about $1000 in $100 bills to astounded strangers today at Broad and Market sts., the busiest corner in New Jersey.

Police halted the strange philanthropy and succeeded in recovering $400 from passers-by.

"Please don't arrest me," she pleaded to Patrolman Michael Boyland. "I have done nothing wrong."

The woman had gone to her bank and had withdrawn half her life savings. She attempted to hand the money to a bank messenger. He refused and she threw $100 on the bank floor. An employee picked it up and the money was credited to her account.

Boyland said she gave her name as Mrs. Helen Kuhl Weiss, about 35 years old. Police took her home after questioning.

Quick Budget Action Urged In Alexandria

Speedy action in completing the city's 1949 budget was called for last night by the Alexandria City Council.

Recalling last year, when the budget was adopted 24 hours before the January 1 deadline after a hurried public hearing, Mayor William T. Wilkins asked City Manager Nicholas A. Colasanto to bring in the budget for council's consideration as soon as possible.

Colasanto said he still has not received the school board's budget or a statement from the State on its supplemental payments to the city. The city manager also said he has not yet received a budget from the Juvenile Court despite three requests.

Wilkins said that the school budget and the State report usually were not received until early in December, but he agreed with Councilman Leroy S. Bendheim that three times was more than enough to have to ask for the Juvenile Court budget.

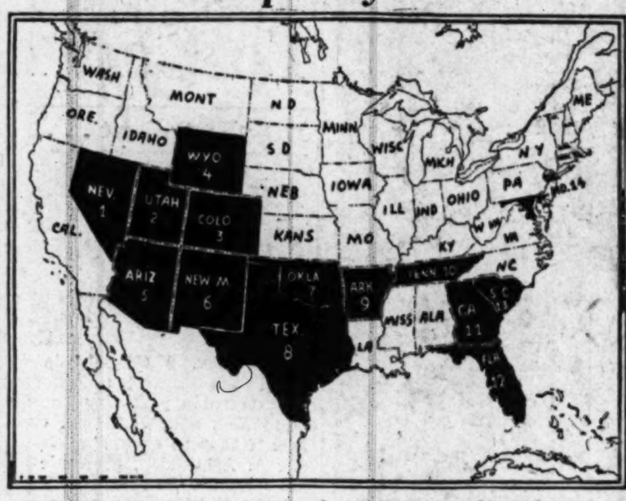
Bendheim suggested that Colasanto arbitrarily set the court budget at the 1948 figure and send the city's budget on to council so that it can be advertised for public hearing as soon as possible.

The council also:

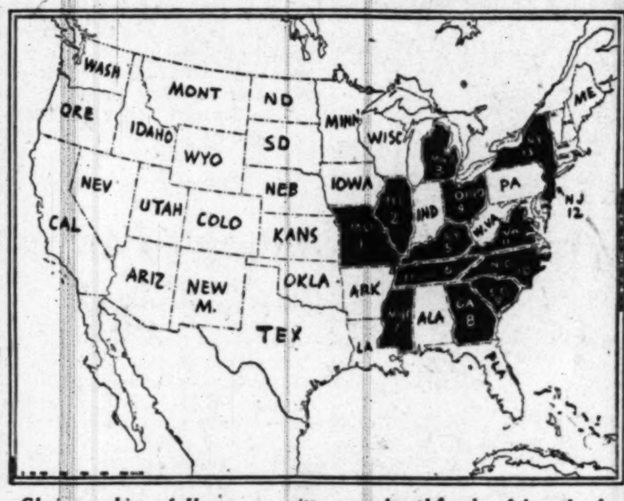
1. Agreed to meet Thursday night with the Alexandria Hospital Corporation to discuss what council's hospital committee chairman called "a matter of great importance." He did not elaborate on his remark.

2. Heard Councilman Marshall J. Beverley criticize Clerk of the Council Fred Petitt for lagging two months behind in recording minutes of meetings, and agreed to ask an explanation of Petitt, who was absent last night.

Sectional Disparity Indicated



Under the unwritten seniority rule of Congress, this is how the chairmanships of the Senate committees of the Eighty-first Congress would be assigned: 1, Nevada, Judiciary; 2, Utah, Labor and Public Welfare; 3, Colorado, Commerce; 4, Wyoming, Interior and Insular Affairs; 5, Arizona, Rules and Administration; 6, New Mexico, Public Works; 7, Oklahoma, Agriculture and Forestry; 8, Texas, Foreign Relations; 9, Arkansas, Expenditures in Executive Departments; 10, Tennessee, Appropriations; 11, Georgia, Finance; 12, Florida, District; 13, South Carolina, Banking and Currency, Postoffice and Civil Service; 14, Maryland, Armed Services



Chairmanships of House committees, under the rule of length of service would be headed by Representatives in the following States: 1, Missouri, Appropriations; 2, Illinois, Expenditures Committee and Rules Committee; 3, Michigan, Education and Labor; 4, Ohio, Commerce; 5, Kentucky, Banking; 6, Tennessee, Postoffice and Civil Service; 7, Mississippi, Public Works Committee and Veterans Affairs Committee; 8, Georgia, Un-American Activities Committee and Armed Services; 9, South Carolina, District; 10, North Carolina, Agriculture Committee and Ways and Means Committee; 11, Virginia, Merchant Marine; 12, New Jersey, Administration; 13, New York, Judiciary, Foreign Affairs and Public Lands

South and East Due to Divide Nearly All Top Posts in House

mittee on committees and functions much in the same way.

The test of the seniority rule will come if this time House and Senate leaders, faced with the practical political fact of large voting sections left completely unrepresented in the guidance of major committees, decide to make some departure from the hitherto ironclad rule.

House Democrats not only will be faced with the geographic representation dilemma. There the more delicate party question posed by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, whether Dixiecrat seniors, who bolted the party, rate top assignments, could give another twist to the rule. In the Senate, no known bolters are in line for committee chairmanships.

Eight Slated for South

If seniority wins again, as it always has in the past, eight of the 19 House committee chairmanships automatically will go to Southern seniors without consideration of any other factors. They are:

Agriculture, Representative Harold D. Cooley (N. C.); Armed Services, Representative Carl Vinson (Ga.); District of Columbia, Representative John L. McMillan (S. C.); Merchant Marine and Fisheries, Representative Schuyler Otis Bland (Va.); Public Works, Representative William M. Whittington (Miss.); Un-American Activities, Representative John S. Wood (Ga.); Veterans Affairs, Representative John E. Rankin (Miss.); Ways and Means, Representative Robert L. Doughton (N. C.).

Three other top posts would go to border State members, as follows: Appropriations, Representative Clarence Cannon (Mo.); Banking and Currency, Representative Brent Spence (Ky.); Postoffice and Civil Service, Representative Tom Murray (Tenn.).

The Public Lands Committee, normally considered a Western plum, would go to Representative Andrew L. Somers (N. Y.) and the East would get these other chairmanships: Foreign Affairs, Representative Sol Bloom (N. Y.); Judiciary, Representative Emanuel Celler (N. Y.), and House Administration, Representative Mary T. Norton (N. J.).

No far Western States would be represented but the Midwest would get these four: Education and Labor, Representative John Lesinski (Mich.); Expenditures in Executive Departments, Representative William L. Dawson (Ill.); Interstate and Foreign Commerce, Representative Robert Crosser (Ohio), and Rules, Representative Adolph J. Sabath (Ill.).

[In contrast, no Midwestern or Northeastern State would get a single chairmanship in the new Senate, nor would the Northwest be represented.

Six of the 15 Senate top posts would go to Southerners, as follows: Banking and Currency, Senator Burnet R. Maybank (S. C.); District of Columbia, Senator Spessard L. Holland (Fla.); Expenditures, Senator John L. McClellan (Ark.); Finance, Senator Walter F. George (Ga.); Foreign Relations, Senator Tom Connally (Tex.); and Postoffice and Civil Service, Senator Olin D. Johnston (S. C.). Three would go to border States: Agriculture, Senator Elmer Thomas (Okla.); Appropriations, Senator Kenneth McKellar (Tenn.), and Armed Services, Senator Millard E. Tydings (Md.).

And the other six would be scattered through the Far West: Interior, Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Wyo.), Interstate and Foreign Commerce, Senator Edwin C. Johnson (Colo.), Judiciary, Senator Pat McCarran (Nev.), Labor and Public Welfare, Senator Elbert D. Thomas (Utah); Public Works, Senator Dennis Chavez (N. Mex.); and Rules and Administration, Senator Carl Hayden (Ariz.).

One minor departure in the seniority rule already has been worked out. It involves Senator Robert F. Wagner (D. N. Y.); who is ailing, stepping aside for Maybank to become Banking chairman. As of yesterday, no shifts involving geographic factors were in the works, however.

Many substitutes for the seniority rule have been recommended by outside experts, but Congress has rejected all of them and even barred the LaFollette-Monroney committee from consideration of basic rule changes.

Hoover Study Loses Prestige As Result of Truman Victory

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

One result of the election, impressive by its sudden appearance, is the widespread belief among higher Government officials that the Hoover Commission on Reorganization of the Executive Branch has lost much of its importance.

Several department heads as well as Congressional groups are going ahead with plans to submit their own proposals for reorganization of their sections of the Government. Some freely state "off the record" that they now believe that the Hoover report expected in January will be studied as a guide, but stands little chance of consideration as a whole.

There are two expressed reasons for believing that the election results have altered the importance of the reorganization plans. They are:

1. That it was a Republican plan. It was introduced in Congress by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., (R., Mass.) and Representative Clarence J. Brown (R., Ohio). The Republican platform referred to it in pledging "abolition of overlapping, duplication, extravagance and excessive centralization" and "more efficient assignment of functions within the Government." The Democratic platform was silent on the subject.

2. That two elements of significant influence in the reelection of President Truman have been outspoken in criticizing the commission. One is a labor group, the CIO; the other a farm group, the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association.

Charges Antagonism

The latter early in October charged that advisers to the Hoover Commission are antagonistic to the rural electrification program.

On October 26, James B. Carey, secretary-treasurer of the CIO, wrote Mr. Hoover that "big business" alone had been consulted in most of the preliminary work of the commission. He asked that labor have a chance to study reports of "special importance" to labor.

The commission met yesterday to consider some of the reports of its task forces. Before the meeting a spokesman indicated that the results of the election would not influence its program.

He reported that one task force of the commission had had regular conversations with President Truman, with a view to recommendations to relieve the chief executive of some of the onerous duties now surrounding the office.

In the meantime the House Agriculture Committee, under the chairmanship of Clifford R. Hope (R., Kans.), is resuming its study of a long-range farm program which was halted by the special session of Congress. This program will consider several important changes in the organization of the Agriculture Department, distinct from the studies of the Hoover Commission.

The committee met last night in Spokane, Wash., and its 17 members—several will not be on it in the next Congress—will inspect the Grand Coulee Dam and Columbia Basin irrigation project this week.

Thursday it will drive along the Columbia River to Portland, Oreg., and entrain for Los Angeles. In a nine-day stay in California it will tour the Imperial and Coachella valleys, and the walnut and citrus regions between Riverside and Ventura. Later it plans to visit the Salinas, Pajaro and San Joaquin valleys, and then the famed Central Valley reclamation project.

The schedule of the trip indicates the committee may give thought to reorganization plans involving some bureaus in Interior, particularly the Reclamation Bureau.

Considerable friction exists between Interior and Agriculture over operation of the Reclamation Bureau. Two points of differences stand out:

1. Reclamation has been able to hire several hundred employes away from Agriculture, particularly the Soil Conservation Service, by offering promotions in grade. SCS is limited to salary expense even greater than the strict limitations the recent Congress imposed on Reclamation. Most of the cuts in Reclamation have been in engineering personnel, rather than in its agricultural personnel.

2. Agriculture feels that some of the Reclamation Bureau's farm operations in the irrigated areas of the West are not beneficial to its overall farm program.

One of Agriculture's big headaches is the price support program for potatoes. It has been trying to limit potato production, while at the same time Reclamation has been releasing land for farming where the most profitable cash crops are potatoes and sugar beets, without encouraging growing of other crops.

Agriculture feels that under the overall farm program encouragement should be given diversified farming in the newly developed acres, with irrigated pastures and improvement of livestock growing.

While the Hoover Commission is studying reorganization plans, the Agriculture Department is going ahead with its proposals for an overall farm program—a study matching that of the Hope Committee.

That program will entail considerable reorganization. Particularly will it consider means to prevent overlapping in soil conservation programs between the Soil Conservation Districts, the old AAA county organizations and the extension service. One agriculture official, when asked if the study was being made in consultation with the Hoover group, asked significantly, "Why?"

Mobs in Shanghai Raid Food Stores

Shanghai, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—Food riots and strikes broke out in Shanghai today and China's new "gold yuan" currency plunged to virtual worthlessness.

Roger D. Lapham, Marshall Plan administartor in China, promised "tons and tons" of rice by December 1 in an effort to ease tension, but hungry mobs wrecked empty rice shops and looted vegetable stands in widespread rioting.

A United States Army officer with long service in China said: "This is the worst I've ever seen. These people are angry. They're just ripe for the Communists."

Economic chaos in South China overshadowed even the military situation in the north, where tens of thousands of victorious Chinese Communists swept through Great Wall passes from Manchuria. The Reds claimed the capture of Shanhaikwan, "guardian of the north China plains," on the Gulf of Chihli coast 150 miles northeast of Tientsin.

Despite President Chiang Kai-shek's plea yesterday for solidarity in the face of military setbacks, angry workers refused to accept the government's currency and demanded food instead.

A strike by 12,000 Shanghai, Nanking and Hangchow rail workers was called off after a few hours, ending a serious threat to Shanghai's precarious food situation.

The workers returned to their jobs after the government railway administration agreed to meet demands for more rice per worker and a 100 gold yuan wage increase.

The "gold yuan," officially pegged at 25 cents (U. S.), was offered for almost 4 cents on the black market today. And there were no buyers, because most merchants refused to accept the money for precious goods.

[The Associated Press reported Suchow, gateway to Nanking, was menaced by three Chinese Communist columns driving in hard from the north, west and east. Simultaneously, the report said, Communist guerillas knocked out a 100-mile stretch of the rail line linking Suchow with Nanking.]

Palestine War With a Bang . . .

RAILYARDS BOMBED—Resembling the early war photos of bombing runs over Europe, this picture was released yesterday by the Israeli Office of Information in Washington. The direct hits were made on Gaza railroad yards by Israeli bombers in a raid against Egyptian forces in the Negev desert area of Palestine, according to the caption

Japs Sought Russian Land, Court Rules

Tokyo, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—The Far East war crimes tribunal decreed today that Japan massed its armies in Manchuria and north China to attack Russia, not as part of a stop-communism plan.

The decision destroyed utterly a main defense plea that Japanese-Soviet relations differed "fundamentally from all the others" and that Japan "never at any time, in any place" planned aggression against Russia. It marked the fourth day of reading of the 350,000 word verdict on war crimes charges against Hideki Tojo and 24 co-defendants.

Defense attorneys have tried to prove that Japan feared the advance of communism in the Far East and tried to block its entry into China.

The judges declared, however, that Japan planned in north China not a wall against communism but a strike against Russia.

"At this time there was no evidence of aggressive intention on the part of the USSR against either Germany or Japan," Court President Sir William Webb read from the ruling.

Gag Rule Invoked to Break Filibuster on Greece in U. N.

Paris, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—The United Nations Political Committee slapped a gag rule on debate on the Greek situation today to break a filibuster by Yugoslavia and other Russian-bloc countries.

The rule, limiting speeches to 10 minutes, was adopted by a vote of 41 to 1 after Russian Delegate Alexandre Bogomolov bawled out Yugoslav Delegate Ales Bebler for attempting to speak in Russia's name.

It was one of the rare instances in which the rift between the Yugoslav regime of Marshal Tito and the Moscow-directed Communist Bureau of Information, or Cominform, had popped up in the U.N.

Russia and other Soviet-bloc countries had supported Yugoslavia in obstructing passage of a resolution by which the U. N. Assembly would be called on to denounce Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia for aiding the Greek Communist guerillas.

Dulles Starts Move

John Foster Dulles, United States, started the move to break the filibuster. Bebler, speaking against the gag rule, said that his country, Russia, the Ukraine, White Russia, Poland and Czechoslovakia should be exempted and permitted to speak as long as they liked.

"I wish to say the Yugoslav delegate has no authority to speak for the Soviet delegation," Russian delegate Bogomolov said.

When the vote came the Ukraine and White Russia supported the gag rule. Bogomolov remained silent. Bebler alone voted against it.

Bebler spoke 27 times during the two sessions on the Greek situation today.

The committee succeeded, however, in adopting three more paragraphs of the resolution on the Greek situation. Six paragraphs were adopted yesterday and three remain to be adopted, probably Wednesday.

Sections Adopted

1. The U. N. calls on Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia to cooperate with Greece in a settlement of their disputes by peaceful means. This was approved by a vote of 43 to 0. The Soviet-bloc countries remained silent.

2. The U. N. calls on the three Balkan countries to cooperate also with the U. N. special sommission on the Balkan situation. This was approved 50 to 0.

3. The U. N. recommends that all its members refrain from any action "designed to assist, directly or through any other government, any armed group fighting against the Greek government." This was adopted 42 to 0.

The committee also voted 43 to 4, with four abstentions, to extend the life of the Balkans commission for another year.

De Gaulle, Queuille May Meet

Paris, Nov. 9 (AP).—Legislative sources said tonight Premier Henri Queuille and Gen. Charles DeGaulle may meet next week in the midst of a threatened cabinet crisis.

Two Popular Republican cabinet members, whose party came off badly in elections to the upper house of Parliament Sunday, resigned today. The national council of the party will vote this weekend on whether to withdraw all its members from the cabinet—an action which would precipitate the fall of the government.

Socialists, also heavy losers in the upper chamber elections, were to meet at the weekend, probably to consider prices and wages. Socialist demand for further wage raises also could wreck the government in which they have several key ministers.

Spokesmen for Queuille and for DeGaulle, who won about 40 per cent of the membership of the Council of the Republic in elections Sunday, would not confirm reports the two adversaries would meet. Informed legislative sources said negotiations were under way for a conference.

The two Popular Republicans who resigned were Alain Poher, Secretary of State for the Budget, and Yvon Coude de Foresto, Secretary for Food. Both were defeated in contests for the upper house Sunday.

Rival Undertakers Hurt In Fight Over Corpse

Rome, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—Two undertakers were taken to a hospital today after a fist fight over a corpse they both wanted to bury.

The combatants represented two well-known firms. Each claimed he arrived first to bury the body of a pauper. By the time police arrived and broke up the fight both men were hurt enough to be taken to a hospital.

East, West Can Trade, Russia Says

Paris, Nov. 9 (AP).—Russia attacked the European Recovery Program again yesterday but declared East and West "can cooperate if they so desire."

A. A. Arutiunian, economic expert from the Armenian S. S. R., told the United Nations Economic Committee the United States is aiming at economic expansion. He accused the United States of "violating international law, breaking its obligations and endeavoring to exploit the U. N." to gain economic control of the world.

"We are not scared by any trade discrimination aimed at eastern Europe," he said, adding:

"These two systems (east and west) can cooperate if they so desire. Development of trade among countries of differing economic systems is the basis for cooperation between them.

"The Soviet Union will develop trade with all who want to trade with us. This trade will be on an advantageous basis to the other nations."

Paris, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, acting mediator, asked the United Nations Security Council today to order an armistice in Palestine, establish a broad no-man's-land between Arabs and Jews and call on them to reduce their armed forces.

Bunche submitted his plan to a closed meeting of the 11-nation council, and asked the delegates to comment. An American spokesman said Philip C. Jessup promised the United States would give it "sympathetic study."

An Israeli spokesman roundly condemned the program, asserting it would "stabilize Arab aggression in Palestine." He said it was tied closely to British strategy in the Holy Land, and appeared to rule out immediate, direct Arab-Jewish negotiations.

"We categorically oppose any plan which calls for demilitarized zones or a no-man's-land in our land," the Israeli spokesman said.

The Security Council agreed to meet privately again Wednesday to continue exchange of views on Bunche's proposals.

And Bunche called for Wednesday afternoon the first meeting of a seven-nation subcommittee formed to back up the Security Council's November 4 resolution ordering Israel to withdraw from territories won during the "truce" in the Negev area of south Palestine.

To Study Punitive Steps

The subcommittee is empowered to study possible punitive steps to be taken if Israel refuses to withdraw. So far, the Israeli government has not answered the withdrawal order, and its troops still were reported fighting in the Negev.

(A Tel Aviv dispatch said, Israel asked the United Nations to investigate reports that "not inconsiderable contingents of British troops" have arrived in Trans-Jordan and "parts of Palestine.")

The Bunche plan was a modified version of an earlier proposal to promote peace in Palestine. It differed in one important respect from the original blueprint, in eliminating reference to "direct negotiations" between Arabs and Jews, something the Jews have advocated for weeks.

It specified that Arabs and Jews should undertake the peace program through the "good offices of the acting United Nations mediator on Palestine." This did not necessarily rule out direct negotiations, if Bunche wanted them, a press officer said.

Death Is Asked For 21 Nazis

Nuernberg, Germany, Nov. 9 (AP). American Prosecutor Robert W. Kempner today demanded that 21 members of Hitler's wartime foreign office be given the death penalty for war crimes.

The defendants in the "Wilhelmstrasse" war crimes trial included several top Nazi officials. The trial has been in progress since January.

Most prominent are Ernst van Weizsaecker, former secretary of state and one-time German envoy to the Vatican; Otto Dietrich, chief of press control under Joseph Goebbels, and Hans Heinrich Lammers, chief of Hitler's Reichschancellery.

They were charged with crimes against peace, common conspiracy against peace, war crimes and crimes against humanity.

Kempner said the defendants "are more culpably responsible and deserve no less punishment than the German soldiers and civilians who have been sentenced to death for enforcing the murder policy transmitted to them from above."

Kempner blamed the defendants particularly in connection with the killing of confined priosners.

King Ready to Quit As Canadian Leader

Ottawa, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—William Lyon Mackenzie King, who held an elective post as head of state longer than any man in the history of the British Empire, will resign next week, probably Monday, as Prime Minister of Canada.

Mackenzie King

King, whose health has been seriously impaired by a heart ailment will make a farewell broadcast to the nation late this week, after 21½ years service as its leader.

King, a bachelor, will be 74 December 17. He will be succeeded by Louis Stephen St. Laurent, 66, brilliant lawyer, who didn't enter politics until 1941, but who was elected leader of the Liberal Party at its national convention last August.

The dual ceremony of relinquishment and swearing-in will take place probably next Monday, possibly on Wednesday. King simply will drive to Rideau Hall and tender his resignation and that of his cabinet to Viscount Alexander, governor general of Canada.

He will advise Lord Alexander to call upon St. Laurent to form a new administration. As soon as King leaves Rideau Hall, the governor general will summon St. Laurent who is expected to have a cabinet slate almost identical with King's ready for submission.

Bullitt Flies To China for Survey of Needs

By The Associated Press

Former Ambassador to Russia William C. Bullitt left by plane yesterday to make a rapid survey of China's needs for Congress.

Bullitt repeatedly has urged greater American aid to halt the Communist advance in Asia. He said he hoped to be back by Christmas with a report for the joint congressional watchdog committee on economic cooperation, headed by Senator Bridges (R., N. H.). He is due in Shanghai Sunday and said he might visit a number of other cities.

China meanwhile was reported to be pressing the Administration to increase the present American outlay of 400 million for the Nationalist government and the non-Communist areas remaining under control.

Surgeon General Urges Pool Of Resources, Group Medicine

Boston, Nov. 9.—Group medicine and pooled resources were urged today as ways of protecting the health of a greater number of Americans.

United States Surgeon General Leonard A. Scheele told the American Public Health Association that less than 5 per cent of the American people have "fully staffed, well-qualified . . . health services."

He said that within the next year "an effective plan for insuring complete coverage with local health units must be put into operation" and that "unless definite action is taken . . . we shall not be able to advance against the major causes of death and disability in the United States."

Mrs. Eugene Meyer, wife of the chairman of the board of The Washington Post, told the association Republican leaders blocked social progress in the last Congress and were defeated in the election because Americans "want action" on health and welfare programs.

Mrs. Meyer, a member of the executive committee of the National Health Assembly, said: "As a Republican who testified fruitlessly before the Eightieth Congress on behalf of various welfare measures, I am convinced that the overwhelming Republican defeat was due mostly to the obstruction of social progress by the House leadership."

"I hope," she added, "the American Medical Association will take the lesson to heart."

Martha M. Eliot, president of the association and associate chief of the United States Children's Bureau, said it was obvious that many families with children could not afford to pay for medical care, "or when they do afford it, they do so at the expense of other essential items."

Cold Weather Navy Clothing Not Adequate

Argentia, Newfoundland, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—Amphibious maneuvers in the Navy's largest war games since World War II have proved that present Arctic issue clothing is inadequate and would result in high casualties from freezing, Navy doctors said today.

Moreover, they said that no clothing yet developed by the Navy will protect men from freezing to death once they get wet in below-zero temperatures.

When 1700 Marines hit the Newfoundland beaches yesterday in a simulated invasion preparatory to setting up air bases for an "attack" on Canada and the United States, those Marines who got wet received higher priority medical treatment than those with simulated bullet wounds.

"Temperatures are deadlier than bullets," one doctor explained. "A man immersed in these temperatures dies rapidly because the water conducts the heat out of the body and the blood coagulates."

Despite their simulated casualties, the Marines quickly spread over the island capturing the air station and other facilities.

Among the other cold-weather problems facing the Navy in their maneuvers were the icing of the decks of the aircraft carriers and of the guns.

Ordnance experts pointed out that the muzzle of the battleship Missouri's big 16-inch guns fall off 1 foot per second for every degree under 90 degrees above zero.

Strike of 1000 Halts British Airline Flights

London, Nov. 9 (UP).—British European Airways Corp. tonight cancelled all flights to the continent and Ireland effective Wednesday following a sudden walkout by 1000 engineers and maintenance men at Northolt Airport.

The dispute arose over a new bonus plan which the workers claimed was unfair. The Airport Workers Union has accepted the plan and urged the men to return to work.

Blockade Harming Berlin's Economy

Berlin, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—Gen. Lucius D. Clay acknowledged today that the Russian blockade has crippled western Berlin's economic life.

The United States military governor said in his monthly report that industrial production in the capital has dropped to 20 per cent of the preblockade figure and that nearly 89,000 persons were jobless or on part-time work as a result of Soviet measures.

A similar British report placed industrial productivity at 45 to 50 per cent, but agreed that unemployment had increased 10 per cent.

"Workers' conditions worsen daily," Clay said. "Many are forced to either borrow money or sell personal possessions in order to meet their financial obligations."

Because of the Soviet freeze on city funds in the Central City Bank in the Russian sector, 370,000 Berliners are not receiving pensions, and city employes are not getting full salaries, Clay said.

The United States Navy joined the airlift today. The first of 66 giant Skymasters (C-54's) promised Clay arrived near Frankfurt last night, and others were scheduled to arrive tonight.

An official report showed that bad weather during the first week of November cut airlift shipments by about 4500 tons, mostly in vitally needed coal. Only 18,900 tons of food and coal were delivered to Berlin during the week ending yesterday, compared with 23,370 tons the week before.

Mrs. Edwards' Says Wary Mate Cost $15,000 Bet

By the United Press

Mrs. India Edwards, director of the women's division of the Democratic National Committee, complained yesterday that her husband cost her about $15,000 last Tuesday.

She explained at a news conference that her spouse refused to let her put a $1000 election bet on President Truman at 15 to 1 odds.

"I feel terribly," she said. "My husband thought loyalty and confidence were fine, but you don't have to be idiotic about it. So, we still have a mortgage on the farm."

chief of staff. He was a godsend—a master of detail with clear comprehension of main issues Serious, hard-working, and loyal, he proved equally as capable in difficult conference as he was in professional activity. Strong in character and abrupt by instinct, he could achieve harmony without appeasement, and earned for himself an enviable standing throughout the armies and governments of Europe. He reached London on September 7 and there began a personal friendship and official association which lasted throughout the war.

Joined by Spaatz

The organizational plan for air was pressing in point of time. We intended to participate as quickly as possible in the bombing campaign against Germany. The Eighth Air Force was allocated to our theater, with General Spaatz assigned to me as its commander.

From the time of his arrival at London in July he was never long absent from my side until the last victorious shot had been fired in Europe. On every succeeding day of almost three years of active war I had new reasons for thanking the gods of war and the War Department for giving me "Tooey" Spaatz. He shunned the limelight and was so modest and retiring that the public probably never became fully cognizant of his value.

All these preliminary organizational tasks were normal to such enterprises. They had been anticipated and therefore were soon disposed of, so far as immediate needs were concerned. Another task for which we had to organize very specifically was almost unique in character. It involved the fitting of our training, building, and organizational activities into British life.

Preparation in Britain

The plan to bring large fighting forces to Great Britain required those highly populated islands to ready themselves for the absorption of two million Americans and provide for them necessary facilities, including training grounds, in which to prepare for the great invasion. England's insufficiency in food supplies had already led to a program of placing even submarginal ground under intensive cultivation, while, to save fuel and power, all unnecessary transportation and power facilities had been eliminated. Our friendly invasion would vastly increase the strain on the population.

The whole of the British Isles is only slightly larger than Colorado. Certain portions were either unusable or unsuited to our purpose, southern Ireland was neutral, while Scotland was short of suitable areas for training. Almost the entire burden was thrown onto the crowded sections of middle and southern England, with some troops stationed in north Ireland.

We had to expect inevitable clashes with civilian processes, and in spite of the best will in the world on both sides we had to anticipate and do our best to prevent mutual irritations that would naturally lead to misunderstandings and could not fail to impede the war effort.

Bracken a Big Help

Fortunately all this was foreseen and discussed frankly with the leaders of the British war effort. Our principal collaborator was Mr. Brendan Bracken, head of the Ministry of Information. He seemed to be as controversial a figure in British life as Harry Hopkins was in ours, but he was always helpful to us and, equally important, he was decisive and energetic.

He had another characteristic particularly noticeable among a people normally regarded as conservative and correct. Until I met him I had always regarded the American cowpuncher as the world's greatest master of picturesque expression. The effect of Bracken's language was always heightened by the rasping intensity of his voice.

During the war, Mr. Churchill maintained such close contact with all operations as to make him a virtual member of the British Chiefs of Staff; I cannot remember any major discussion with them in which he did not participate.

An inspirational leader, he seemed to typify Britain's courage and perseverance in adversity and its conservatism in success. He was a man of extraordinarily strong convictions and a master in argument and debate. Completely devoted to winning the war and discharging his responsibility as Prime Minister of Great Britain, he was difficult indeed to combat when conviction compelled disagreement with his views.

In most cases, problems were solved on a basis of almost instant agreement, but intermittently important issues arose where this was far from true. He could become intensely oratorical, even in discussion with a single person, but at the same time his intensity of purpose made his delivery seem natural and appropriate. He used humor and pathos with equal facility, and drew on everything from the Greek classics to Donald Duck for quotation, cliche, and foreceful slang to support his position.

I admired and liked him. He knew this perfectly well and never hesitated to use that knowledge in his effort to swing me to his own line of thought in any argument. Yet in spite of his strength of purpose, in those instances where we found our convictions in direct opposition, he never once lost his friendly attitude toward me when I persisted in my own course, nor did he fail to respect with meticulous care the position I occupied as the senior American officer and, later, the Allied commander in Europe.

He was a keen student of the war's developments and of military history, and discussion with him, even on purely professional grounds, was never profitless. If he accepted a decision unwillingly he would return again and again to the attack in an effort to have his own way, up to the very moment of execution. But once action was started he had a faculty for forgetting everything in his desire to get ahead, and invariably tried to provide British support in a greater degree than promised.

Strategic Planning

Coupled with our organizational and preparatory program was the task of developing an operational plan to carry out the agreed-upon strategical concepts of the two governments. At that time Gen. Sir Bernard Paget was commanding the Home Forces of Great Britain, from which would have to come the British contingent of the invading army. His troops included a number of Canadian divisions serving under the command of Gen. Andrew McNaughton.

Air Chief Marshal Sir Sholto Douglas was designated as the commander for the British Expeditionary Air Forces. Admiral Sir Bertram Ramsay was named to head British naval forces. It was in cooperation with these men that the original work of developing a European invasion plan was undertaken by United States headquarters.

Chiefs of Staff Parley

At the time of my first visit to London, in May, no detailed study of tactical plans for an invasion of the coast line of northwestern Europe had been made. Requirements in troops, airplanes, supplies, and equipment were all yet to be determined. In general terms I was thinking of an assault to be launched early in 1943, conducted during its initial stages by British troops supported by possibly 10 or 12 American divisions.

With these general ideas in mind but with no detailed studies upon which to make a firm conclusion, I went to an informal meeting with the British Chiefs of Staff. Shortly after the conference began I was invited to present my general views concerning the nature of the projected operation.

Speaking as an American planner assigned to the War Department in Washington, and with no idea that I would later be assigned to Britain, I said in substance, "The first thing to do is to name a commander for the operation. That man must be given every bit of power that both governments can make available to him. He must be directed to plan for an invasion of Europe on the basis that it will certainly be successful, at least to the extent of establishing on the continent a solid front capable of carrying out effective operations against the German. He must be directed instantly to prepare his outlined plan and to submit to the Chiefs of Staff his requirements not only in troops of all kinds but in all types of additional equipment—land, sea, and air."

Meeting With Mountbatten

The first question asked me was, "And who would you name as commander of this expedition?"

Still thinking of an operation in early 1943, when the British would necessarily provide the major portion of the forces during initial stages, I replied, "In America I have heard much of a man who has been intensively studying amphibious operations for many months. I understand that his position is Chief of Combined Operations, and I think his name is Admiral Mountbatten. Anyone will be better than none; such an operation cannot be carried out under committee command. But I have heard that Admiral Mountbatten is vigorous, intelligent, and courageous, and if the operation is to be staged initially with British forces predominating I assume he could do the job."

ADMIRAL MOUNTBATTEN
Commando Chief

My remarks were greeted with an amazed silence. Then General Brooke said, "General, possibly you have not met Admiral Mountbatten. This is he sitting directly across the table from you."

The President had specifically ordered the United States Chiefs of Staff to launch some kind of offensive ground action in the European zone in 1942.

3 Lines of Action

In view of these circumstances there seemed to be three lines of action deserving of earnest study.

The first was the direct reinforcement of the British armies in the Middle East via the Cape of Good Hope route, in an effort to destroy Rommel and his army and, by capturing Tripolitania, to gain secure control of the central Mediterranean.

The second was to prepare amphibious forces to seize northwest Africa with the idea of undertaking later operations to the eastward to catch Rommel in a giant vise and eventually open the entire Mediterranean for use by the United Nations.

The third was to undertake a limited operation on the northwest coast of France with a relatively small force but with objectives limited to the capture of an area that could be held against German attack and which would later form a bridgehead for use in the large-scale invasion agreed upon as the ultimate objective. The places indicated were the Cotentin Peninsula or the Brittany Peninsula. This proposed operation was called Sledgehammer.

Long Discussions

No other course of action seemed feasible at the moment. The discussions were long and exhaustive. A major factor in all American thinking of that time was a lively suspicion that the British contemplated the agreed-upon cross-Channel concept with distaste and with considerable mental reservations concerning the practicability of ever conducting a major invasion of northwest Europe. So, though we could not plead for a do-nothing policy while all the impedimenta of major invasion were being produced and accumulated, we looked askance on any project that seemed to be an effort to lead us to indefinite commitment to a strategy in which we did not believe.

I was well aware of sincere British misgivings—often voiced in a general way by Mr. Churchill, but definitely and specifically by General Paget—concerning the major cross-Channel venture, then known as Roundup. General Marshall heartily agreed that, no matter what decision should be reached by the London Conference then in progress, we must secure from the British unequivocal reaffirmation of the cross-Channel strategy.

Channel Blow Favored

Influenced by these considerations, I personally favored, at that time, the third course of action; that is, the attempt to seize a small bridgehead on the northwest coast of France. However, I told General Marshall that the project was a hazardous one and that my only real reason for favoring it was the fear of becoming so deeply involved elswhere that the major cross-Channel attack would be indefinitely postponed, possibly even canceled.

Later deevlopments have convinced me that those who held the Sledgehammer operation to be unwise at the moment were correct in their evaluation of the problem. Our limited-range fighter craft of 1942 could not have provided sufficiently effective air cover over the Cotentin or Brittany Peninsulas against the German air strength as it then existed. At least, the operation would have been very costly.

Another reason is that out of the northwest African operation flowed benefits to the Allied nations that were felt all through the war and materially helped to achieve the great victory when the invasion actually took place in 1944. Only meager advantages would have followed capture of Cherbourg; the desirable features of that project were merely that it would have initiated a small "second front" at once and would have launched our first offensive effort in the direction and along the same line that would later be taken by our full-out assault.

Operation Torch

On July 24 it was determined to proceed with the planning for the invasion of northwest Africa with an Allied force of all arms, to be carried out under an American commander. The operation received the name of Torch. Its execution was approved by the President on July 25. Both governments agreed that the whole venture should have, initially at least, a completely American complexion.

The hope was that French North Africa would receive the invading troops with no more than a nominal show of resistance, and the chances of this favorable development were considered to be much brighter if the operation was advertised as purely American. British standing in France was at a low ebb because of the Oran, Dakar, and Syrian incidents, in which British forces had come into open conflict with the French.

In his headquarters in the Claridge Hotel on July 26, General Marshall informed me that I was to be the Allied commander in chief of the expedition. In August the appointment as commander in chief was made official in a directive from the Combined Chiefs of Staff.

The preparation for "Torch," the Allied invasion of North Africa, filled the summer of 1942. Alternative plans were debated between London and Washington, while General de Gaulle and his Free French followers were kept—necessarily and successfully—in the dark about the plan.

It was the one time in the entire war, General Eisenhower writes in tomorrow's installment of "Crusade in Europe," when one of his operational plans was changed by higher authority. This newspaper will publish here tomorrow his reasons for preferring, initially, to take his entire Allied force inside the Mediterranean, bypassing Casablanca, and his reasons for subsequently accepting the political decision of the United States Chiefs of Staff.

This is a condensed serialization of Dwight D. Eisenhower's "Crusade in Europe." It contains highlights of the book to be published November 22, 1948, by Doubleday & Company. Copyrighted by Doubleday & Company, Inc.

Geo. Washington 'Wasn't There,' So Mural Is Retitled

Los Angeles, Nov. 9 (AP).—A WPA Federal Art Project mural that has hung in the Board of Supervisors' chamber since 1939 got a new title today.

The artist titled it "Declaration of Independence, 1776." The mural shows George Washington, who wasn't present at the signing. A supervisor noted the error in 1941, but until today the title was unchanged.

Now it's "Constitution of the United States, 1787." Washington and other public figures in the mural were at the Philadelphia Constitutional Convention, the board's historians discovered after considerable study.

Forrestal to Talk Arms in Europe

Defense Secretary James Forrestal left here yesterday for conferences with American officials in Europe expected to deal with military aid to the Western Union and our own 1950 arms budget.

Officials said the trip is not the result of any emergency, but has been contemplated for some time. However, several problems must be settled within the next few weeks requiring consultation between Forrestal, Secretary of State George C. Marshall, RCA Ambassador W. Averill Harriman, and others in Europe.

They involve:

(1) Decision on the terms and amount of funds of a military aid program for Western Europe.

(2) President Truman authorized Forrestal to delay presenting the Army, Navy and Air Force budgets—due September 15—until the last moment they could be whipped into shape for presentation to Congress in early January. The aim was to wait and see what the international situation was at that time—about December 1—before deciding on the military program for next year. Early conferences with Marshall therefore are a must.

Forrestal is due in Paris this afternoon, where he will see Marshall and Harriman. He'll go to Frankfurt Friday, then to Berlin to see Gen. Lucius D. Clay and observe the airlift. From London, he will return here Sunday.

Data which Forrestal must obtain before Pentagon chiefs can prepare budget estimates on arms air includes:

1. What military stocks are available in western Europe to meet the collective needs of Western Union?

2. What additional armament production can be expected in in western Europe without disrupting economic recovery.

After that, our military officials must determine what surplus supplies we have and estimate what we must manufacture to meet the immediate needs of the Western Union powers.

Very tentative estimates have put the first year's budget estimate at $1,500,000,000, and this is mostly guesswork.

A top level policy decision has been made here that European countries participating in the arms program should not be called upon to upset their economic recovery plans for rearmament.

Accompanying Forrestal on his survey trip is Maj Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, director of the joint staff, and his aides.

Conferees Study Relation of Crime To Films, Radio

How to keep comic strips, movies and radio thrill-dramas from making criminals of American youth was the subject here Monday and yesterday of a conference sponsored by the American Bar Association.

George Maurice Morris, attorney and spokesman for the conference, said no conclusions were reached; that representatives of all groups concerned gave frank expressions of their views.

Attending the two-day conference at the Mayflower, he said, were representatives of publishers, motion picture producers, advertising agencies and the bar association.

Lt. Gen. Paul Applies for Retirement

GEN. WILLARD S. PAUL
. . . Seeks retirement

Lieut. Gen. Willard S. Paul, father of the Army's "humanizing" program, has asked for retirement from active service December 31, it was announced yesterday.

The wartime commander of the 26th (Yankee) Division, is considered largely responsible for many of the reforms of the postwar Army. He became director of personnel and administration, Army General Staff, three years ago.

Paul, 54, entered military service as a private in the National Guard in 1916. He saw service in France during World War I as a lieutenant, and during the peace years became interested in the new profession of personnel management.

Studying the politics and methods of leading industrial firms of putting round pegs in round holes, and keeping employes interested and happy, he became an expert in such work. Some of the innovations with which he revolutionized Army personnel handling include the enlisted career program, intensive job classification, scientific methods of screening officer candidates, and "putting the personal into personnel."

Paul's retirement request was unexpected. There were reports he was considering a flattering civilian offer, but he was out of the city yesterday and not available for comment.

Maj. Gen. Edward H. Brooks, now Army commander in the Carribbean, and wartime commander of the Second Armored Division and Sixth Corps, will replace General Paul.

Jury Acquits Firm Accused of Illegal Donation to GOP

Bay City, Mich, Nov. 9 (AP).—A Federal court jury today acquitted a Flint auto sales agency and two of its officials on charges of contributing money illegally to the Republican Party.

The jury of seven women and five men deliberated little more than an hour before reporting its verdict to Judge Frank A. Picard.

Freed of the accusations were the Lippincott Motor Sales of Flint, its president, Harry L. Woodin, and its secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Blanche M. Lippincott.

Two FBI agents testified today that the Lippincott agency made out a check for $500 to the Republican State Central Committee in 1946 and charged the expenditure to general administrative costs.

Defense attorneys, after their motion to dismiss was denied, told the jury the prosecution had not proved for what purpose the money was used.

Bickering Hit By Forrestal

West Point graduates to enter the Air Force, it was said, will be determined by mutual agreement of the departments concerned. Applicants will not be confined to midshipmen or cadets physically qualified for and ambitious to be pilots, it was said, as the Air Force has need for some ground officers.

Cadets and midshipmen aiming for the Air Force will take the same courses as others at the schools, and "no distinction" will be made as to them at either academy, the Forrestal directive states. The Air Force must pay its proportionate share for upkeep of West Point and Annapolis, and must provide a proportionate number of officers and men to serve not only on the staff but also as part of the "overhead' force of the academies, as requested by the Army and Navy.

Noting that appointment of Annapolis men is an innovation, Forrestal declared that its success depends largely on the wholehearted cooperation of the services."

of the woman. He gave her the divorce and $60 a month alimony.

Said the District Court jurist:

"This couple lived together 28 years and brought up two children. She performed her household duties and he went out and earned their livelihood.

"In 1937 he left his wife and the only reason he gives for it was that she would not cook his meals. This is obviously insufficient grounds in the eyes of the law to desert a family, even if true.

"He did not speak to her for three years and even refused to attend a little party she gave for their silver wedding anniversary. This kind of conduct is unnatural. Persons cannot play fast and loose with their marital duties.

"To be sure, the wife made no effort to get her husband to come back to her or to effect a reconciliation. But any such effort, from the evidence here, would have been futile. The law does not require futile gestures."

King Recommends Clearing of Stark, Kimmel

Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King, wartime chief of naval operations, has withdrawn his condemnation of the two top Navy commanders at the time of Pearl Harbor, and has recommended that their naval records be cleared, it was learned last night.

The two—both now, like Admiral King, retired—are Admiral Harold R. Stark and Admiral Husband E. Kimmel. The first was chief of naval operations and the second commander of the United States Pacific fleet on December 7, 1941, when the Japanese launched their devastating attack on Pearl Harbor.

Admiral King has written the Navy Department that he was in "error" when he indorsed a Navy investigation report and condemned both admirals by name. In the light of a more detached viewpoint, Admiral King said, he believes that the Pearl Harbor disaster was caused by sins of omission, rather than commission, and that the record on the two officers should carry the language of his letter, rather than his original indorsement. The letter, it was learned, was dated last April.

The indorsement that Admiral King wishes to withdraw from the records of the two officers was placed August 13, 1945, by Admiral King on the report of a naval inquiry into the Pearl Harbor disaster conducted by Admiral H. K. Hewitt. Its pertinent phrases—and the ones that Admiral King wishes expunged—are:

". . . though not culpable to a degree warranting formal disciplinary action, (they) were nevertheless inadequate in emergency, due to the lack of the superior judgment necessary for exercising command commensurate with their duties (and) appropriate action appears to me to be the relegation of both of these officers to positions in which lack of superior strategic judgment may not result in future errors. The action has been taken in the case of both Admiral Stark and Admiral Kimmel. No further action is recommended."

Draper Urges Speed On Jap Reparations

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—The economic price Japan must pay for her war guilt must be assessed at once, if she is to get back on her feet and support herself, the Undersecretary of the Army, William H. Draper, jr., said today.

"The reparations issue must be settled quickly," Draper told the thirty-fifth meeting of the National Foreign Trade Convention.

"Those industrial plants which will actually be excess, and not needed for economic secovery, should be decided at once so that the Japanese know where they stand and how they can plan."

Destroys Incentive

Draper said that delay in deciding which plants will remain in Japan and which will be shipped out as reparations is holding back production, because it destroys the incentive to repair and rehabilitate the industries of Japan.

"The products which Japan could produce, given the raw materials, are needed throughout the Far East," Draper said.

"The Far East needs Japan as a market for its tin, wool, iron ore, copper, copra and rice. Although the production of food and coal has been rising in Japan since the end of the war, Japanese industry is still only 40 per cent of the level of 15 years ago."

Korea Soon to Get ECA Aid

Draper noted that European Recovery Administrator Paul G. Hoffman will soon add Korea to the group of nations receiving ECA aid.

"Just as we freed Cuba and the Philippines," he said, "we are today giving Korea her chance for independence."

John L. McCaffrey, president of the International Harvester Co., of Chicago, told the morning session of the three-day convention that the Havana charter for the proposed International Trade Organization had "the taint of collectivist thinking."

The ITO "would lodge authority over international trade in a sort of super-state," he contended. The charter, which was not submitted to the Eightieth Congress, may be brought before the new one.

U. S., Mexico to Make Tuna Resources Study

Mexico and the United States agreed tentatively yesterday to establish a joint commission to investigate tuna resources in the Pacific Ocean.

State Department announcement said representatives of the two signed an agreement in Mexico City recommending that a formal convention embodying this plan be concluded later. They suggested an eight-man commission with four members from each country.

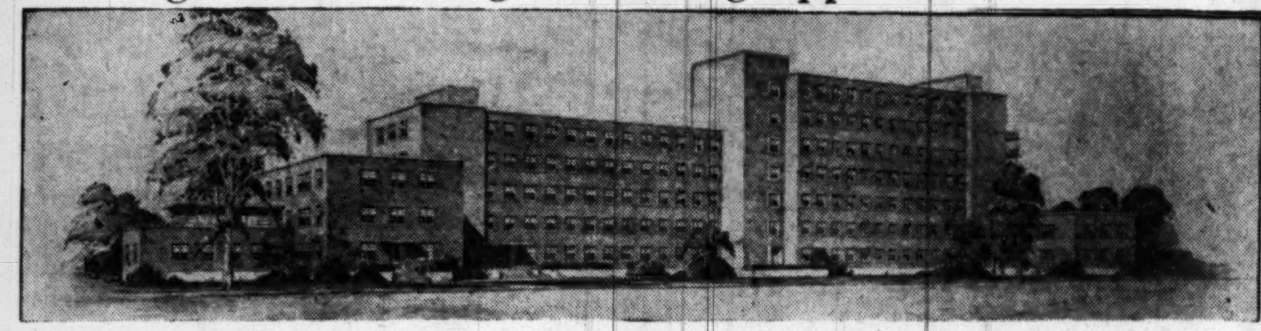
Drawing of New Gallinger Building Approved



ARCHITECT'S CONCEPTION—This preliminary drawing for the combined pediatric and crippled children's building at Gallinger Hospital was approved yesterday by the District Commissioners. It will be constructed so other stories may be added. Construction is planned during the 1950 fiscal year, and Congress has authorized $2,050,000 for the first 125-bed project of two wings. A second section may be erected on top of the first to provide for 300 beds. The crippled children's wing would then be five stories and the other seven

Russ Pair Like Freedom Here

The Russian-born parents of an American war hero killed in the Pacific said yesterday they are proud "we gave something fine to our country."

Samuel Levin of Brooklyn, N. Y., spoke for himself and his wife as a portrait of their son, Sergt. Meyer Levin, was presented for the Pentagon's "Hall of Fame."

Young Levin was bombardier on Capt. Colin Kelly's famous attack on the Japanese battleship Haruna three days after the war started.

Kelly was killed on that flight but Levin kept fighting until he perished in the crash of a B-17 bomber off New Britain in 1943. Levin won the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Silver Star, among other decorations.

Secretary of Defense Forrestal and other high officials attended yesterday's ceremony. To them, the elder Levin said:

"We have traveled all over the world—no other country could compare with the ideals of liberty and freedom that are here. We Jews were persecuted in Czarist Russia—we had no rights. But here it was something wonderful. Here it was equalty to everyone who came to the United States."

Air Secretary W. Stuart Symington, who received the portrait on behalf of the Air Force, gave Mrs. Levin a Gold Star pin. But he observed, "Nothing given in a material way could ever repay you or any other Gold Star mother for the death of a son."

Forrestal termed the ceremony "symbolic of the unity" of the Nation. The Meyer Levin Post of the Jewish War Veterans in Brooklyn sponsored the presentation of the portrait.

Indigent Care Contracts With 9 Hospitals Approved

District Commissioners yesterday approved one-year contracts with nine local private hospitals for treatment of indigent patients.

The agreements have been in preparation for several months during which the Health Department, auditor's office, budget officer and the Commissioners have discussed the terms. The contracts spell out the terms under which a congressional appropriation of $690,000 may be used.

A ceiling of $9 a day for each patient treated and $2 for each clinic visit was imposed by the congressional act and is incorporated in the present contracts. Payments for care extended during July, August and September will be started at this rate, pending completion of individual contracts with the hospitals, a budget official said last night.

The 17-page contract replaces last year's three-page version, the difference in length being used to cover specific details of treatment and qualification for treatment.

The new contract provides that residents must be approved by the District's Hospital Permit Bureau or meet 1946 indigent requirements in order to qualify for treatment at the private hospitals. It also specifies that nonresidents (those persons with less than year's residence in the District) must be conveyed to the hospitals in District Emergency Ambulance Service or District Health Department vehicles and "in no other manner."

The agreement also provides that only total indigents may be treated at District expense; semi-indigents are to be directed to Gallinger Hospital.

Doctor Places Nurse Shortage Blame on Profession Itself

The organized nursing profession was blamed, in major part, yesterday for the shortage of nurses in the Nation's hospitals.

Dr. Wetherbee Fort of Baltimore, governor for Maryland of the American College of Physicians, accused the top three nursing organizations of continually raising training requirements, discouraging those who might enter or continue in the profession.

The trend, he said, continues despite the fact that "it has been proved all too well by the nurses that a shorter period of training can produce satisfactory results."

Chief of medicine of the Hospital for the Women of Maryland and assistant profesor of medicine of the University of Maryland Medical School, Dr. Fort gave his views before a general session on nursing service held by the Maryland-District of Columbia Hospital Association at the Hotel Statler.

To alleviate the shortage of nurses, Dr. Fort proposed reducing the present three-year training period for graduate nurses to two, lowering the minimum age requirement to 16, instituting "working classroom schedules" in high school senior classes to attract girls to nursing, and providing more recreational inducements to those in training.

He named the nursing organizations he was criticizing as the American Nurses Association, the National League of Nursing Education and the Public Health Nurses Association.

Emphasizing his own recommendations, Dr. Fort said his proposal to reduce nursing training to two years would not prevent those who wished to continue in special fields from taking further courses.

On age minimums, he said too many hospital nursing schools limit entrance requirements to 19 years of age.

And as to any public objection to young nurses, Dr. Fort said that nursing uniforms could take care of that.

"The nurse's uniform appears to be designed to make her look 10 years older than her age, a fact which favors the girl of 16 but greatly depresses the girl of 26," he declared.

Dr. Fort said statistics show that even with today's "strenuous recruiting efforts" only about 50,000 nurses enter training each year. In contrast, he said, estimates show the need of an enrollment of 85,000 annually.

Nurse Association Aide Denies Doctor's Charge

A charge that the organized nursing profession is largely responsible for the Nation's present shortage of nurses was denied yesterday by Miss Edith M. Beattie, executive secretary of the Graduate Nurses Association.

Informed of statements made here yesterday at a medical meeting by Dr. Weatherbee Fort of Baltimore, Miss Beattie declared:

"We definitely feel the training curriculum for the professional nurse cannot be reduced to two years," she said. "The professional nurses should be an intelligent and educated person if she is to carry out the doctor's orders—and if she is to understand the orders and the results of them.

"If any change should be made it should be towards making the training program longer than three years."

As to the suggestion that the minimum age requirement be reduced to 16, Miss Beattie said: "Professional nursing carries a greater responsibility than practically any other profession. And 16 is just too young an age for a girl to be ready to assume the responsibility of nursing, physically or emotionally.

Lawyer Suing Judge Fined In Same Court

A Washington attorney who has filed a $300,000 libel suit against Alexandria District Court Judge Albert V. Bryan was fined $50 yesterday for contempt of Judge Bryan's court.

Judge John Paul, sitting in Judge Bryan's place, held Edmond C. Fletcher in contempt for attempting to practice before the court which has disbarred him in 1933.

Fletcher, a former assistant to the United States Attorney General, who lives at 103 C st. se., claimed that he had not been properly disbarred. For that reason, he said, he was entitled to appear as an attorney in a suit filed in the Alexandria court last month.

Court records show a certified copy of an order signed by the late Judge Luther B. Way June 20, 1933, in Norfolk, disbarring Fletcher from further practice before the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia. The Alexandria court is one of three courts in the district.

Fletcher was originally disbarred from the Supreme Court of the District in 1931 in connection with the assignment of fees in a court case against the United States.

He filed the libel suit against Judge Bryan last month after the judge had ordered Fletcher to show cause why he should not be held in contempt for attempting to bring a case before the court.

Kickback

It is difficult not to prejudge the case of the United States versus J. Parnell Thomas. Representative Thomas has been indicted by a Federal grand jury in Washington on the reprehensible charge of defrauding the Government through his official position as a member of Congress and chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee. Mr. Thomas, to be sure, has not been convicted, and under the American system of jurisprudence he is entitled to a presumption of innocence until proved guilty. Nevertheless, the fact that a grand jury has seen fit to indict him disposes pretty effectively of Mr. Thomas' preelection comment that the action against him was merely "cheap politics."

In many ways it is regrettable that the case cannot be tried until sometime early next year. The charges against Mr. Thomas are particularly ugly. In addition to the alleged kickback conspiracy involving Mr. Thomas as well as his former secretary, Miss Helen Campbell, and comprising 34 separate acts, the indictment also cites the New Jersey Congressman on three counts for making false salary claims for work done for his committee. Whereas the kickbacks supposedly took place between 1940 and 1945, the false salary claims are listed as having been made as recently as February of this year—at a time when Mr. Thomas was making a great fetish of impugning other Americans for alleged improprieties of conduct.

If the charges are substantiated, then of course Congress will have no problem in what to do with an erring member. But even before the trial, during the period that Mr. Thomas remains under indictment, we believe that the new Congress should refrain from seating him, despite the fact that he has been reelected by his constituents. The American people have a right to expect that the men conducting the affairs of Congress will be, beyond question, men of honor and exemplary conduct—especially when, as in the case of Mr. Thomas and his committee, they presume to pass judgment on others.

Equal Judicial Rights

Solicitor General Perlman advanced a novel argument on Monday in asking the Supreme Court to uphold the Gwynne Act. Congress has the power, he said, to give District residents the right to vote in national elections and even to make the District into a State. That is indeed a sweeping claim. Few authorities have ever gone so far in their interpretation of the constitutional clause giving Congress exclusive legislative control over this seat of the national Government. On the contrary, sponsors of the national suffrage movement have almost invariably concentrated their efforts on securing a constitutional amendment granting Congress the power to give the District representation in the Senate and House and the right of casting electoral votes for presidential and vice presidential candidates.

It seemed obvious from the questioning that some of the justices were not impressed by Mr. Perlman's argument. We suspect that many others will not be. Much as we should like to believe that this easier method of obtaining national suffrage is open to the people of the District, we fear that its acceptance would require too much of a stretching of the charter of 1787. The whole purpose of creating the District and placing it solely under Federal control, as the debates in the constitutional convention show, was to remove the Nation's Capital from the control of any State. To say that Congress now has authority to make the District a State is equivalent to saying that Congress may defeat the purpose for which the District was created.

Some of those who heard the argument thought that Mr. Perlman was led into making extreme statements by the contention that District residents inherited certain rights from Maryland when this area was ceded to the Federal Government for the building of a capital. One of these rights, he thought, was the right of access to the Federal courts on an equal footing with citizens of the States. This is the point at issue before the court. Certainly some rights as well as machinery of government were carried over when jurisdiction over the District was transferred from State to Federal hands. In Georgetown, for example, Maryland laws continued in effect for a time and citizens continued to elect their local officials as they had done before.

The Supreme Court has often held, moreover, that the act of cession did not deprive District residents of various fundamental rights. Now the Supreme Court must decide whether equal access to the Federal courts was one of those rights which Congress may reinstate by a simple act instead of a constitutional amendment.

We hope that the argument for upholding the act will lose none of its force because of the extremes to which Mr. Perlman carried it in response to questions. To construe the power of Congress over the District as meaning that the Capital could be converted into a State would reverse the intent of the founding fathers. But a holding that Congress may give District citizens equal rights in the Federal courts would in no way undercut the constitutional purpose in creating the District. It would merely make available an equality of judicial rights that lies close to the heart of constitutional government.

Why Wait For A Crisis?

Senator Barkley has let it be known that when he drops the toga of party leadership and takes up the gavel in the Senate on January 20, he hopes to be a working Vice President. Just what he will do in addition to presiding over the Senate is not yet clear. It would be surprising, however, if the President did not take advantage of Mr. Barkley's high standing among his senatorial colleagues to cement the good relations between the White House and Capitol Hill that the election appears to have established. The President's invitation to Mr. Barkley to sit with the Cabinet and the forthcoming conferences at Key West, in which Speaker-to-be Rayburn as well as the Vice President-elect will participate, are good omens.

The unanswered question is whether a loose informal liaison with congressional leaders will be maintained or a new device to encourage routine consultation and teamwork created. We think the arguments are especially strong at present for the establishment of a legislative council that would outlast the so-called honeymoon period. The most serious weakness of the Truman Administration to date has been its repeated squabbles with Congress, and those squabbles were by no means confined to the last two sessions, when Republicans were in control. The President formulated policies and sent them to Congress with little consultation and with little regard for congressional views, and Congress acted, or failed to act, with little regard for the White House's recommendations.

There is high hope that this will be changed now that Mr. Truman has a mandate from the people. But history discourages any such notion. Congress and the President have invariably drifted apart because there has been no means of keeping them in harness together. To some extent this weakness in the American political system may be congenital, but a vast number of political scientists think that it could be greatly minimized by the simple device of a legislative cabinet or council.

Prof. Edward S. Corwin of Princeton University has the latest word to say on this subject in the new edition of his book The President: Office and Powers. "Kept within bounds," he writes, "the power and prestige of the Presidency comprise the most valuable political asset of the American people . . ." The legislative process cannot operate smoothly without presidential guidance. But "no President can long shape policy in any field without legislative support." The President needs the advice of men whose daily political salt does not come from the presidential table as much as Congress needs his leadership. A council of legislative advisers would serve both purposes. It would also help to relieve presidential leadership in the legislative field of the "accident of personality and the unevenness of performance which this involves."

In every crisis the President and Congress have been forced to improvise some means of working together to avert calamity. "But why," Professor Corwin asks, "should it require a crisis to bring forth best methods, especially as with best methods operative crisis might often be avoided?" We suspect that the most useful task to which Vice President-elect Barkley could be assigned would be the development of a full-fledged legislative cabinet designed to become a permanent instrument of Government.

Carolina Divorces

In a closely fought referendum the people of South Carolina have approved the first step necessary to obtain a divorce law for that State. Up until now, South Carolina has been the only State in the Union which has had a constitutional ban on divorce for any cause. Last week's referendum showed a majority favoring the repeal of this section of the State constitution. The results of the balloting now must be ratified by both houses of the State Legislature before a start can be made in writing a law consistent with popular feeling.

As he retires from Congress, Senator Arthur Capper can take particular pleasure in the South Carolina results, for he has been an indefatigable worker for uniform divorce legislation. Much remains to be done, as this newspaper has frequently noted. There is, for example, wide disparity in residence requirements for divorce, with Nevada and Florida running divorce mills that in reality cater largely to the residents of other States. Great differences persist in the grounds recognized for divorce. New York is almost as strict as South Carolina, granting divorces only for adultery. North Carolina and Louisiana have laws almost in this category.

Laws of such stringency certainly are no kindness to persons who are really incompatible. There is as much reason to question whether they serve to protect the sanctity of the home as there is to condemn the high, wide and handsome procedure in effect in Nevada and Florida. A codification of divorce requirements has been urged as a project that should enlist the cooperation of Governors. The impetus for Federal action comes from the realization that little or nothing has been done so far to resolve the mounting jumble of conflicting divorce laws.

Undoubtedly the church groups which until now have successfully opposed any liberalization of the South Carolina statutes can be counted on to wage a last-ditch fight in the Legislature. But a precedent has been set which will be hard to ignore. And the encouraging thing is that it has been set by the State itself without outside prodding.

De Gaulle's Success

General de Gaulle took another step to power in France as the result of his success at the elections of the Council of the Republic. When all the returns come in, his RPF and the coalition in which RPF participated may have 40 per cent of the seats. But the victory should not be overrated. For the most part, the electors are the municipal councilors, and, all told, there are not more than 100,000 of them. The result, then, is not necessarily an index of grassroots sentiment. Nor can it be said to be anything more than a reflection of last year's municipal elections, when General de Gaulle registered about a 40 per cent success in putting in the councilors who make up the bulk of the electors of the Council of the Republic.

Having said this, however, the fact remains that General de Gaulle is making headway in France. The Third Force government gives the appearance of being squeezed to death between communism and De Gaullism. To be sure, the government showed energy as well as wisdom in handling the recent strikes in the coal and ore fields. This was due to the Minister of Interior, Jules Moch, whose handling of the police is firm and exemplary. But in other affairs the government is suffering from a palsy that has become disquieting. The fiscal situation, so far from improving, is degenerating, and, if there is no improvement in the government's ability to tax and collect, there is danger that France might invite a review of Marshall Plan appropriations. The beneficiaries simply must show results if the Marshall schedule is to be maintained. The tragedy in France is that the fiscal situation is negating an economic situation that is basically sound.

The government might argue with justice that it is handicapped by the twin shadows of De Gaulle and communism. Both inhibit action. The former seems to have ordered a change in tactics—or, rather, an abandonment of them—toward the Third Force government. The strategy is now reported to be to oppose everything, right or wrong, so as to force a dissolution of the Assembly. Such a squeeze seems to condemn the government to do-nothingness. But this is the path to ruin, and it would seem that the least dangerous course for the government would be to risk, in the event of a crucial issue arising, a vote of no-confidence and an appeal to the electorate.

White House

"By 1902," says the WPA Guide to Washington, "the White House began to show the effects of generations of wear and tear." The building, after all, dates from 1815, when it was rebuilt after British troops set it afire the preceding year. Numerous additions, changes, and partial strengthenings have been made over the years, and now another major operation is in prospect. The second floor, occupied by the First Family as living quarters, must now be thoroughly remade lest it fall through some day, and in the meantime the Trumans will have to be lodged elsewhere, probably in Blair House, across the street.

This is not a matter of presidential balconies. The very seriously and even dangerously dilapidated condition of this part or level of the Executive Mansion has been a matter of concern to those responsible for the building for some time past. Last spring, acting on the recommendation of a committee representing the American Society of Civil Engineers, the American Institute of Architects, and the Commissioner of Public Buildings, Congress appropriated $50,000 for the purpose of surveying the repairs necessary and estimating the cost to make them. The White House architect, Mr. Lorenzo Winslow, has put the possible cost at between $750,000 and $1,250,000. But the engineering survey is not completed yet, and the official estimate is still to come as the final phase of the survey. It is expected to be ready for presentation to Congress early in the session.

The physical condition of the White House has little if anything to do with politics. The President, whoever he may be, deserves to have a sound roof over his head and a sound floor beneath his feet. And Harry, Bess and Margaret will surely not be denied the security of habitation that goes along with such a rousing public victory as the President has won. Having reason ourselves to know of his unwillingness to crow over less astute forecasters than himself, we are sure he will be only amused to recall what Senator Bridges said last spring: "We want to get the White House in good shape for another year."

The Trumans have another four years of tenure, and after they move out some other First Family will arrive. The Mansion's condition is such that delay in repairs would be unwise, and we think everything necessary to put it in shape for many years to come ought to be done while the doing is good.

"Old Dominion"

In the November 5 editorial entitled "Old Dominion" you make the astonishing statement "The Truman surge is a vindication of the political wisdom of old line Virginia party men such as Senator Byrd, in remaining aloof from the lures of the Dixiecrats. It is also an implied rebuke to those State Democratic leaders who toyed with the thought of denying Truman a place on the ballot."

It so happens that Byrd and Tuck went to extreme lengths to keep President Truman's name off the ballot, as under their leadership, inspired chiefly by Senator Byrd, they had the State Legislature pass a law by which no names of presidential candidates were to be on the ballots. We were to vote for electors, who would choose the candidates presumably chosen by the Byrd machine.

To the credit of the Virginia press I will say they opposed this, but I never heard of the law being changed.

ANNE W. RIDDLEBERGER.
Woodstock, Va.

Senator Byrd had nothing on earth to do with Mr. Truman's receiving a substantial plurality in the State of Virginia. On the contrary, Senator Byrd's action in making no announcement as to his support of President Truman's candidacy and his failure to work and speak in behalf of the national Democratic ticket cost that ticket a great many thousand votes in the State of Virginia. It is a well-known fact to most Virginians that Senator Byrd failed to support Mr. Roosevelt in 1940 and 1944, and that he was absolutely inactive as to Mr. Truman's candidacy in the recent election.

The truth of the matter is that the men who were responsible for the Democratic victory in Virginia were Martin A. Hutchinson, Richmond; Robert W. Whitehead, a member of the General Assembly from Nelson County, and Francis Pickens Miller of Albemarle, a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination in next year's Democratic primary.

These three men organized the Democratic strength in this State and did valiant work and made excellent addresses in behalf of the party nominees.

Editor's Note: Our editorial did not say that Senator Byrd helped President Truman. On the contrary, Mr. Byrd fought Mr. Truman's nomination at Philadelphia. What we pointed out was that Senator Bryd was sagacious enough not to campaign publicly for the Dixiecrats. From the standpoint of his own future this was undoubtedly wiser than getting out on a political limb which the Virginia voters sawed off.

"Days Of Our Years"

Please let me compliment you on the editorial of November 4, "Days of Our Years." If the calendar reformers would put forth an effort with the same zeal to reform the kind of days we are forced to put up with each year, having daylight-saving time in one city and standard time in another, they would render confused humanity a valuable service.

To change the present weekly cycle each year and twice during each leap year, by inserting "zero" or "blank" days into the month and into the weekly cycle, would be more confusing and cause greater irregularities than does the present Gregorian calendar. It would cause divisions among religious denominations. Those who believe in following time-honored customs would continue to observe the seven-day weekly cycle with its fixed sacred days, and would refuse to accept movable holy days. The modernist who cares naught for tradition or fixed customs would follow the multitude just for the sake of going along with the crowd.

The United Nations has enough troubles aside from tackling as hot a potato as is the enforcement of a world calendar upon all nations and divergent religions. C. S. LONGACRE.

Dorothy Kilmer

I'm amazed to find in your columns suggestions from well-meaning readers who think we should stop trying to help Dorothy Kilmer ourselves, because "the responsibility lies with the Commissioners and Congress."

We are trying to help Dorothy—not her grandchildren. Demanding that the Commissioners and Congress "do something" is all very well. But expecting Dorothy to sit in that wheel chair until they do is utterly heartless and unreasonable. BILL GOLD.

Prop To Reaction

This Government has become strictly military and power-minded in its foreign policy in so far as it has a foreign policy. Straining all to save face, its undiplomatic diplomats are losing face with the peoples of the world by aligning the United States with any government unpopular with its own people, so long as it is well right of center and will yell loud and long about the Communist menace.

The Marshall Plan, started laudably to feed Europe, is too readily becoming one to arm Europe. Our horde of "rice Christians" over there must consent for they are hungry, poor devils, but how long can the United States keep that up?

Quick recovery in Europe is the only sound defense against the desperate deluge from the left. Rearmament has doomed that quick recovery.

Outside of America the man on the street knows the next war will be across lines of social stratification not across international boundaries. Who is going to give eyes to the sharper-lawyer and brass-hat moles now shaping our foreign policy? Who will carry the arms and in which direction will they point when Europe and China are rearmed?

Recent papers said the Greek rebels have 4000 more soldiers than when we started out to exterminate them. Straws in the wind. Your tax money down the drain. RILEY D. MOORE.

Intervention In Central America

Sumner Welles, former Undersecretary of State, has given repeated warnings in the past few months that situations are developing in Latin America, particularly in the Carribbean region, which endanger Pan American solidarity. The Bogota uprising was a dramatic indication of the troubled conditions existing in many countries due principally, as Mr. Welles has pointed out, to popular distress brought about by postwar economic maladjustments. Now a situation has developed in Central America that is of concern to all the American states and that demands immediate attention.

The charge is made by Nicaragua that the military junta of Costa Rica, the governments of Guatemala and Venezuela are conspiring to overthrow the governments of Nicaragua, Honduras and El Salvador. The Nicaraguan charge describes, with particulars as to numbers, bases, etc. the international force known as the "Caribbean Legion" which is is stated has been established in Central America with the assistance of the three accused governments.

Such activity would clearly be a violation of the non-intervention treaty adopted by all the American nations to the effect that a state would never "interfere directly or indirectly" in the domestic affairs of another state.

It will be remembered that the Latin American nations fought for this treaty as a protection against the United States after this country had intervened in the affairs of several Latin American countries. The treaty was adopted in Montevideo in 1933 and declarations reaffirming it have been made at practically every inter-American conference since that time.

The charter adopted at Bogota provided machinery for impartial investigation and for decision regarding methods of dealing with any threat to Pan America solidarity. Violation of the nonintervention treaty would clearly be such a threat. The Central American governments that believe their neighbors are conspiring against them should immediately and officially bring their charges before the Organization of American States.

Mr. Welles has urged in his columns that this course should be followed without delay. Everyone who supports the enlightened standards of Pan Americanism must advocate the same course.

It is extraordinary, and somewhat alarming, to find that criticism is being directed against Mr. Welles because he insists on respect for treaties and adherence to Pan American procedure. The assertion that he is siding with dictators and cares nothing for the suffering of the people under dictatorships in Nicaragua, Honduras and the Dominican Republic was featured in the letter signed Raoul J. Diaz which appeared in your paper on November 2.

Mr. Welles' record as a fighter for democratic principles, nationally and internationally, and for human welfare, is unassailable. He has repeatedly declared that the existence in any American republic of a dictatorship which stifles democracy is a potential menace to the peace of the other American republics.

Every person of democratic principles and decent instincts naturally wants the curse of dictatorships lifted from suffering people in our own hemisphere and throughout the world. But the desired end is not to be accomplished by violating treaties and by sending armed forces into countries to overthrow their governments.

Mr. Welles has given it as his opinion in recent columns that democracy will be more fully established in our own hemisphere as inter-American policies aid agricultural diversification, promote industrialization and raise living standards. Here is a way in which we of the United States can help to extend democracy in the Americas, for in any such enlightened policies the assistance of our Government is indispensable.

Missing Voter Mystery

By Malvina Lindsay

National Threat

NOW THAT all of the "how it happened" explanations are in, Americans are waking up to something more significant than the Truman upset. It is the surprisingly low vote in the recent election.

This vote of approximately 47½ million—about half the citizens of voting age—confuted some old wives' tales about elections as well as some modern "scientific" predictions. For example, legend has it:

That on a fair election day the Republicans win, on a rainy one the Democrats. (Presumably silk-stocking Republicans won't go to the polls in the rain—yet November 2 was not generally rainy in the United States.)

That a low turnout in an election helps the Republicans, hurts the Democrats. (Presumably the richer Republicans turn out to protect their interests, but the more numerous Democrats are inclined to be indifferent unless aroused over an issue or a candidate.)

And latter-day savants have been contending:

That as citizens get better educated and more prosperous, the more they vote. (On the basis of this, plus the normal gain in population, the voters' turnout November 2 was predicted at from 54 to 59 million.)

That voters will get to the polls to ballot for a President but are indifferent about congressional candidates. (Yet the interest this fall over many congressional seats helped get out the vote for President Truman.)

That the greatest number of stay-at-home voters who are apathetic over candidates and issues are those whose formal education has stopped at grade school. (Yet Governor Dewey maintains that from two to three million, supposedly educated Republicans stayed home.)

THE QUESTION of just who stayed home could be argued endlessly. One point of debate is whether more housewives turned out to reelect President Truman on the cost-of-living issue or more stayed home because of small children, domestic duties, or indifference. There is argument also over the young voters. Did their Roosevelt upbringing—and possibly their need for housing—send them to the polls in droves to vote for President Truman? Or were they part of the mass of stay-at-homes tied down with jobs and personal problems? Polls, for whatever they are worth now, show that as a rule persons less than 40 use their voting privilege much less than do older citizens.

Nothing can be done about the absentee voter by guesswork. But every effort should now be made by citizens' organizations, political parties, and even by researchers and pollsters, to find out which voters stayed home and why. For the voting record of this country in the last election and in the one of 1946 does not look good for this country before the world.

About 50 per cent of the 94.8 million Americans over 21 voted last November 2. This was a throwback in apathy to 1920, when 49 per cent voted. But in the years between the percentage of voters had been rising. In 1932 it was around 59 per cent, and in 1940 reached a high mark of 62. In 1944, despite the number of men overseas, the percentage was 60.

THIS HAD seemed to indicate that Americans were at last taking their voting duties seriously. But in 1946, an off-presidential year, there was an alarming slump at the polls—to around 35 million. (In 1938, the last mid-term election in peace, about 36 million had voted and 11 million persons over 21 had been added to the population between then and 1946.)

These two low turnouts may be excused in various ways, including the upsets of war, but their seriousness cannot be glossed over in a country which is the world's leading advocate of free elections. The bland assurance that when people get aroused sufficiently over something or their pocketbooks get flat "they'll vote all right" doesn't help matters now—and may be too late when it happens.

Nor does the promise that when citizens get up in the world they'll vote more hold much hope. In Montgomery County, Md., rated the best county in the country in rural citizens' education, homes, income, economic skills, only 10 per cent of eligible voters took part in last spring's primary.

Montgomery Charter

No longer is there any question about our local form of government; home rule has come home—the majority has spoken for the Montgomery County charter.

The charter committee acting as guard and guide, and the Democratic Party acting for all the people should select, for the people to vote for, men and women of known integrity, demonstrated ability, and proven success; men and women who will make the charter work, not sabotage its efforts, and not to be trojan horsemen or members of any tax pressure group.

The Democratic State Central Committee has again heard the majority speak and surely they will not fail to be realistic about the county, the tax rate, and the party. Since the Democratic State Central Committee was neutral before the election, they should now give the charter a hand, nominate seven Democrats, and make it work.

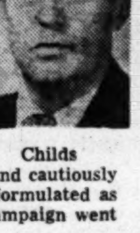
The Mass-Mind Myth



Childs

YOU CAN find a great many people now in the aftermath who knew it all along. The taxi driver, the housewife, the newspaper vendor on the corner, they all had a feeling, a hunch, that it was going to come out the way it did.

Their hunch was undoubtedly related to their own predilection for the Democratic candidate rather than the Republican candidate. That choice was slowly and cautiously and even secretly formulated as the weeks of the campaign went by.

These people didn't talk very much about their choice. And each one seems to have had the idea that he or she was pretty much alone, going against the trend as shown by all the polls and the "experts."

The cocksureness of the polltakers and the so-called experts overawed them except in that moment of ultimate privacy when the citizen steps in the polling booth and is alone. Now these same people are taking a quiet satisfaction in the overthrow of almost everyone who had for so long been telling them what they were thinking and why.

That, in my opinion, is one of the healthiest things about the political upset of last Tuesday. It undermined the tyranny of the polltaker and the arrogant expert prone to using the most revolting of all phrases, "the little people."

THIS IS a good time to look at where that benevolent tyranny was leading. It was essentially undemocratic or even antidemocratic. The tendency was to create a mass man—a mass mind at the dead level of mediocrity.

The effect was felt not in politics alone, but in almost every field of American life. Particularly in movies and in radio the polltaker, presuming to measure "audience reaction," had got in his deadly work.

The trend has been to eliminate everything that did not hit the broadest common denominators shown by human guinea pigs kept in New York and Hollywood laboratories. This was all based on the theory that there is a mass man, a typical example of "the little people." His response in laughter and tears, not to mention dollars, can be accurately gauged and the product of mass entertainment tailored to fit.

The trouble with this theory was that it doesn't hold water. Movies tailored to the mass man are not getting audiences. So many radios are silent these days that the industry is worried.

The fact is that the mass man is a myth just as "the little people" are an insufferable and condescending myth promulgated by those who insist on talking down to a mass audience. We are a people of widely diversified interests and convictions. Entertainers and politicians have grossly underestimated the range of response.

ONE of the reasons for last week's upset was, I believe, a resentment of the "papa knows-best" attitude of the bosses of the influence industry. Candidate Dewey seemed to come too close to being a product of this same influence industry as directed from Hollywood and New York. He appeared to be a careful political assembly job, made up of the elements that would please the mass man and with anything likely to displease him deliberately left out.

Too many of us who try to appraise trends talk to the bosses of the influence industry. We would do well to talk with others who live farther away from New York and Hollywood, such as Ellis Arnall of Georgia, who wrote an article in the September Atlantic Monthly called "The Democrats Can Win." It reads like the kind of hindsight now being so voluminously put forth.

This seems to me a serious matter calling for something more than a joke about eating crow. It indicates a major flaw. The mass man does not exist today. But if the American public, with all its varying interests, desires and sensibilities, is treated like a one-track, mass mind, then in time that may become the reality. And the mass mind, as has been pointed out, implies a master, a dictator, who will tell the mind what to think.

Some changes are in order, certainly changes in attitude. Let's not forget the noisy commentators who a short time ago flatly predicted that World War III would be under way by November 1. This may be what is called "showmanship." It may help to get a mass audience which sits before the radio waiting to be told what to feel, what to do.

But it destroys the confidence of the public in press and radio. And even more important, it may contribute to the mass mind, the robot, that refuses to think for itself.

Senator Stewart Plans To Practice Law

By The Associated Press

Senator Stewart (D., Tenn.), whose 10 years of service will end in December, said yesterday he is "not interested in any political job."

He told reporters he plans to return to Winchester and resume the practice of law.

He said he had heard reports he was being considered for the position of sergeant-at-arms for the Senate next year.

"There has been no offer of the post," he said, "but I am not interested in it anyway."

Matter Of Fact

Truman Intervenes For China

PRESIDENT Truman has already made his bow, inconspicuously but significantly, in his new role as the active shaper of American foreign policy. Almost before the ballots were counted, he wired to Washington from Independence, Mo., that in his opinion the crisis in China demanded positive American action. The policy-making dovecotes were considerably fluttered by the President's unexpected intervention.

The situation had been reviewed, however, before Truman's return in triumph to the White House. Before his departure for Key West, he issued his interim directive. It was a brief order that the Marine garrison should not be withdrawn from the Communist-threatened North China port of Tsingtao, and that all steps should be taken to get American arms to the forces still resisting the Communists in the North China area.

The positiveness and the speed of the President's action are both worthy of remark. For three years, the Far Eastern policy of the United States has largely consisted of alternate bouts of hand-wringing and advice from the sidelines. The theory that the best policy was, in effect, to have no policy at all, was strongly held in the Far Eastern division of the State Department. It was also stoutly maintained by Secretary of State George C. Marshall. Doubts as to this theory's validity have only begun to arise very recently, when total catastrophe in China began to seem imminent. The President's intervention implies that a serious search for a positive China policy will now be made.

ON THE other hand, the particular steps the President has taken emphatically do not constitute such a policy. The Navy first proposed evacuation of Tsingtao, to avoid conflict with the Communist forces, as long as six months ago. The Navy stand has been strongly opposed by the Army.

The President has now settled the dispute in favor of the Marines remaining at their posts. Perhaps the 3000 men who are now at Tsingtao may even be reinforced, if Vice Admiral Oscar C. Badger, commanding in China, considers this desirable. But the President's order does not require that Tsingtao be held at all costs. On the contrary, there is every reason to believe that unless American policy changes further, the Marines will be withdrawn if and when a genuine Communist offensive develops in the area.

The effort to expedite American aid to the non-Communist forces in North China also has peculiar overtones. The energetic ECA administrator for China, Roger Lapham, has recently been in Washington, pressing a plan to by-pass Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and to give direct aid to local Chinese forces resisting the Communists. Lapham's main motive is that the China leader, Gen. Fu Tso-Yi, is distrusted by the generalissimo, and has therefore not been supplied very liberally. Apparently the germ of Lapham's idea is contained in the Truman order, although no one seems to know whether or how the idea will be implemented.

IT IS thus obvious why the two steps ordered by Truman do not, in and of themselves, constitute a China policy. Holding the Marines at Tsingtao is a gesture, in the last analysis. And pressing for direct aid to such regional leaders as General Fu means encouraging the present tendency for these men to break away from the Generalissimo's National government. If this happens, the National government will collapse. China will be divided between a number of war lords and the Communists. And the Communists, being far the strongest and best organized single element, will then take on and destroy the war lords one by one, until they control all of China that matters.

The tragedy is that if the President had only ventured to beard Secretary Marshall in his den six months ago, instead of last week, an American effort in China might well have borne important fruit. While the State Department stood for the policy of having no policy, the Defense Department, and especially the Army, continued six months ago to advocate preventive American action. Now, however, the China situation has deteriorated to the point where even those who used to plead most strongly for action have begun to feel that American intervention will be a waste of effort and resources.

The gravity of this fact is hard to exaggerate. President Truman may want a positive China policy, but a policy can hardly be evolved when even China's friends assert that there is almost no hope.

The prediction now is that the Chinese Communists will eventually take all of China down to and including the Yangtse Valley, which is approximately like Communist occupation of all of the United States as far west as Kansas and Nebraska. By accepting this outcome, we may avoid a heavy investment in Chinese aid. But the altered world strategic situation will then demand far heavier investments elsewhere.

Pay Hike Lifts Longshore Strike Threat

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—A 10-cent hourly wage increase yesterday lifted the threat of a strike by 45,000 AFL East Coast longshoremen.

Agreement incorporating the pay hike in a new contract was reached by union and management representatives less than 24 hours before the men would have been permitted by law to strike. They had announced intention to do so.

The pact is subject to ratification by employers and by members of the International Longshoremen's Association.

A threatened walkout in the wage dispute had been held off for 2½ months by a Federal court "cooling-off" injunction issued under the Taft-Hartley Act.

In addition to raising the day-shift straight time hourly wage from $1.75 to $1.85, the agreement provides:

A 15-cent rise in the $2.61 hourly rate for night and weekend work; a one-year contract running from last October 1, and retroactive to last September 15; a guarantee of four hours' work when a longshoreman starts on the job; and liberalized vacations for men working 1250 or more hours a year.

The union originally demanded a pay increase of 50 cents an hour.

Stralla Claims Backing To End Pacific Strike

Beverly Hills, Calif., Nov. 9 (AP).—Tony Cornero Stralla, former "admiral" of the Southern California gambling fleet, today said he had obtained a majority of voting strength from ship owners and stevedores to end the West Coast maritime strike.

Stralla told reporters he has a contract with Harry Bridges, CIO longshore chief of the West Coast, and that a "majority of the major lines and the unions, based on the amount of cargo handled, have approved my plan for ending the shipping tie-up."

In San Francisco, Bridges said the contract he signed with Stralla was for loading and discharging cargo and there was no other agreement or understanding about anything else.

The contract, said Bridges, was precisely the same for handling commercial cargo as that signed by the Mutual Stevedoring Co., except an added pension feature jointly administered by the union and employer.

"He's just another shipowner to us," commented Bridges.

A spokesman for the Waterfront Employers' Association termed the Stralla proposal "utterly fantastic."

Mystery Station Promises Czechs News of World

By The Associated Press

A mysterious radio station broadcasting in the Slovak tongue from somewhere in Europe stirred official interest yesterday at the State Department.

Government monitors recorded the initial broadcasts of a "free and democratic Slovakia" station without pinning down its location. The first announcements said the station would try to supply Communist-dominated Czechoslovakia with news from "outside the iron curtain" but would not agitate for "non-sensical and hazardous political actions" against the present Czech regime.

American officials said presumably the station was started by Slovak refugees from the Communist regime which took control of Czechoslovakia last February.

Government monitors first spotted the clandestine station last Friday. Its programs have included cryptic code messages to undisclosed listeners.

Firm's Head Cites Gains in Profit Sharing

Chicago, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—Wendell W. Anderson, president of the Bundy Tubing Co. of Detroit, told the first annual conference of the Council of Profit-Sharing Industries today that a company plan for sharing cost savings with employes has a "tremendous" beneficial effect on employes' morale.

The cost savings sharing plan, in operation at Bundy since April, 1946, has shown "very gratifying results," he said.

Production increased 50 per cent, absenteeism and grievance time dropped about one half, labor turnover decreased 81.6 per cent, and employes turn in "hundreds" of suggestions for improvement of production methods, Anderson said.

Most important, employes have earned an average of 25 cents extra an hour during the last two years, he added.

Periodically the company accounts determine whether the wage costs per dollar have dropped; if so, employes share the savings with the company on a 50-50 basis.

Payment to each employe last year totaled $532.77, Anderson said, and since the plan was inaugurated the company has paid out $1,153,532.

Universal adoption of programs whereby workers could share in profits might double the national income, William Loeb, publisher of the New Hampshire Morning Union, told the meeting.

The main theme, he said, was that "every worker should be a capitalist through sharing in the profits he produces."

Petrillo, Firms Reach Accord On Removing Ban

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—The phonograph record companies and James C. Petrillo wrapped up final details yestetrday of their plan for ending the 10-month-old recording ban.

Frank White, president of Columbia Records and spokesman for the industry committee, announced agreement with Petrillo's American Federation of Musicians on a labor contract.

The union and the companies previously had come to terms on a trust agreement providing for payment of royalties from records into a form of union welfare fund. The fund will be administered by an impartial trustee to employ jobless musicians for free public concerts.

The labor contract and trust agreement will be submitted to the Attorney General's office in Washington tomorrow for a ruling on legality under the Taft-Hartley Act. Record companies are prepared to call in musicians and resume recording immediately if the arrangement is given a Government okay.

Homes Saved as California Fire Is Halted

Santa Ana, Calif., Nov. 9 (AP).—A firefighting army beat back flames today that had swept through the brush almost to within scorching distance of approximately 350 homes in Silverado Canyon.

Temporarily successful, and aided by decreasing winds, the weary forces redoubled their efforts to control the fire in unpopulated side canyons of the Santa Ana Mountains.

Three hundred men had formed a solid line atop a ridge between Ladd and Silverado Canyons. The fire was burning fiercely in Ladd and a couple of its tongues lapped over into Silverado. Flames crept down the side of Silverado toward the houses, many of them fine estates. At one point the fire was within 100 yards of Silverado Community Church.

The men dug furiously to create firebreaks, using bulldogers and hand tools. They had 38 pumper trucks available, and finally succeeded in running hose lines up the slope. They drenched the flames, beat them back up to the ridgetop.

Silverado Canyon lies about 50 miles southeast of Los Angeles. All its residents and those from other nearby areas—a total of some 1500 persons—were evacuated yesterday.

No U. S. Spot Seen Safe From A-Bomb

By Howard W. Blakeslee
Associated Press Science Editor

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—No place in the United States will be safe from atom bombs, the National Security Resources Board told the American Institute of Chemical Engineers today.

Ralph F. Dimmitt of the board told the chemists, who represent one of the largest sections of American manufacturing, that the Government proposes to work out the principles and then hopes to leave the solutions of atomic bomb defense to industry itself.

He sounded two hopeful notes. One, he said, is the expectation that there won't be enough uranium to make atomic bombs that can be used on anything except targets of the greatest importance. The other is a great start toward dispersal already made by industry. This scattering is the best protection.

He warned manufacturers planning new factories that in flat country they must consider that anything within a radius of three miles will be destroyed or damaged. In hilly country this distance can be cut in half.

He listed strategic material plants of all sorts as targets that might be bombed even if small. Also he predicted atom bombs so inflammable that they would spread a great fire.

Dr. R. S. Aries of the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn reported that since the war five billion dollars worth of new chemical plants have been built. He said California leads with 300 and Texas is second with 209. Much of the money has also been spent for plants in the South and Middle West, in areas previously considered dominantly agricultural. The largest relative increase in chemical plants has been in the Southwest.

A warning that rapid draining of American underground water is about to limit the areas where industry can locate was issued by S. T. Powell and G. G. von Lossberg of Baltimore. They said there is already an underground water drop in Louisville, Ky., due to alcohol, synthetic rubber and chemical industries. In eastern Texas so much underground water has been drawn off that land had sunk a foot to 18 inches over a considerable area.

Southern California has a similar water problem, they said, and also the Texas coast and Mexico City, where some buildings have sunk 8 to 10 feet below the city's level.

The Gallup Poll

Evils of Atom Dominate View Abroad

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 9.—People in foreign countries seem much less optimistic about the benefits of atomic energy than Americans are.

In England, Sweden, Holland and Australia the weight of opinion is that it will prove more of a curse than a blessing in the long run. In the United States, by contrast, the main feeling is that atomic energy will bring benefit rather than harm.

Surveys were conducted simultaneously in the four countries in late October on the question:

"Do you think that, in the long run, atomic energy will do more good than harm?"

	More Good	More Harm	No Opin.
Holland	25%	52%	23%
Sweden	26	48	26
England	33	41	26
Australia ...	36	46	18
United States	42	23	35

The American results in today's survey indicate considerable faith in the possibility of good in the atom, whereas the people interviewed in Holland seem to have the least confidence in any benefits from atomic fission. Americans probably derive comfort from the fact that the United States has a long lead in atomic research, whereas the other countries probably fear that their own first taste of atomic energy might be in the form of bombs if there is another war.

Shreve Sees Business In Doghouse 4 Years

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—The president of the United States Chamber of Commerce says "business is going to be in the doghouse for the next four years."

This assertion by Earl O. Shreve was made as he left by plane today for Paris. He did not amplify it.

Shreve will attend a council meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce, opening Saturday.

Shreve said America was "in for an additional spending spree." He said he thought "these expenditures should be reserved for possible depression years."

Does Stomach Gas and Bloat Make You Feel Miserable?

If so, here is how you may get blessed relief in freeing your stomach from this nervous distress. It works this way:

Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with overdoses of soda and other alkalizers to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Stocks Plunge 1 to 5 in New Selling Wave

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—The stock market dropped to the lowest level since late March today under a post-election pounding.

Leading issues plunged 1 to around 5 points, some to new lows for the year. Extreme losses piled up to about 6 at one time.

The retreat was strongly contested off and on but the weight of stock offerings was relentless. Just before the close enough buying power appeared to shave the days' widest losses but there was nothing like a full-scale rally.

Volume expanded to 2,260,000 shares from yesterday's 1,130,000. This was below the big sessions last week, when prices cracked in the first reaction to the election results, but still an unusually large amount of business.

Wall Street claimed that the pessimism generated among investors and speculators by the Democratic sweep has been intensified by the latest statements of Administration spokesmen.

The biggest fear created by the Truman victory, it is claimed downtown, was the threat to business profits. Specific programs outlined by Democratic leaders, they add, have strengthened that fear.

Business news itself continued in a highly favorable vein. The outlook is for sustained high level production, employment, income and spending. Corporation reports disclose record high earnings time and again, and dividends are being approved with a lavish hand. These angles were largely ignored. Instead emphasis was placed on such dispatches as these:

Housing Expediter Tighe Woods said he would ask the new Congress for tighter rent controls for at least another year.

Secretary of Labor Tobin said late Monday the Truman victory was a clear-cut mandate for flat repeal of the Taft-Hartley law and predicted Congress would "substitute a just law."

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed 2 points lower at 63.9. Not since March 29 has so low a level been reached. Bottom for the year was touched February 10, at 60.3.

Business Pitches Wrong Woo In Direct Pleas to Workers

By J. A. Livingston

FOR a long time, I have felt that American industry has been outsmarting itself. Now the election gives me the courage to say so. Business has been going in for hyper-subtle public relations—trying to show how fair, generous and broad-based it is.

Livingston

The National Association of Manufacturers will put out an advertisement or a brochure declaring that profits are small in relation to sales. General Electric will advertise a price cut. Union Oil of California will compute how little goes to shareholders. N. W. Ayer will imply that executives work themselves up from the bottom. Or the New York Stock Exchange will say we're all stockholders—farmers, laborers, store clerks, schoolteachers, as well as brokers, bankers and corporation lawyers.

Like Dewey's political campaign, these appoaches all have a common fault. They don't ring true to the worker. The statements conflict with what workers hear from union leaders. When Philip Murray and Walter Reuther say that corporation profits are unconscionably high, workers won't listen to United States Steel, General Motors, or the National City Bank of New York. The worker isn't going to pore over a balance sheet or income account to see who's right.

GEORGE W. TAYLOR, professor of industry at the University of Pennslyvania and onetime chairman of the War Labor Board, makes the point this way: "Patriotism at Harward is to hell with Yale. And patriotism in a labor union is to hell with management." Thus, in 1945-46 General Motors advertised a wage offer direct to union members. The result was resentment, not cheers. The workers rallied around Reuther—not against him—and they elected him president of the union. Similarly, Dewey tried to sell rank-and-file labor on the idea that the Taft-Hartley Act wasn't too bad. You should see what Steel Labor, magazine of the United Steelworkers of America, had to say about Dewey as the result.

The moral for management is obvious. If you can't lick Murray, Reuther, et al., collaborate with them. What the N.A.M., Union Oil of California, General Electric, etc., have been doin is clear enough. They've been trying to win the confidence of the workers by preaching simple economics. They hope to convince union members on what's good for the country, so that the members, in turn, will direct their leaders. That doesn't seem to work.

CONFIDENCE of workers is something that management cannot win by studied effort or by public relations. It's something that develops. If a company provides steady year-in, year-out employment, the worker will feel loyal. If its products are accepted, if the worker can feel proud in saying, "I work for Westinghouse," or "I turn out Philco radios," the worker will feel loyal. If working conditions are good, if foremen are intelligent and fair, again the workers will be loyal. Workers feel loyal to a company as an institution, as a way of life, as a place of security. When it comes to hours of work, wages, and pensions, the worker listens to his union leader. That's why he hired him.

As I see it, corporate public relations should begin at the top, not the bottom. Don't try to convince the workers they're well paid. They'll listen to their union leaders on that. Don't tell them they're stockholders. Most of them know they aren't. And during an inflation, don't tell them prices are low. Anyone who buys anything, whether he gets $200,000, $20,000 or $2,000 a year, thinks he's paying too much.

THE JOB is to convince Murray and Reuther and Emil Rieve and so on that profits are reasonable; that prices are right. If the company needs to hold on to earnings because the stock market won't supply new capital, then union leaders must understand the problem as well as management. If the company is fearful that its break-even point is too high, that it has to build up a reserve, that's the labor leader's problem, too. He's interested in job stability. In short, economic perspective and understanding must begin at the collective bargaining table—and not in letters to employes.

The perfect letter to workers, the perfect ad in newspapers and magazines, would be one signed by both the president of the company and the president of the union. Then most persons would be predisposed to believe it. The result would be a bridge between labor and management—not a wedge.

Coal, Oil, Gas Trades Urged To Cooperate

Chicago, Nov. 9 (AP).—The American Petroleum Institute was told today that the coal, oil and natural gas industries should share their markets.

In the interest of "sound, long-range planning, war or peace," R. H. Hargrove, president of the Texas Eastern Transmission Corp., Shreveport, La., proposed:

1. That the natural gas industry be encouraged to expand in the heating fuel field.
2. That the petroleum industry shift its emphasis to transportation, mobile power and military requirements.
3. That the coal industry turn its efforts to research and technological improvements.

Hargrove said fuel oils are far more adaptable to military needs than other fuels and that natural gas should be permitted to "assume the burden it is technically suited to assume." He added:

"The responsibilities of the whole fuel industry can be met adequately and timely only through the determined cooperation and joint efforts of its three components—oil, gas and coal—within the traditional free-enterprise framework of our national economy. And that cooperation must begin now in order to be ready for the demands which will be upon us tomorrow."

Hargrove said coal is losing its share of the fuel market because "instead of being able to cut prices in the face of superior competing fuels, it has raised them."

U. S. to Invite Bids On Seized Rayon Stock

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Sealed bids for the Government's majority holdings in the American Bemberg Corp. and the North American Rayon Corp. will be invited in about a month, an official of the Office of Alien Property said.

Malcolm S. Mason, chief of the office's legal branch, made the announcement as stockholders of the two companies approved creation of new series of stocks containing provisions to restrict stock ownership to American nationals only.

Major portions of stock in the companies were seized by the Government pursuant to the trading with the Enemy Act.

Mason declined to say whether large rayon cloth weavers will be permitted to enter bids for the stock, pointing out that terms of the sale will be determined by the Justice Department's antitrust division.

Pay Ceilings Proposal Is Defeated at Macy's

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Proposals to put ceilings on executive salaries or pension and profit-sharing compensation were defeated today at the annual meeting of R. H. Macy & Co. stockholders.

The defeated stockholder proposals would have limited executive salaries to $75,000 a year and established a $10,000 a year ceiling as total compensation under the present pension plan or profit-sharing system.

New York Cotton

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Cotton futures today fluctuated nervously over a range of $1.30 a bale and closed 30 cents a bale lower to 10 cents higher. Only nearby December managed to show a gain on the day.

Renewed weakness in securities brought in flurries of commission house and local liquidation.

Best prices and gains extending to 50 cents a bale came after reports that chairmen of the congressional agricultural committees will seek a permanent high support price on basic agriculture commodities.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Nov. 9 (AP).—Grain futures moved ahead again today after absorbing profit-taking sales.

Export buying was the main influence in the upturn in both corn and wheat. Wheat also was encouraged by news that the Government has requested mill offerings of flour for delivery at Atlantic ports, for acceptance tomorrow morning.

France was reported to have purchased four cargoes of corn—about 1,440,000 bushels—overnight. That country also was reported to have bought some wheat, but traders understood it declined offerings of soybeans.

Wheat closed ¾ higher to ¼ lower; corn was up ⅛ to 1⅛; oats were unchanged to 1⅛ higher; rye was unchanged to ⅛ off; soybeans were unchanged to 1 higher, and lard was 33 cents a hundred pounds lower to 15 cents higher.

Stassen Expected To Enter '52 Race

Clarksboro, N. J., Nov. 9 (U.P.).—A close associate of Harold E. Stassen said yesterday that the former Minnesota Governor was still in the political picture and probably would seek the Republican presidential nomination in 1952.

The statement was made by Amos J. Peaslee, who was Stassen's eastern campaign manager before the Republican convention here last summer. Stassen, who is president of the University of Pennsylvania, has been "unavailable" since the election last week.

Peaslee intimated that if Stassen had been the Republican candidate this year instead of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, the GOP would have defeated President Truman.

"Stassen will be in the political picture in 1952," Peaslee said. "As the third-ranking contender at the convention last June, a man who at 41 years enjoyed the popular support wider than his vote indicated, he surely will be in a top flight position among the presidential potentials when the time comes for thinking about Mr. Truman's successor.

"Both during and since the convention in Philadelphia, Stassen has made it plain he will continue in his efforts to build a liberal, forward-looking constructive party.

"His present duties as President of the University of Pennsylvania were accepted with a complete understanding by the university authorities that public service ranks even higher than service as an educator."

Man Charged in Assault Death

Bennie L. Griffin, 32, of 2120 S. 2d st., Arlington, yesterday was charged with murder in the death of a 65-year-old county resident he is accused of striking Friday night.

The victim, Audie Carroll of 829 S. Glebe rd., was struck in an argument after his and Griffin's autos collided Friday on Wilson blvd. at N. Fillmore st.

Carroll died about 9:30 a. m. yesterday in Arlington Hospital. County Coroner Dr. W. C. Welburn said death was due to a skull fracture and brain hemorrhage.

Griffin, an auto mechanic in an Arlington motor company, faces a preliminary hearings today in Arlington County Court, at which time his bond will be set.

Carroll, for the past five years a civilian clerk and auditor at the Fort Myer Exchange, had lived in Arlington during that period. Earlier, he had worked as a hotel auditor in Danville, Va.

A direct descendant of Charles Carroll, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, he was born in Cherryville, N. C.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Gaye Carroll, and seven brothers: V. L. Carroll of Oakland, Calif.; Clarence and Roy Carroll of Lewiston, Idaho; J. W. Carroll of Andrews, S. C.; Charles L. Carroll of Eatonton, Ga., and O. L. and Hunter Carroll of Cherryville.

Funeral services will be held at 4 p. m. today in Chatham, Va.

Schools Asked To Arm Youth For Idea War

By the United Press

Gen. Omar N. Bradley asked United States educators yesterday to give the United States a foundation of security by helping American youth meet constant and continuing attacks on democratic ideals and institutions.

The Army chief of staff addressed the annual meeting of the Association of Land Grant Colleges, attended by representatives from the 48 States, Alaska, Puerto Rico and Hawaii.

He said the United States, having developed the "greatest mass of destructive weapons of all time," must assume full moral and social responsibility in world affairs. American educators, he asked, must help guide the Nation to that end.

Bradley also said he would like to see 600 ROTC graduates choose the Army as a career each year. He said that number is needed, together with the 350 lieutenants graduated annually from West Point, to meet the Army's officer needs.

President Lewis Webster Jones of the University of Arkansas said national survival "depends upon how well we can do the job of education." Each student, he said, should be taught responsibility for "defense of the culture which has nourished him."

Jones was a member of the President's commission on higher education, which has recommended increased aid to education.

Tar Heels Figure Maryland Game Really BIG ONE

The Washington Post Sports
16 Wednesday, November 10, 1948.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

CALAMITY JIM TATUM, the Maryland coach who would have you believe his po' li'l lads deserve a citation for gallantry for even showing up against North Carolina at Griffith Stadium on Saturday, subscribes to none of that tripe himself.

POVICH

That Tatum dirge for public listening becomes a buoyant tune with the change of venue to the practice field at College Park where all week he has been telling his big Maryland kids they can slap down North Carolina by a couple of touchdowns, if they're of a mind to.

Yesterday, for instance, he had 'em practicing points-after-touchdown, a tipoff that Tatum doesn't expect Carolina to do all the scoring. He has mustered a special point-after-touchdown team that bears no relation to the two offensive and defensive units popular with most coaches.

It's a Tatum innovation. When and if Maryland scores, a new eleven-man unit takes the field for the extra-point attempt. The line is comprised of six tackles, averaging 220, and one center. He pulls two big ends into the backfield as blocking backs. A fourth-string quarterback holds the ball, and a fourth-string guard does the kicking.

FOUR DAYS before the two teams take the field, the Maryland-North Carolina game is already a sensation. It's going to sell out Griffith Stadium's 36,000 seats for the first time in the history of college football, apparently. More than 30,000 tickets have already been sold and Maryland is serving up a vigorous answer to the oft-asked question of what's wrong with college football in Washington.

Apparently there's nothing wrong with college football here that the proper kind of attraction can't cure. Such as unbeaten North Carolina, with its Charley Justice and Hosea Rodgers, meeting up with a Maryland team that's apt to lick it, is sheer magnetism for Washington fans. College football wasn't dead here, merely dormant, until such as Tatum could come along with a football team playing somebody of importance.

The person who might have suggested a couple of years ago that a college game would outdraw a Redskin game would have been viewed as a candidate for the violent ward. But that is apt to happen this weekend with the Redskins having drawn as few as 29,000 this year and unlikely to fill the park Sunday against the Detroit Lions. And Maryland has no large season ticket sale going for it.

IN THE WEEK before what could be Maryland's finest hour—a victory over North Carolina and a lucrative Bowl invitation—Tatum, the old fundamentalist, has reverted to fundamentals. The basic business of making tackles has occupied the Terrapins this week, with Tatum drilling into his lads the necessity of making their tackles stick, particularly against Justice and Rodgers.

"No one tackler has brought down Justice or Rodgers all season," said Tatum. "The only way to stop those guys is to stop them cold—hit 'em in the middle, not too low, not too high." There has been nothing very wrong about Maryland's tackling this year, but they've never met up with such as Justice and Rodgers, Tatum means. He doesn't mean that his po' li'l Marylands should incapacitate the Tar Heel pair, but it would be nice if they could slow 'em up a lot.

"We're the unluckiest club," moans Tatum. He was talking about the 7-7 tie in which North Carolina figured against William and Mary last week. "Why does it have to happen to us?" Tatum inquired somewhat strangely, inasmuch as his Maryland team was playing down in South Carolina the same day, and won nicely. But Tatum is fearful tha ta miffed N. C. team will rebound this week and vent its spleen against the Terrapins.

TATUM WOULD HAVE you think his Marylanders are outclassed. "Sure, we won six out of seven this year, but who did we lick?" he inquires. "Nobody very good, and after we lose to Duke, that Duke club takes a beating from Georgia Tech and then Wake Forest, so you figure it out." Tatum, however, neglected to mention that his Marylands whipped Duke on all counts except the final score and then lost out only 13-12.

"We haven't got a back who can go the whole way for us since we lost Lu Gambino," he grumbles. However, Maryland has been averaging 340 yards per game, so some of his backs have been going places with considerable success, it was suggested. "But nobody goes the whole distance," Tatum moans. "All we get is 5 or 10 yards at a clip." Now isn't that too bad.

Adventure Comes Back To Win Open Hunter Title

By Austin Bealmear

New York, Nov. 9.—Adventure, a 4-year-old chestnut gelding who couldn't quite make the grade in his own division, squared accounts tonight by deflating all the older foxchasers and taking the Open Hunter championship as the sixtieth National Horse Show came to a close before a crowd of 12,000 at Madison Square Garden.

The young star of Mrs. E. Cooper Person's Llangollen Farms at Upperville, Va., swept through the $2000 Open Hunter Stake, most important of the 14 events counting in the conformation division, to win going away, with a total of 24½ points.

It was a tremendous comeback for Adventure, his owner, the former Mary Elizabeth Whitney, and his rider, Ellie Wood Keith of University, Va., who handled him throughout the show.

Having missed the young hunter title by only half a point earlier in the day, Adventure entered tonight's final rounds with a slim lead of the same margin over Portmaker, who won the Open Hunter title in 1946 and reserve honors last year and was a preshow favorite.

But Portmaker finished out of the money in tonight's stake and had to be content with the reserve championship on a total of 15½ points. It was the second reserve title of 1948 for Portmaker, who also has won seven championships in his nine appearances at various shows this year.

Copperfield Third

Miss Keith, a veteran of the show ring, also rode Adventure's stablemate, Safety Call, to second place in the stake. Gold Lode, from the Montreal Stables of Canadian hotel man Vernon G. Cardy, was fourth.

Third place in the final standings went to Copperfield, a bay gelding owned by Mr. and Mrs. W. Haggin Perry of Cobham, Va., with 14 points, one more than Bright Light, from the Seven Stars Stable at Southern Pines, N. C.

Goldwick, an aged chestnut gelding from Virginia, emerged as the finest of the working hunters today.

Owned and ridden throughout the show by Lieut. Col. W. Randolph Tayloe of Boyce, Va., Goldwick piled up 18 points in the eight events figuring in the championship, three of which he won outright.

A Southern sweep of the three hunter titles was prevented earlier in the day when Glen Erin, a 5-year-old chestnut gelding from the Greenwich, Conn., barns of Joseph A. Hale, captured the championship for young hunters over Llangollen Farms' Adventure by half a point.

Velvet Lassie, a 7-year-old bay mare from the Folly Farms of Mrs. Hubert Thomas at Carmel, Ind., won the coveted open jumping title as Sun Beau finished second best for the second straight year.

Although she could do no better than third place in tonight's $2000 open jumping stake, Velvet Lassie piled up enough points in the earlier events to carry her to the championship left undefended by Poppy, a Canadian jumper who won last year at the age of 22.

Hi-Ho Silver Third

Third place in the final standings went to Hi-Ho Silver, a grey gelding shown by Mr. and Mrs. William H. Sampson of Richmond, Va., who had 11 points although he finished out of the money in the stake.

Flamingo, a pinto owned and ridden by Morton W. (Cappy) Smith of Middleburg, Va., placed fourth in the stake and tied for fourth in the standings with his stablemate, Request. Each had a total of 10 points.

Reserve honors in the working division on 11½ points went to Brandywine, another aged chestnut gelding who last year won the high score award for Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Baldwin of West Chester, Pa.

Neither Goldwick nor Brandywine was able to take the $1000 working hunter stake, however. That honor in the most important event of the division was grabbed off today by Magno, a grey gelding shown by Mr. and Mrs. John C. Kehoe, jr., of Centermoreland, Pa. But the seven points earned by Magno still left him in fourth place in the overall scoring.

Glen Erin Wins

The young hunter title was not decided until the final event of

Pimlico Holds 'Upset Tuesday'

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 9.—The tune that goes "Hair of Gold, Eyes of Blue and Lips Like Cherry Wine" was a fitting theme song for this old Hilltop track after a wild day at the races.

Gold—Came in heaps to those select few who figured in the avalanche of long shots.

Blue—Were the favorite players as they wended their weary way homeward through the mucky twilight.

Cherry Wine — Well, it was enough to make both winners and losers hit the bottle.

As was the case on election day, this was Upset Tuesday.

If you are a doubter, here are some of the high spots:

$607.80—the pay-off on the combination of 4 and 2 in the daily double.

$100.80, $42.80, $22.80—represents the across-the-board return on Mrs. L. M. Carver's Eagle Speed, winner of the fourth race.

$136, $53.20—the place and

Two Payoffs Go Over $100 Mark

show mutuels on T. Tusco's Jay Tee, second to Eagle Speed, and a 250-to-1 shot to win.

$105.20, $30.80, $13.40 — the return for $2 through the line on Mrs. B. F. Lister's Atomic Wave, winner of the seventh race.

The upsets included one that came in the $5000 added Heiser Handicap but it was of a mild nature.

Michigan Tops Irish Again

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Hail the "big four" of college football—Michigan, Notre Dame, Army and California.

In just that order, these unbeaten, untied powerhouses pushed to the front yesterday in the weekly Associated Press Poll.

Completing the top 10 in order are Penn State, North Carolina, Southern Methodist, Northwestern, Oklahoma and Clemson—all except Clemson either beaten or tied.

Michigan supplanted the South Bend Irish as the No. 1 team, gaining the temporary upper hand in their dual tug o' war that carried over two seasons.

Penn State leaped from fourteenth to fifth on its 13-0 conquest of previously unblemished Pennsylvania. Penn dropped from seventh to seventeenth.

Oklahoma and Clemson are the other newcomers to the select circle. The Sooners, conquerors of Missouri, moved from fifteenth to ninth, tumbling Missouri to twentieth. Clemson slipped into the tenth spot and Georgia Tech, upset by Tennessee, fell from sixth to eleventh to make room.

Buffalo Loses To Lions, 4-2

A brilliant last period defense, led by Goalie Lew Crowdis brought the Washington Lions their third victory of the season and redeemed an earlier 10-0 whitewash by their last night's victims, the Buffalo Bisons. The score was 4-2.

The sething battle, broiling all during the game in which 14 penalties were handed out, culminated in a full-fledged fist fight late in the third period between Joe Ciuman and Freddy Hunt. Both were banished for five minutes.

The Lions were never behind after 18:40 of the first period when Frank Porteous tied the score at 1-1. The 18th minute of the second period saw the Lions go ahead on Dave McGuires' shot. Buffalo pulled up even in the third period and stayed there until Ciuman gave the Lions a permanent lead at 8:29.

The Lions last goal was a gift from the Bugalo coach, Toe Blake. Blake yanked his goalie in the last thirty seconds of the game and when Pat Foley found himself with the puck in Buffalo ice, it was 4-2, Lions.

The Lion deals yesterday also moved Spike Babey out to Oakland on the West Coast. In exchange, the Lions got another forward, Harry Frost. Defenseman Hank Goldup, obtained at the beginning of the season from the Cleveland Barons, has been returned. The two newcomers will join the team tomorrow.

Celtics Win; Mikan Gets 29

Boston, Nov. 9 (AP).—The Boston Celtics romped to a 77-55 Basketball Association of America victory over the Minneapolis Lakers at the Boston Garden tonight, despite the 29 points turned in by George Mikan, the visitors' ace.

After trailing, 15-14, at the end of the opening period, the Celtics got the range and built up a lead steadily. Gene Stump led the Celtics' attack with 23 points and Mel Riebe contributed 18. The Celts led 37-26 at halftime.

Bullets Beat Jets

Indianapolis, Nov. 9 (AP).—The Champion Baltimore Bullets of the basketball association of America weathered a closing blast by the Indianapolis Jets to win a 65-64 victory tonight.

A free throw by player-coach Buddy Jeannette, one of two chances he got in the last few seconds, was the winning point. Jeannette scored 22 points.

Warriors Win, 92-84

Philadelphia, Nov. 9 (AP).—Aided by a seven point second period spurt which gave them a lead they never relinquished, the Philadelphia Warriors outscored the Providence Steamrollers 92-84, in a Basketball Association of America game tonight before 2573 fans.

N. C. Matches Terp Offense With Defense

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

The Nation's seventh best offensive team—that's Maryland—will butt heads with the country's second best defensive club—that's North Carolina—at Griffith Stadium Saturday.

This was the statistical fillip added to the pre-game build-up yesterday by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau, a figure foundry which carries out to three decimal places practically everything a football player does.

Terps Roam Far

Maryland, against the defenses of Delaware, Richmond, VPI, Duke, George Washington, Miami and South Carolina, has roamed 372.3 yards an afternoon.

The Carolinians, meanwhile, stacked against a beter class of opposition such as Texas, Georgia, LSU, Tennessee, Wake Forest, N. C. State and William and Mary, have yielded only 141.3 yeards per game.

On the basis of these calculations, the game should be played around the 50-yard line. End zone customers, however, shouldn't be disturbed over the likelihood of this taking place because it won't.

Both Bowl Hopeful

In addition to matching two bowl conscious teams, one unbeaten, but tied and the other trimmed once, the stadium scuffle is also a collision between two statistical Goliaths.

For instance:

Rushing offense: Maryland's 281.4 yards per game makes it sixth in country.

Rushing defense: The Tar Heel are quite terrific in this depart-

Knicks Lose, 60-56

St. Louis, Nov. 9 (AP).—With Coach Grady Lewis scoring the last two points, the St. Louis Bombers nosed out the New York Knickerbockers, 60 to 56, tonight in a Basketball Association of America game.

The New Yorkers led by 16 points at one time during the first half, then fell behind in a 25-point scoring flurry by the Bombers in the third quarter.

6000 Devout Carolina Fans Coming Here For Struggle

By Noel Houston

Chapel Hill, N. C., Nov. 9.—North Carolina's Tar Heels and their worried coaches figure that Saturday's game with Maryland will be the really BIG ONE—the all-or-nothing game for spinning out their dream of a great undefeated football season.

With so much at stake, 6000 devout North Carolnia followers will troop into Griffith Stadium in Washington, breathing fervent but trembling prayers that their bowl-ward-charging Tar Heel team will be granted the power to repulse the rising Terrapins of Maryland.

With football fever never before at such a height in the North State, the caravan of students and alumni will be the largest ever to accompany a University of North Carolina team invading foreign territory.

Even Confederate Flags

More than 5000 tickets allotted Tar Heel partisans have vanished from the racks at Woollen Gymnasium here, and those who waited too long for these seats are winging wires to Maryland and Washington for reservations.

The host of rooters will bring along the school's 110-piece band and its pretty drum majorettes, the big ram mascot, Rameses, a dozen cheerleaders of both sexes, as well as hundreds of Confederate flags to wave, on the theory that everything available will be needed to throw into this climatic fray.

As an indication of how the flashy Carolina team has caught the fancy of sports-minded people in this State, where three or four first class games are on tap almost any Saturday, 43,000 fans were attracted to the William and Mary-North Carolina battle last Saturday, while only 20,000 were drawn to a slam-bang thriller between Duke and Wake Forest only 12 miles away.

What Happened Saturday?

The outcome of the W. and M. game wasn't happy, of course. By valiantly holding Carolina to a 7-7 standoff, the Virginians spoiled the Tar Heels first chance for a wholly perfect season in exactly half a century.

Over the weekend this little village echoed with the painful outcries of "what happened?" But those laments have faded now in favor of the anxious question, heard everywhere on the campus, of "what will happen next Saturday.

One thing Carolina backers are sure will happen: With Terp Coach Jim Tatum, once a Tar Heel player, licking his chops in anticipation of swallowing alive his former mentor, Carl Snavely, steadily-improving Maryland will be certain to put on its greatest performance of the season.

And it's no comfort to reflect that two measly missed points after touchdowns in the early game with Duke are all that kept Maryland from being undefeated this fall to date.

Sure Terps Will Score

If Carolina's two greats, Tailback Charlie Justice and Fullback Hosea Rodgers, miss with their passes as badly as they did last week, and if Maryland devises a defense to stop Justice's heart-stopping runs, as W. and M. so effectively did, then probably the

Editor's Note: Noel Houston will be remembered by readers of The Washington Post for the revealing pregame series of articles he wrote on the Maryland-North Carolina game of a year ago.

His stories caused such consternation in Chapel Hill that his best friends wouldn't speak to him—until the Tar Heels won, 19-0.

Marx Pops Off, Pretty Girl Makes Flight With Rams

Los Angeles, Nov. 9 (AP).—The autumn dream of many a sports minded American girl will come true this week for pretty Barbara Schieble, 19-year-old elevator operator.

Thanks to irrepressible Comedian Groucho Marx and a curious twist of affairs, Barbara tomorrow will fly to New York with the Los Angeles Rams professional football team as the sole feminine passenger, and if a rule or two can be waived, will sit on the players' bench when the team plays the New York Giants at the Polo Grounds Sunday.

Then, with the 51 males, she'll fly back to Los Angeles.

It all came about when Miss Schieble, employed at a department store, and Tom Keane, handsome halfback from Bellaire, Ohio, were selected as contestants on Marx's "You Bet Your Life" radio program.

Keane and Barbara had never met before, and when Groucho heard that the girl had never seen a professional football game, he promptly invited her to sit on the Rems' bench at the game Sunday.

Groucho was the most surprised when Keane reminded him that the game was to be played in New York, but he promptly recovered and invited her to make the trip.

All this was without the knowledge of the Ram management, but later young Dan Reeves, millionaire owner of the club, was told of Groucho's invitation and approved the plan.

Wake Forest Accepts Bid To Dixie Bowl

Birmingham, Nov. 9 (UP).—The Dixie Bowl got a jump on the rest of the field today by selecting Wake Forest, a Southern Conference power, to play in its New Year's Day game.

Dixie Bowl officials said that Wake Forest Coach D. C. (Peahead) Walker and the school's athletic board had agreed to send the team here New Year's Day, and that contracts were mailed today.

The 27-20 victory of Wake Forest over Duke last Saturday caught the fancy of the Bowl game selection committee. That win following Wake Forest's 34-14 triumph over North Carolina State the previous week marked Coach Douglas C. Walker's team as one of the outstanding.

In all, Wake Forest has won five games and lost two this season, beating George Washington, 27-13; William and Mary, 21-12; Duquesne, 41-15; North Carolina State, 34-13; and Duke, 27-20.

The team lost to Boston College, 26-9, and to North Carolina, 28-6. It still must meet Clemson and South Carolina.

Holt Rast, chairman of the Dixie Bowl committee, said Oklahoma, Missouri, Baylor and Villanova were under consideration as opponents for Wake Forest in the game.

Bout With George At Stake Tonight

The high honor of meeting Gorgeous George, the coiffured, sweet-smelling Hollywoodian who does his training in a beauty parlor, awaits the winner of tonight's Turner's Arena feature wrestling bout between Laverne Baxter and Marvin Mercer.

Channel No. 5 makes his debut in Washington at Turner's next Wednesday night.

The lead-off bouts tonight include Wilbur Nead against Fritz Ziefried, Herman Rubenstein against Buck Jones, Michele Leone against Phil Gruber, and Ivan Kamaroff against Steve Gob.

Bob Davies, Holtzman Lead Royals

Red Auerbach's unbeaten Caps meet the Rochester Royals, another newcomer to Basketball Association of America circles, at 8:45 o'clock tonight at Uline Arena.

Rochester, runnerup to Minneapolis in the National League last season, also has a 1.000 average but has played only one game. They defeated Indianapolis, 69-58.

Led by Bob Feerick, fourth leading BAA scorer with 48 points, the Caps crushed three league opponents—Philadelphia, Providence and Minneapolis—and top the Eastern division.

Tallest Yet for Caps

The visiting Royals are the tallest combination yet to invade Uline, they average 6-feet, 4½ inches. Two former collegiate All-Americans, Seton Hall's Bob Davies and Red Holzman of CCNY, spark the colorful combination.

But Arne Johnson, 6-foot 5-inch forward, grabbed the early scoring lead by making 11 points in Rochester's opener. Real skyscrapers of the lanky squad are Arnold Risen and Mike Novak 6-feet-9.

As usual, Philadelphia's Joe Fulks is leading pointmaker in the BAA. The Warriors' great shot has tallied 95 points in four games for a 23.8 average.

Feerick Has 20 for 20

Trailing him are Teammates Ed Sadowski, 55, and Angelo Musi, 51. Then comes Washington's Bob Feerick with 14 field goals and 20 out of 20 free throw attempts.

Bones McKinney, seventh in individual scoring, is runnerup to Feerick with 43 points. Other leading Cap contributors are Fred Scolar, 34, Johnny Norlander, 30, Kleggie Hermsen, 30, and Sonny Hertzberg, 18.

After tonight's game, the Caps move over to Baltimore to meet the defending champion Bullets then return to Uline Saturday night to face powerful Fort Wayne, another National League newcomer.

often a quitter during his early career, showed that his recent staying form was not a flash in the pan when he struck by his running guns and won the twelfth staging of the event. Drawing out in the stretch run after turning back several challenges, the son of Swashbuckler led six other Maryland-foaled sprinters into the wire.

Sivaree finished a length and a half in front of a tight photo for second in which the camera gave the nod to Christiana Stables' Mark Up over Gustave Ring's Kitchen Police.

Third choice in the betting, Shivaree returned a $10.80 mutuel and was clocked in 1:10 3-5, fastest time for the Heiser and two fifths over the track record for 6 furlongs held by the Pincher. The track was fast but the skies were overcast as a crowd of 11,500 watched the action.

Shivaree went to the top at once but had Tony's Find and Mark Up pressing him after the first few jumps. Tony's Find dropped back, but Kitchen Police rushed up to challenge. Shivaree, Mark Up and Kitchen Police then raced head and head to the stretch, where Shivaree responded to Jockey Ernest Wood's handling to draw out gradually approaching the wire.

The victory was the sixth this year in 16 tries for the 5-year-old and was worth $4490 to bring Shivaree's earnings to $20,745.

The program opened in a soft chord. H. Lewis 3d's Undercut, ridden by Beverley Hacker, onetime Charles Town pride, took the first race at a mere $10.20 mutuel. Then came the day's first big surprise. Bill Norton's Straight Flush, after performing recently like the deuce of spades, awoke to the tune of a $37 win mutuel that put the finish touches on the masterful daily double payoff.

A public choice got home in the steeplechase when Greek Flag in the Brookmeade Stable colors scored by 10 lengths at $4.40. Then followed the Eagle Speed, Jay Tee Hokus Pokus, both of the juveniles doing a form flip-flop.

Normalcy in prices was regained in the fifth event when Mrs. H. H. Hecht's Chaldia was the winner at $9.60 under Jockey Mike Basile's good handling. The sixth was the aforementioned Shivaree victory and the seventh brought the explosion of Atomic Wave at better than 50-to-1.

A mild favorite took the day's finale, Apprentice Willie Gilbert booting Knollswood Stable's Second Try to the wire at $6.50.

Gilmer Throws Crutches Away

Harry Gilmer, injured Redskins' prize rookie who hasn't been able to see a minute's league action this season, finally threw his crutches away yesterday.

Both Gilmer and the 'Skins, who reportedly are paying him $80,000 for five years, optimistically think the former Alabama All-American may be able to play in the last game or two this year.

Naturally cautious, Dr. Alex F. Castro, team physician, said he wants to wait and see how Gilmer's right leg holds up when he starts running. The fear is that a considerable muscle area is affected.

Injured in a training camp scrimmage August 14, Gilmer developed a blood clot on his leg. Infection set in and the healing process was a painfully slow one.

Coolidge Meets Western Today

Scholastic football, heretofore played only on Friday and Saturday, has two games on today's agenda.

In an Interhigh League tilt, Calvin Coolidge journeys to Western for a 3:15 p. m. game. Western has a 2-3 record, and can gain a tie for fourth place with McKinley Tech by winning. A victory for Coolidge would be its second in six games, and would jump the Colts into a tie for fifth with Western.

Chamberlain Vocational High makes its first start since the death two weeks ago of its star halfback George Sullivan. It travels to Annapolis to engage St. Mary's High.

Armstrong Grabs Reggie Lee, NTS Three-Sport Star

Six high school coaches, like professional scouts, flocked to National Training School to lure athlete Reggie Lee their way, but Armstrong Tech walked off with the prize.

The rush to nab the 16-year-old Lee was precipitated by an October 29 story in The Washington Post describing him as the greatest athlete in N. T. S. history.

The 5-foot 10-inch, 155-pound athlete was a 16-point per game basketball player, a 17-strikeout per game southpaw pitcher, and a halfback who passed 60 yards and punted 80 last year.

Son of Skrip Lee, former Negro National League pitching star, Reggie was to remain at N. T. S. until the end of December. However, because of good behavior, he was allowed to leave last week. He chose to attend Armstrong because that school has a good electricity course. Reggie has two years of eligibility left.

Maryland's runners yesterday remained undefeated when they swamped Georgetown, 19-42, in a cross-country meet at Georgetown. Palmer of Maryland, who ran first, set a new record of 17 minutes 10 seconds. Umbarger and Kehoe, also of Maryland, were second and third. The first Georgetown man to come in was Saunders, who placed fourth.

Colonials' Andy Davis Jumps to Fourth in Total Offense

HOUSTON—From P. 16

Tar Heels Figure Game The Big One

jig will be up for the Tar Heels.

There is no question in the minds of North Carolina supporters that Maryland will score, probably more than once, and that the Terrapins will not be content with striving for anything so feeble as a tie.

It is doubtful if Carolina will surprise Maryland with any of its assortment of single-wing delayed bucks, off-tackle slants, reverses, and pass patterns. The blue-and-white team, which still stands high in national rankings, has been so thoroughly scouted by all its opponents that, in the words of Coach Snavely, it has got "tougher and tougher every week."

Maryland had eight scouts in the Chapel Hill stadium last week and it wasn't the first visit from the Terp note-takers.

The Tar Heels, none too happy about the way they were pushed around last week by a team that little St. Bonaventure beat, have a further motive for going all out in the fact that their Associated Press rating, once No. 1 in the country, has dropped to No. 6. They would like to see that figure improved.

Maryland has its own stimulation in the bitter memory of how it was trampled into the mud by the powerhousing Carolinas in rain-drenched Griffith Stadium last fall.

And so—and this is what the 6000 Carolina fans are coming in hopes of seeing—if all-American candidates Choo Choo Justice and ram-plunging Rodgers, together with husky linesmen up ahead of them, put on the kind of expert show they demonstrated against Texas, Tennessee and L. S. U., it is just possible that the Griffith Stadium crowd will have a dazzling preview of one of the 1949 Sugar Bowl teams.

On the other hand, the redhot Carolina supporters know that if they come out of the Washington stadium in the gathering dusk Saturday with hanging heads and lagging feet, they still may have seen a bowl-bound team victorious on the field—except that the "bowl" team will be Maryland.

D. C. Star Ranks 9th In Passing

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Andy Davis, George Washington U.'s contender for national total offense honors, jumped a notch to fourth place in the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau's weekly ratings.

The Washington, D. C., star has gained 1041 yards in eight games to trail only Stan Heath of Nevada. Charlie Justice of North Carolina and Lindy Berry of Texas Christian. Davis also climbed three pegs to ninth in passing with 52 completions for 880 yards.

Bobby Thomason, Virginia Military Institute's fine quarterback, also figures prominently in the N. C. A. B. statistics. He ranks tenth in total offense with 848 yards, and third in passing with 72 completions and 931 yards.

Johnny Papit of Virginia is sixth in rushing with 725 yards. Mike Boyda, Washington and Lee's passing arm, ranks sixth in passing with 56 completions for 773 yards.

With two games to go, Gil Stephenson and Bobby Stuart of Army are a cinch to shatter, the best ball-carrying record set by their illustrious predecessors at West Point, Felix (Doc.)) Blanchard and Glenn Davis.

Stuart is the Nation's No. 2 rushing star, with 772 yards, and Stephenson is No. 4 with 761, the result of brilliant performances in last week's rout of Stanford here.

Their total of 1,533 yards places the "S-twins" only 129 yards behind the 1,662 yards picked up by Davis and Blanchard in 1945, when they were the scourge of collegiate gridirons. They might beat the old mark this week against Penn.

Fred Wendt of Texas Mines still is the country's No. 1 rusher with 978 yards gained in seven games.

Stan Heath of Nevada remained the Nation's top passer and over-all offensive star despite his team's one-sided loss to Santa Clara last week. He picked up 114 more yards to place his total at 1,754.

Total offense (yards gained passing and rushing)—Stan Heath, Nevada, 1754; Charlie Justice, North Carolina, 1147; Lindy Berry, TCU, 1062; Andy Davis, George Washington, 1041; Jim Finks, Tulsa, 1040; Fred Wendt, Texas Mines, 1005; Jim Walthall, West Virginia, 950; John Rauch, Georgia, 867; Everett Faunce, Minnesota, 853; Bobby Thomason, VMI, 848.

Rushing—Fred Wendt, Texas Mines, 978 yards; Bobby Stuart, Army, 772; Jay Van Noy, Utah State, 767; Gil Stephenson, Army, 761; Eddie Price, Tulane, 758; John Papit, Virginia 725; Jackie Jensen, California, 718; George Thomas, Oklahoma, 675; Harry Szulborski, Purdue, 659; Emil Sitko, Notre Dame, 657.

Passing—Stan Heath, Nevada, 113 completions for 1758 yards; Jim Finks, Tulsa, 89 for 1066; Bobby Thomason, VMI, 72 for 931; Jim Walthall, West Virginia, 66 for 965; Norm Van Brocklin, Oregon, 57 for 880; Mike Boyda, Washington and Lee, 56 for 773; John Rausch, Georgia, 53 for 949.

In Saturday's Game

It Looks Like Duke Over George Washington by 21

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

THERE are three schools of thought on what Duke will do to Geoge Washington Saturday at Durham, N. C.

The most extreme folks calculate that the Blue Devils will massacre the Colonials by 48 points. They figure that Maryland slaughtered G. W. by 47 points (47-0), and the Dukes beat the Terps by 1 (13-12).

Other observers (mostly G. W. optimists) figure that the Colonials will win by 6 points. They point out that G. W. whipped Virginia Tech, 13-0, while Duke turned the trick by only, 7-0.

Probably the soundest school is the one which draws the mean, and picks Duke by 21.

Despite its losses to Georgia Tech, 19-7, and Wake Forest, 27-20, in the last two weeks, Duke is in the best physical condition since the season opened. Even Fred Folger, the Blue Devils' most versatile star, bothered by bad ankles all year, will be in good condition.

G. W.'s principal hope is that Duke, looking on the Colonials as a springboard for North Carolina a week from Saturday, will be overconfident.

In the process of losing their last two games, the Dukes have become a gambling club. Traditionally a down-to-earth single wing standby, the Devils recently started lateraling and passing quite a bit.

THEN last week, trailing Wake Forest, 20-13, in the last quarter, they discarded the wing for the "diamond T" formation. It got them a touchdown which was matched by Wake Forest. The game ended with Duke, still using the diamond T, on the Deacons' 19, and on the way to a tie.

G. W. will have three breakaway runners to contend with in Billy Cox, Jack Friedlund and Folger.

Cox, it was, whose 82-yard touchdown jaunt beat Maryland. Folger had a 72-yard kick return called back against the Terps. And it was Friedlund, running out of the diamond T who scored in the last quarter against Wake Forest with an 82-yard sprint.

As in most of their previous games, the Colonials will give away weight to the enemy line. Duke's three best linemen are Tackles Al Derogatis and Len Allen, 220 and 210, respectively, and End Bill Duncan, favorite target of Folger's and Cox's passes.

Fee Halved So Nats Pay

The Washington Baseball Club, which balked at paying a $20,000 fee for police protection of Griffith Stadium, changed its mind yesterday when District Commissioner agreed to slice the charge in half.

Acting on the recommendation of Assistant Corporation Counsel Oliver Gasch, the Commissioners amended its original regulation which went into effect earlier this year.

Clark Griffith, president of the Nats, had questioned the constitutionality of the protection fee to the District Court. He said that he wouldn't pay the bill until the Court made a decision.

Uline Arena, which with other privately owned assembly halls, was affected by the law, had taken a similar stand. Owner Miguel Uline also agreed yesterday to pay.

Don Black Faces Brain Operation

Cleveland, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—Don Black, Cleveland pitcher recovering from a brain hemorrhage, may undergo an operation soon to relieve continual headaches, Dr. Edward Castle, team physician, said today.

Castle said Black will be given an arteriograph (X-ray of brain arteries) tomorrow to find out if surgery would help.

Dawson Fights At Turner's

Freddie Dawson, a Chicago contender for the lightweight championship arrives in Washington next Monday right to face Baltimore's Charlie Milan in the 10-round main event at Turner's Arena.

Dawson came close to upsetting champion Ike Williams this past spring, losing a decision, which was roundly booded, to the champ in Philadelphia. His record also lists a previous draw with Williams, a succesful tour of Australia last year and convincing knockouts of Nick Castiglione and Dave Andrews.

Milan is familiar to Washington fight fans, having appeared here many times in the past.

Women Select Officers' Slate

The Women's District Golf Association's nominating committee met yesterday at the home of Mrs. E. P. Moore and selected a slate of officers for the coming year.

Chosen were Mrs. W. F. Patterson of Indian Spring to succeed herself as president; Mrs. M. J. Torlinski, Army-Navy, first vice-president; Mrs. M. M. Alexander, Washington, second vice-president; Mrs. J. S. Meyers, Congressional, secretary; and Mrs. H. O. Porter, Columbia, treasurer. The slate will be submitted to the membership at a luncheon next month.

It's Offense vs. Defense

ment. They've restricted their foes to a mere 55.9 yards per game on the ground.

Pass defense: Maryland tops in the Nation. Only 23 completions out of 96 attempts against the air defense Assistant Coach Jim Meade has devised for his alma mater.

Swinging over to the individual departments, Maryland is lefty pretty much in the cold. And it's all because of one fellow whose name happens to be Charlie Justice. Choo-Choo is about the best kicking, running, passing back in the territory not embraced by Nevada's Stan Heath.

On total offense—passing and kicking—he's the Nation's No. 2 man with almost 6 yards gained every time he passed or ran. He's eleventh in pitching, with 50 out of 98 for seven touchdowns. Four have gone to End Art Wenier, third in the Nation in receiving.

Justice is in a class by himself when it comes to kicking. He's booted 45 times for an average of 43.6 yards per boot.

In the individual field, Maryland has only Quarterback Vic Turyn to offer. The West Virginia senior, key man in Maryland's high-geared Split T attack, is No. 20 in the country. He's gained 771 yards for a 5.2 average this year.

As these figures indicate, it figures to be quite a tussle.

Hoyas Can Make So-So Year Success

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Georgetown's football squad still has a chance to turn a so-so season into a triumphant one.

And the coaches aren't having any trouble making the grim Hoyas realize that they can salvage a lot of prestige by scoring convincing victories over Villanova and George Washington in their last two starts.

Jack Hagerty sent his boys through a bruising scrimmage yesterday—their second successive one. Another session of hard contact work is on today's agenda as the Hoyas prepare to meet a rugged Villanova team at Philadelphia Friday night.

Determination on Hilltop

There's an air of determination on the Hilltop. The players know they'll have to regain the form they displayed against Boston College if they're to stay in the game against a Villanova team that has lost only two and tied one in seven games. They think they will.

Sophomore Billy Conn, brilliant tailback who was missed greatly against NYU, is not taking part in the scrimmages. Neither is Tackle Tom Dolan, considered by Hagerty the Hoyas' No. 1 lineman. But Trainer Eddie Anderson optimistically insists both will be ready to go against the Wildcats.

If Georgetown's "up" Friday night, and there's no reason in the world why it shouldn't be, it's going to be a whale of a ball game. The fact remains that the Hoyas haven't lost since October 1. That's when Boston College outlucked them, 13-6, with the game ending with Billy Conn a foot from the B. C. goal.

That same B. C. club defeated Villanova, 20-13. Since then, the Wildcats romped over Detroit, 27-6, and were tied by Kentucky, 13-13. The Philadelphians still are trying to figure out that game Saturday at Lexington.

Last Minute Pass Ties

In the dying moments, Villanova needed a yard and a half for a first down deep in Kentucky territory. Most of the 22,000 spectators thought the Wildcat ball-carrier made it with two yards to spare, but when the officials finally put the ball down it was short.

Kentucky took over and threw three incomplete passes. Then, with 36 seconds left, Jim Howe took a short pass and dashed 69 yards with the tying touchdown.

Best indication of how rough Villanova's going to be is that Joe Rodgers, East's leading ground-gainer in 1946, and speedy Bob Polidor now merely fill in as subs.

Fullback Ralph Pasquariello, who had the top critics raving after Villanova's crushing 34-14 triumph over Texas A. & M. in its opener, has been hurt. The Wildcats haven't missed him, though Pete D'Alonzo, a 5:10 210-pound, sophomore, is keeping Pasquariello out.

Umps Hold Banquet, Present Whisk Brooms

The Washington Baseball Umpires Association celebrates its first anniversary tonight with a banquet at Benny Bortnick's restaurant at 15th and Rhode Island

Each of the 96 guests will receive an umpire's whiskbroom. A quiz show will be conducted with Pepco Barry, veteran Heurich Brewers' outfielder acting as master of ceremonies.

6-Day Bike Races Invade Washington

Insomniacs, people who work for morning newspapers and all others who never get to bed, take heart—the bike races are coming to town.

Round and round the National Guard Armory floor they'll go, for six days and nights beginning Sunday, November 28, for the first time in Washington in many a year.

So far, eleven teams of top international caliber have been signed for th eweeklong event, considered one of the roughest, most demanding athletic diversions in existence.

Harry N. Sperber, an associate director of the sponsoring organization, the Empire State Cycling Corp., was in town yesterday with four of his ace wheel jockeys, explaining the hazards of bike racing.

Says Sperber: "These guys wear nothin' but tights and jerseys, when they take a spill, they fall on hard wood and get all splintered up and broken bones. Football players—bah, they fall on grass, with all that padding they wear."

Franco Georgetti, Arne Pedersen, Severino Rigoni, and Primo Bergomi, wearing sport shirts, trousers and coats, all modestly agreed.

The corporation has just finished staging a successful six-day race in The Bronx's Kingsbridge Armory which was won by the Belgian team of Louis Saen and Emile Bruneau. Sixty thousand people attended the affair, not all motivated primarily by an interest in bike racing according to Sperber.

"The bobby-soxers came to look at Rigoni's blond hair, foreigners come to cheer the old country's flag, friends come to bet each other during the sprints, and some people just don't like to go home," he says.

Dudley Named AA President

Cincinnati, Nov. 9 (AP).—Bruce Dudley, president of the Louisville Club was elected unanimously today president of the American Association. He will serve for three years from November 15 at a salary which was not disclosed.

Dudley, who will become the seventh president in the 42-year history of the association, succeeds Frank Lane, who resigned to become general manager of the Chicago White Sox.

the division. Glen Erin, ridden by Stuart Lanham, carried only five points into the last of six events, the result of his only previous blue ribbon in the show.

But he captured the fancy of the judges, who selected him as the best in the championship stake and awarded him the seven points necessary for the title.

Reserve honors went to Adventure, a four-year-old chestnut gelding from Mrs. E. Cooper Person's Llangollen Farms at Upperville, Va., who finished third in the stake and missed the title by only half a point.

Rain Slicker, owned and ridden by Morton W. Smith, of Middleburg, Va., was second in the stake and wound up third in the overall scoring with 10½ points against 12 for Glen Erin and 11½ for Adventure.

Senate Remodeling Contract Awarded

A contract to remodel completely the Senate chamber for the first time since it was used in 1859 has been awarded to the Consolidated Engineering Co. of Baltimore, Md.

Capitol Architect David Lynn announced the award yesterday. The project is expected to cost two million dollars, and to be completed during congressional recesses in the next two years.

The job will be done under a cost-plus-a-fixed-fee agreement.

Lynn declined to make public the amount of the fee. He explained that the fee and other details of the construction agreement, and of two other proposed contracts which were submitted, will be given the special Senate committee in charge of the remodeling project after the new Congress meets.

A major feature of the remodeling will be the removal of steel trusses which have supported the present roof since 1940, and the construction of a complete new fireproof steel and concrete roof over the Senate.

The new roof is to be put up next year in the expected congressional recess from July through December. Interior remodeling will also be done during that time above the gallery floor level.

In the July-December recess of 1950, the project will be completed with the remodeling of the Senate chamber below the gallery floor level. If special Senate sessions are called during the planned rebuilding periods, the Senate will then meet in the old room which was the original Senate chamber and which for many years was the Supreme Court room. The Senate last met there in 1940 during a six-week period when the present supporting steel girders in the Senate chamber were installed, Lynn said.

The Baltimore firm receiving the contract built the New House Office Building and the Library of Congress Annex.

Two other firms which submitted contract proposals were the George A. Fuller Co. of Washington and New York, and McCloskey and Co., of Philadelphia, Pa.

Paroles Refused 2 Women Serving Kidnaping Terms

The Federal Parole Board has refused to free two women serving life sentences for the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping of 1933.

The parole applications were filed by Kathryn Kelly, wife of George (Machine Gun) Kelly, and her mother, Ora L. Shannon.

They became eligible for parole early in October after serving 15 years each. The two women are in the women's reformatory at Alderson, W. Va.

"Machine Gun" Kelly, who also is now eligible for parole, and who is serving a life term in Alcatraz in the Urschel case, has not applied for clemency.

Harvey Bailey, a fourth lifetermer in the case, has a parole application pending. He is in Leavenworth Penitentiary.

Urschel, wealthy Oklahoma City oilman, was kidnaped on the night of July 22 from the side porch of his home, where he and his wife were playing bridge with friends. A $200,000 ransom was paid for his return. Much of the money subsequently was recovered.

Idea Grows Truman Used Biffle Poll

By The Associated Press

There's a strong suspicion hereabouts that Arkansas-born Leslie Biffle's "barnyard poll" is one of the keys to the secret of President Truman's success as a political dopester.

When the President confidently predicted he would beat Gov. Thomas E. Dewey in the national elections November 2—experts laughed.

That is, everybody but dapper Democrat Biffle, 59, staff director of the Democratic Senate Policy Committee and long-time friend of Mr. Truman.

Biffle told Mr. Truman he was going to win. And the President accepted his word.

"I knew he would win," Biffle said. "I went out to see what people were thinking, and I found out." He crossed the Nation in an old truck, disguised as a chicken buyer.

Biffle started his "barnyard poll" after the Democratic convention in Philadelphia, when the experts said the election was in the bag for Dewey.

Biffle Doubted Experts

"I just couldn't believe Mr. Truman was as unpopular as the polls and the experts said," Biffle said in an interview before taking off for Key West, Fla., to spend a few days with the President.

A few days later in early August, Biffle set out alone. His custom-made clothing and hand-painted cravats were discarded. He wore a faded blue sweater, an old shirt, and an uncreased pair of breeches.

His conveyance was a second-hand truck loaded with two chicken coops. Biffle, the political expert, was now Biffle, the chicken and egg buyer.

In this guise, Biffle travelled through southern West Virginia, northern Kentucky, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio—States which he considered to be key States in the voting.

He stopped in barnyards to talk to the farmers and their wives. He squatted on the porches of country stores and listened to the farmers, the miners, the merchants, the truck drivers and the loafers.

Got Information Direct

"Once," Biffle said, "I was hunched up on the porch of a country store in northern West Virginia. A farmer drove up and soon he was in an argument with a miner about John L. Lewis. And then the storekeeper joined in. They almost got into a fist fight—but I found out what I wanted to know. All three of them were going to vote for President Truman."

Biffle's poll-taking trail later took him into Minnesota, eastern Idaho, western Montana and the State of Washington. Everywhere, he said, the story was the same.

"What the people were saying," he said, "just didnt' support the polls and the political experts' predictions. I came back convinced the President would win—and I told him what I had found."

Poll Promise To Cost Victor Half of Salary

Carlinville, Ill., Nov. 9 (AP).—A newly elected Democratic Congressman figures it will cost him nearly half his $12,500 annual salary to keep a campaign promise and give 100 children a free trip to Washington.

"I'm definitely going through with it," said Peter F. Mack, jr., 31-year-old automobile dealer and former Navy pilot. He is not married.

"A lot of people thought I would drop the whole thing after the election, but I won't. I'm going to provide the trip each year as long as I hold office."

Mack estimated it would cost more than $50 for each of the 100 underprivileged youngsters who will get a train ride and stay in Washington several days with all expenses paid.

He hasn't completed his plans for selecting the children, but hopes to work it out with the help of school teachers in the seven counties of his district.

He wants to make the trip at a time when the youngsters can see Congress at work.

"It's a good way to teach them about democracy," Mack said.

Retroactive Pay Hikes Ordered for Va. Hospital Aides

Richmond, Va., Nov. 9 (AP).—Governor Tuck ordered increases, retroactive to November 1, for hospital attendants in the State's institutions.

In a memorandum under the State Personnel Act, the Governor approved higher salaries all along the line for "several hundred" attendants. Most of these are in Virginia's seven mental institutions.

Hospital attendants have been classified by the State in four pay grades. The bottom grade, grade III, had a starting salary of $1248 and a top of $1440. These brackets have been increased to $1320 and $1560.

Brackets for grade IV hospital attendants were increased by the Governor's order from $1448-$1756 to $1620-$1860, grade V from $1824-$2092 to $1956-$2340, and grade VI, top grade, from $2160-$2697 to $2412-$2892.

New York Central To Trim Service 10 Pct.

New York, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—The New York Central Railroad, disclosing that passenger traffic was falling below that of a year ago, announced today that it will cut its passenger train service by about 10 per cent, beginning December 5.

Fred H. Baird, general passenger traffic, said the cut would affect relatively few of the some 1000 trains operated daily by the New York Central, but that the new schedule would eliminate several of the Central's crack trains and combine others.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

Davidson Scheduled To Leave Interior Aide Post Tuesday

INTERIOR—Assistant Secretary C. Girard (Jebbie) Davidson plans to leave the Federal service Tuesday. He has arranged for the opening of a law office in Portland, Ore.

FEDERAL TRADE—The pressure is on Chairman Robert Freer of the Federal Trade Commission to drop his plans to resign in December to practice law here. At the moment, however, his plan is to leave the service. It's a good bet that both officials would remain in Government if executive salaries were raised.

SENATOR CHAVEZ (D., N. Mex.) is en route to Argentina to be the guest of President Peron. He definitely will not be a member of the Senate Civil Service Committee . . . VA—The Veterans Administration is in the market for 100 doctors for duty in its tuberculosis hospitals. The jobs pay from $4479 to $10,305. Make applications to the chief medical director here. . . AGO—In the Office Service Branch of the Army's Adjutant General's Office are 11 of its 109 employees who have taken no sick leave this year.

CAPITOL HILL: W. H. McMains may be the Democratic sergeant-at-arms of the Senate. He was the secretary of Senator Hatch (D., N. Mex.) for 10 years . . . INTERIOR: Roscoe E. Bell is the new associate director of the Bureau of Land Management, a job that has been vacant for more than a year.

GWU: The reelection of President Truman is a boost for the new Government Workers Union, the anti-Communist CIO group. The GWU indorsed the Truman program. Officers of its rival, the left-wing United Public Workers, worked for Henry Wallace.

It would come as no surprise to see the CIO convention later this month give the GWU jurisdiction in the Government worker field. GWU will ask for it. If approved, it would be a body blow to the UPWA.

RECLAMATION has ordered a "freeze" on its present number of employes. The freeze order has the effect of saving the jobs of upward of 500 employes who were slated to be laid off. The bureau will gamble on the new Truman Congress lifting restrictions that forced it to lay off several thousand employes.

COMMERCE: The election returns abruptly changed the attitude of the steel industry to the voluntary agreement plan administered by the Commerce Department. About a month ago the steel industry brushed off suggestions that priority for steel be given for oil pipe lines, freight cars, housing, etc. But when the election returns came in its representatives said they would be glad to reconsider the Government's suggestions. So, Secretary Sawyer has set a meeting for November 18.

Incidentally, it's a safe bet that the department will request Congress to extend the voluntary agreement plan, which is scheduled to pass out of existence in February.

CAREER: The Federal Career Employes Association, a New York group, has urged the Hoover Commission to recommend changes in the present layoff system to give career employes more protection. It has suggested:

That a 10-year limitation be placed on the superseniority of veterans; that the Civil Service Commission be directed to expand its program for finding jobs for displaced career employes, and that all vacancies in an agency to be reorganized be filled only temporarily until after the revamping is complete.

HOLIDAY: Thursday is a holiday. Federal offices will be closed. That's definite and official. No more phone calls on this—PLEASE.

CGS: In a report to Commerce, the Civil Service Commission has taken a crack at the personnel policies of its Coast and Geodetic Survey. It had a good word to say about other Commerce agencies.

NFFE: The new officers of Local 262 of the National Federation of Federal Employes here are as follows: Joe Webb, president; Thelma Snyder, Elsie Hays and A. D. Sartwell, vice presidents; W. E. Perry and Virginia F. Bentley, secretaries, and C. L. Hubbard, trustee.

CENSUS: A bronze plaque in memory of 32 Census Bureau employes who lost their lives in World World II will be unveiled at a ceremony at 3 p. m. today in its Suitland, Md., offices. It is a gift of the agency recreation association. Participating in the ceremony will be Director J. C. Capt, Representative Sasscer (D., Md.), Regis W. Holmberg, association president, and 7-year-old John Hayward, the son of Lieut. Paul Hayward, one of the employes who gave their lives for their country.

DECISION: District Court Judge David Pine yesterday ruled that veterans who were war service appointees had no special reemployment rights with Uncle Sam. This decision merely affirms the policy the Government has followed.

In actual practice, however, most war service and temporary employes who went into military service were given their old jobs back even though the agencies weren't compelled to do so under the law.

Barse Again Asks More Judges for D. C. Court

Chief Jurist Tells Bar Meeting of New Appeal for Aides; Cites Rising Cases

Chief Judge George P. Barse last night revealed he had renewed previous requests made to the Attorney General, Tom Clark, and to the District Commissioners for the appointment of at least three additional judges to the Municipal Court.

The jurist told members of the Bar Association of the District at the Mayflower last night that he had cited a greatly increased volume of court business since the court was reorganized six years ago, in the request contained in a report to Clark and the District Commissioners.

Some 716,000 new criminal and civil cases were filed in the court during the last six years, Barse said, with the number of civil cases about double the criminal.

Emphasizing the increased volume of business handled by the court's 10 judges, Barse pointed out that in the third fiscal year after reorganization, 99,000 new cases were filed. In the fourth fiscal year the figure jumped to 108,000; in the fifth year to 125,000 and in the last fiscal year to "a record total of 139,313 civil and criminal cases."

Cases Fall Below Half

Demands for jury trial in the Landlord and Tenants division of the court dropped to 323 in the fiscal year ending last July as compared to 715 demands recorded in the previous year.

Barse told reporters later he attributed the decline to the fact that a backlog of cases had been disposed of with the aid of Court of Appeals judges, thus obviating delays in trials. He said the reason many demand jury trial is in hopes of delaying the issue. But this hope has faded with the calendar on a current basis, he said.

There has been "a progressive increase" in demand for civil jury cases as a whole, however, the judge declared.

Calendar Almost Current

The criminal jury calendar remains virtually on current basis. Barse reported, with 14,199 demands for jury trials in the last six years of which 14,082 have been disposed of.

Although 10 judges are currently assigned to handle the business of the seven divisions of Municipal Court, Barse pointed out that with vacations, illness and absences for other reasons, the situation boils down to roughly one judge for each division.

Another speaker, Judge Andrew M. Hood of the Municipal Court of Appeals, cited an increase in the business of that court with 111 appeals docketed in the last six months as compared to 69 docketed in the corresponding period of last year.

He said in the six years since the court was created, 740 appeals had been docketed with 679 disposed of, 22 heard but not decided and 39 remaining unheard.

Before the speakers were introduced, the membership unanimously approved a resolution backing Attorney Walter M. Bastian as the local bar candidate for presidency of the national association.

John F. Doyle Gets Legal Post With District

John F. Doyle, 31, of 2701 Connecticut ave. nw., was appointed yesterday by the District Commissioners as an Assistant Corporation Counsel, replacing Wilbur W. Sacra, who recently resigned to accept a Federal position.

Doyle, a graduate of Georgetown University Law School, is at present working with John H. Sullivan, Commissioner of Veterans' Affairs at District Court. He is scheduled to be sworn in within 10 days.

Doyle entered the Marine Corps in 1941 and served overseas with the Fifth Amphibian Corps as a major. He received two battle stars serving with the Marines on Leyte and in the Gilberts campaign.

2 Masseuses Are Arrested By 'Customer'

Detective Summons Other Police When Woman Undresses

A policeman is a policeman, even in his shorts—or less.

This sad fact was learned yesterday by Julia Josephine Brown, 64, who operates a Swedish massage parlor, and Betty Luther Richardson, 49, of 1316 Anacostia rd. se.

Vice squad detectives raided Miss Brown's massage parlor in a third floor apartment of the Park Lane Apartments, 2025 I st. nw., at 3:30 p. m. yesterday and arrested the two women.

Detective Sergt. Howard V. Ogle, acting head of the vice squad, said police started an investigation of the massage parlor three weeks ago after receiving a complaint.

An undercover man was assigned to the case. First he was equipped with a doctor's certificate stating he had a sprained back.

Ogle said the investigator telephoned and made an appointment. He went to the apartment and received a $3 massage.

The man was ordered to strip to his shorts, Ogle said, and was given a massage by Miss Brown.

On his next visit the atmosphere was even more friendly. The undercover man, Ogle said, was even stripped of his shorts. This time the massage cost $5.

Yesterday the undercover man returned for a promised $10 massage.

Ogle said Miss Richardson prepared herself for the job that lay ahead by taking off her clothes.

The detective followed suit—only a little more slowly. When he was down to his shorts he decided matters had gone far enough. He produced a warrant and placed the two women under arrest.

Then he strode to the door—still wearing only shorts—and admitted three vice squad detectives waiting outside, Louis Fochette, William Fields and Miles Richey.

An unidentified man who was also in the massage salon was taken to headquarters, but released after questioning.

Both women were charged with vagrancy and violation of the massage laws. It's against the law, said Ogle, for a woman to massage a man in a District massage parlor. Miss Brown was also charged with operating a disorderly house.

The women will be arraigned in Municipal Court today.

Wholesalers Renew Liquor Bargain Kick

Commissioner Guy Mason yesterday heard a renewed request from Washington liquor wholesalers for prohibition of sale of "distressed merchandise" here at reduced prices.

Commissioner Mason said the wholesalers contended that such goods were purchased by liquor brokers in other areas and were sold here at prices undercutting standard levels used by authorized wholesalers.

The spokesmen pointed out that the brokers pay only $100 license fees, while they pay $1500 a year and also a personal property tax on stocks on hand.

Commissioner Mason said that he would await a formal request from the wholesalers for action on their proposal and would then submit it to the District Alcoholic Beverage Control Board. A similar proposal was rejected by the board several months ago.

The wholesalers, speaking for a group of diplomats, also asked the Commissioner to move for elimination of an ABC requirement wh nation of an ABC requirement which prohibits sale of tax-free liquors by District wholesalers. At present embassies, in order to gain the tax-free benefits, must purchase their stocks from dealers in nearby States because the District law forbids wholesalers from selling to anyone but licensed retailers and retailers are not permitted to handle tax-free stocks.

Pvt. York Gets Police Award For Saving 5

Pvt. Edwin L. York, 33, of the Eighth Precinct, who helped carry five elderly persons from a burning building at Travilah, Md., September 8, yesterday was honored as the outstanding policeman of September.

The monthly Award of Merit medal was presented to York at a ceremony in the office of Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett.

At the same time, police gave a nod of acknowledgment to Lew Kekenes, 43, of Bethesda, Md., who assisted York in the rescue work.

York and Kekenes were together on an outing near a boarding home for elderly persons in Travilah last September 8. When they saw smoke spiraling from the house, they investigated.

Although one elderly woman perished in the blaze, York and Kekenes managed to save five other persons.

The citation which accompanied the medal pointed out that the rescue by York "was performed at the risk of his own life" and added that he "only saved himself from asphyxiation by covering his face with his dampened undershirt."

In presenting the medal, Maj. Barrett told York:

"It gives me great honor to present this medal to you. When I read the stories in the papers, I was hoping you would be picked as policeman of the month."

This is the second time the policeman of the month award has been won by an Eighth Precinct policeman. Pvt. Charles C. Brown of the Eighth Precinct was similarly honored last July for his Schoolboy Patrol work.

Present for the ceremony were York's wife, Dorothy; York's commanding officer, Capt. John E. Fondahl; Charles M. Orme, chief of the Montgomery County police, and five Metropolitan Police inspectors.

The Award of Merit committee that selected York said in the citation that it would like to commend Kekenes for his part in the rescue and added that were he a policeman he would share in the award. Barrett presented Kekenes with a police courtesy card.

York, who lives at 5908 8th st. nw., previously had received five commendations since his appointment to the police force December 17, 1941.

The Award of Merit Committee also announced that it had considered as a candidate for the award Pvt. Bradford A. McClendon of the Traffic Division's Accident Investigation Unit.

Quick-thinking by McClendon on September 30 saved the life of Stevie Kidd, 2-year-old son of William S. Kidd, of 1363 Talbert terr. se.

The child was struck on the chest while eating an apple. He swallowed a portion of the apple and his tongue.

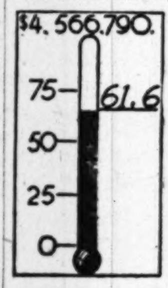
McClendon, who lives at 1335 Dexter terr. se., came running when he heard screams. He held Stevie by his feet, then forced open his mouth, got hold of the tongue and pulled it to the front of his mouth.

A Navy veteran of the last war, McClendon was not present at yesterday's ceremony. Barrett announced he will send him a letter of commendation.

Red Feather Pledges Total 61.6 Per Cent

Workers Report Only $110,264 In New Subscriptions

Greater Washington's Red Feather campaign has inched slowly up to 61.6 per cent of its goal, unit chairmen reported yesterday at a Community Chest luncheon.



An additional $110,246 has been pledged since last Friday an amount far short of the $300,000 it was hoped to get in that time. Alexandria, Arlington and Fairfax units did not report.

With the additional pledges, pledges have reached $2,813,477. The campaign goal is $4,566,790.

"It looks grim for the campaign organization and for the needy who are helped with Red Feather funds," Chauncey G. Parker, general campaign chairman declared.

"What we did not do today, we must make up in next Friday's report. We therefore have the task of bringing in a report of $500,000 by then," he added.

"We will not close the campaign until every renewal of last year's givers is obtained, and many tens of thousands of new ones are secured. That's a promise and a threat," Parker warned, as he urged campaign workers to keep on the job.

According to yesterday's reports, the Government unit is still leading, with 82.25 per cent of its quota filled. Lagging far behind is the small business unit, with only 31.19 per cent of its quota pledged. Almost as far behind is the big business unit, with a quota percentage of 55.86 pledged.

"The business people prosper because of the Government payroll. The Government workers have a right to expect business to carry its share in this campaign," Parker declared.

Key figures in health and welfare organizations which are helped by Red Feather funds, have been invited to attend the next report luncheon, scheduled for 12:30 p. m., Friday at the Hotel Washington.

Muste Urges U. S. To Disarm Alone

The United States should take "drastic" disarmament steps alone as the surest way to dispel fear in the world and undermine the Russian dictatorship, A. J. Muste, executive secretary of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, said last night.

Muste decried what he called the "I will if you will" theory of disarmament in an address to the Washington Pacifist Fellowship at the Friends Meeting House, 2111 Florida ave. nw.

What that adds up to, he said, is "I won't because you won't do it first."

Archbishop Today to Receive Sacred Pallium in Ceremony

The Sacred Pallium, insigne of his rank, will be conferred upon the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, at ceremonies at 10 a.m. today in St. Matthew's Cathedral, 1727 Rhode Island ave. nw.

The Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, will place the vestment upon the shoulders of the archbishop after celebrating the pontifical mass.

A procession of 12 bishops, 27 monsignori, 45 heads of religious houses, and priests of Washington and other dioceses will precede the mass.

The Sacred Pallium, a circular band of white wool about two inches wide with pendants hanging down in front and back, is conferred upon archbishops as a sign of their unity with and loyalty to the Pope. It is worn outside the chasuble and over the neck and shoulders.

A prayer for Pope Pius XII and a prayer for peace will be included in the mass. The presentation of the Pallium to Archbishop O'Boyle will follow his subscribing to an oath of allegiance to the Holy See. Archbishop O'Boyle will preach the sermon.

The Rt. Rev. John K. Cartwright, rector of St. Matthew's Cathedral, will greet the congregation and explain the significance of the Sacred Pallium immediately before the Mass.

Her Refusal To Yield Sons Jails Mother

Navy Clerk-Typist Ignored Court Order To Turn Over Boys To Former Husband

A 39-year-old woman went to jail here yesterday because she refused to turn over her two sons to her former husband.

Mrs. Rose Barbara Moore, a Navy Department clerk-typist, of 776 Princeton pl. nw., was ordered jailed by Chief Judge Bolitha J. Laws for repeatedly refusing to obey the order of District Court.

A marshal had to be sent to Mrs. Moore's home to take the children to the father, John A. Moore, 43, hardware executive and gentleman farmer at Mount Airy, Md. He was remarried and has three other children.

Mrs. Moore is to appear today in the court to face contempt action.

Divorced in 1942

The sons, John, 9, and James, 6, have been in the father's legal custody since 1945 when she signed them over to the father after stating that she lacked money to support them. She obtained a Florida divorce in 1942, less than three months after James was born.

On numerous occasions in the last year she filed actions in the courts here to get the children back. In June, Judge F. Dickinson Letts ruled that the father was the proper custodian after speaking to the boys privately in his chambers.

However, he did give the right to the mother to see her boys on specified occasions and she could take them home with her on certain weekends.

Sought With Court Order

Last month, according to court documents, she refused to return the children to the father. Repeatedly the father came to get them with a court order, but to no avail.

Yesterday Moore stated that the mother had even refused to bring the children to her front door so that he could talk to them.

Court Drama

Boy Screams To Remain With Mother

A 6-year-old boy screamed out his protests yesterday in District Court when his father, winner in a custody fight, tried to take him from the mother.

The mother, Mrs. Evelyn M. Hightower, 32, of 4027 Clay pl. ne., fainted in the courtroom. The father is Julian A. Hightower, of 39 Chinquapin Village, Alexandria.

So moved was the judge, F. Dickinson Letts, that he left the bench and the courtroom rather than hear the continuing cries of the handsome black-haired boy, Donald.

"Judge," Donald implored, "I don't want to go with my father. I want my mother. Just let me have one more day with her. Judge! Judge!"

Courtroom Cleared

It was at this point that Mrs. Hightower fainted and fell from her chair. The courtroom was cleared except for Mrs. Hightower, Donald and court attaches.

The mother was revived and sat silently as Donald, limp and tearful, was taken out of the courtroom by a marshal and given to the father.

Hightower and his wife both filed suits for divorce in Virginia this summer. Her suit was dismissed because she was not a resident of the State, and his suit was heard. In the meantime, he was given custody of Donald and his 11-year-old brother, James. The mother had rights to see the children and take them with her on stated intervals.

According to the record, Mrs. Hightower had them here on August 6. When he came for them, she refused to give up the children. A fight ensued and Hightower's arm was cut badly with a knife before he left with James. The mother kept Donald.

She was acquitted of the cutting in District Court here last month when a jury found she acted in defense of herself and the child.

Both husband and wife filed habeas corpus suits to get both children.

Meanwhile, on November 4, the Virginia court granted Hightower a limited divorce on grounds of desertion, and he also was awarded custody, according to court papers.

In court yesterday, Judge Letts ruled he was powerless to disturb the Virginia decree under the circumstances and ordered the child given to the father.

Democrats to Plan For 'Victory Dinner'

The Democratic Central Committee of Washington yesterday named five subcommittees to plan a "Victory Dinner" here to raise funds for operation of a District Democratic headquarters.

The subcommittees—arrangements, public relations, reception, distinguished guests and program—will report at another Central Committee meeting at 2 p. m. Thursday in the Ring Building, 1200 18th st. nw. The committee hopes to raise $10,000. Time and place of the dinner have not been set.

Teacher Trial Hits Divorce Ruling Snag

Mrs. Edith P. Thomas Hearing Continued To November 22

The Board of Education yesterday was confronted with the problem of whether it should fire a teacher who lost a divorce case on ground of adultery.

Holding its first trial of a teacher in more than 20 years, the board ran into legal snags and was forced to continue the case until November 22.

The teacher, Mrs. Edith P. Thomas, 4912 Ames st. ne., was suspended from her job as teacher at the Carver Elementary School last December and charged under rules of the Board of Education with conduct unbecoming a teacher.

Suit in District Court

Basis of the suspension was a divorce suit won in District Court by her husband, Allen, in which the charge was adultery.

Mrs. Thomas refused to resign from the school system and appealed her suspension to the Board of Education.

Board members voted against her reinstatement and ordered her to trial.

In the formal charge the board declared that she "was found by the District Court to be guilty of adultery, which is an offense against morality and good order, contrary to the by-laws, rules and regulations of the public schools."

The case was continued yesterday after George McNeil, attorney for Mrs. Thomas, argued that in the civil divorce action the criminal offense of adultery was not proved "beyond reasonable doubt."

Before the board can deprive Mrs. Thomas of her job the charge must be proved, McNeil said.

The defense attorney said that Mrs. Thomas has been a teacher in the public schools for 16 years with an excellent record and that she has a good reputation in the community.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Milton Korman, acting as prosecutor, declared that the board cannot go into the guilt or innocence of Mrs. Thomas but is bound to accept the District Court decision.

Board members called on both attorneys to seek out legal precedent to determine the extent of the board's authority.

Korman said that if the board does not accept the decision of the court it will place itself in the position of retrying the divorce case.

40 Families Near Eviction Lack Housing

Approximately 40 families the Government will evict by April are getting squeezed in the housing shortage.

These families, now living on the site of the new Senate Office Building addition, are in the low income category, and could qualify for public housing under National Capital Housing Authority regulations.

But there aren't enough public housing units to go around. James Ring, acting NCHA executive officer, said yesterday that while NCHA has approximately 8100 permanent low-rent housing units, 4887 are in the war housing class. These may be occupied only by veterans who served in the armed forces.

This leaves only 3200 units in other categories available to the families facing dispossession. Ring said that those who qualify for the low-rent housing will be given a priority for vacancies, but there are no vacancies at present, and the turnover is "very low."

Ring also expressed the fear that many of the families might be large, and availability of such facilities is "practically nil."

David Lynn, Capitol architect, said that acquisition of the site, which runs on 1st st. between B and C sts. ne. for approximately half a block, is expected to be completed by next April.

'Gay Nineties' Party

In a "Gay Nineties" setting the Arkansas Avenue Community Association will hold its ninth annual banquet at 7:30 tonight at Belmont Farms, Ednor, Md. Members and guests will wear costumes typical of the period at the turn of the century and the entertainment will be patterned after that era.

Ex-Rookie Who Injured Kilmer Girl Is Convicted

Edmondson Freed On Bond Pending Presentence Probe Of Shooting Case

Wayne W. Edmondson, 22, of 2210 Shannon pl. se., a rookie policeman until he shot and paralyzed 19-year-old Dorothy Kilmer last July 29, was found guilty of assault with a deadly weapon yesterday.

The jury of 9 men and 3 women deliberated 1½ hours before delivering the verdict before District Court Judge Alexander Holtzoff. Edmondson, released under $1500 bond pending a presentencing probe by probation office, faces a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison.

Fifteen minutes before delivering their verdict, the jury trooped back into the courtroom, seeking clarification of the word "assault." The judge told them, as he had earlier in his instructions, that the man was guilty if there was "wanton negligence" with utter disregard for the safety of others. Intent was not essential, he said.

After the verdict was delivered, Judge Holtzoff announced that the decision would have been the same if it had been a non-jury trial.

Yesterday's hearing was highlighted by testimony from FBI Special Agent Marion E. Williams, a firearms specialist, who told the court that the weapon used by Edmondson could not have been fired unless the trigger were "compressed." Defense Counsel Charles Ford had attempted to show the firing, at the Palm Grove Club, 1601 14th st. nw., was a complete accident.

Detective Sergt. John L. Sullivan, who questioned Edmondson after the shooting, read a statement taken from the youth in which he said:

"Guess I Was Scared"

"I don't remember cocking the gun . . . I had no intention in the world for it going off."

Asked why he fled after the bullet lodged in Dorothy's left side and she had fallen to the floor, Edmondson told the officer:

"I guess I was scared; I know I was."

The sergeant also read a statement from Dorothy in which she said she didn't "know why he shot me—I think it was just to scare me that he held the gun."

The Government rested its case at 11:10 a. m. and Ford failed to call any witnesses for the defense. At a bench conference, he asked the judge for a directed verdict on the ground that it is necessary to show intent to commit a crime for a conviction on the charge.

His request was rejected. Monday, Ford won a directed verdict of acquittal for Roland H. Holifield, 26, who accompanied Edmondson to the after-hours club the night of the assault. Holifield, also a former ookie policeman, still faces a charge of failing to arrest his companion after the shooting.

In his closing arguments to the jury, Assistant United States Attorney William Hitz held that Edmondson's actions showed "such disregard that it almost means he intended to shoot."

Ford pointed out that negligence alone does not constitute "guilt of this crime," and said the defendant would have to be considered "grossly negligent." The jury went out at 12:25 p. m., bringing in its verdict at 2:45 p. m.

Dorothy, who testified at the opening of the trial yesterday, was not present at the closing session. The pretty blonde, who may never walk again as a result of her injury, is a patient at the Washington Sanitarium, Takoma Park, Md.

Highway Crashers Rebuked by Judge

Maryland motorists who dart out of side streets without yielding the right of way were rebuked yesterday by Judge Stedman Prescott of Montgomery County Circuit Court.

The law providing that drivers must come to a full stop and proceed into a through highway only after yielding the right of way, is "the most commonly misunderstood and violated traffic law other than those on speeding," the jurist said.

"On a trip from Rockville to Bethesda I guarantee the right of way will be taken away from you at least three times," the judge said indignantly. "I wish it were possible for everyone in Maryland to understand this law."

Prescott made the remarks in ruling for the plaintiff in a case where a Bethesda resident sued for $179.21 damages to his car in an accident at an intersection.

Hotel Yields Collateral

The Hotel Statler forfeited $300 collateral yesterday after being charged with violating the District of Columbia 8-hour-day law for women.

The hotel was charged with employing women more than eight hours daily, more than six days a week, more than 48 hours a week and failing to keep proper records. The Statler was fined $180 in 1944 for similar violations.

Pound Open Tomorrow

The District Pound will remain open on Armistice Day from 8 a. m. to 3 p. m. to permit residents of Greater Washington to purchase 135 dogs now on hand, Poundmaster Frank B. Marks said last night.

The price is $2 a dog and $3 for a District dog license. The pound is at South Capitol and I sts. sw.

Seized Liquor Released

Guy W. Pearson, District Collector of Taxes, announced last night that he is planning to turn over 55 opened bottles of liquor to Vincent Grillo, president of the Spotlight Club, for distribution to club members.

The bottles were seized when tax agents confiscated club furnishings for nonpayment of District taxes by the proprietor. Grillo declared the liquor belonged to members of the club, which was closed after a raid in August.

Grillo is scheduled for a Municipal Court trial November 30 on six counts of keeping and selling liquor without a license.

Embassy Patience Thins

Whoever has been beating a steady path to the petty cash boxes of the Indian Embassy is treading on thinning diplomatic patience.

On Monday, for the third time since August, someone broke into a cash box at the chancery annex of the embassy, 2111 Massachusetts ave. nw.

The cash boxes, however, are not "paying off" as well as they used to. In August, $60 was taken from a cash box on the first floor of the annex. Last week, $55 was taken from the same box. Monday night, $2 was taken from a cash box on the fifth floor, and ink was splattered on a rug.

Embassy officials politely describe the intruder as "that unfortunate visitor."

Veteran, Ill Of War Hurts, Kills Himself

A 29-year-old veteran and father of twin boys yesterday ended his life in his Rockville, Md., home by blasting his head with a shotgun.

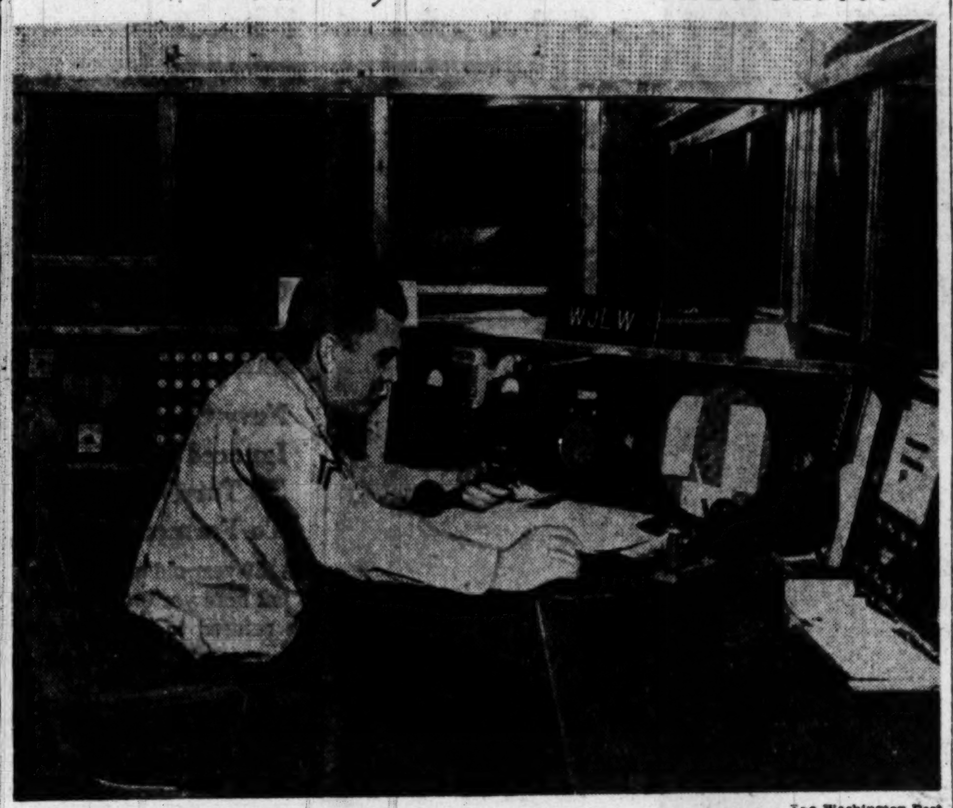
The victim, Jackson Gibbs, had been in ill health since he was severely injured during the North African invasion when a jeep overturned on him, relatives said.

Police reported that Gibbs was found with the top of his skull shot away lying beside a gun in the kitchen of his home at 650 Beall ave. Apparently three shots had been fired, police said, as there were marks of two other blasts on the floor and on the ceiling.

Police placed the timing of the shooting at about 2 a. m., only a few hours after the victim's father, Robert H. Gibbs, a department store salesman of 1733 Kenyon st. nw., called them to investigate his son's telephone call that he planned to kill himself.

Police said they investigated but after a talk were convinced the former building guard at Carderock Test Basin would not make good his threat. The twins, Jack and Ronnie, aged 4, were asleep at the time. Their mother arrived home from her job as a waitress a few minutes after the shooting, police said.

An Action-Packed, Sound-Proofed Room . . .



The Washington Post

Reginald Austin, assistant communications officer of the Prince Georges County police, is shown at the controls in the new dispatcher's room at the Hyattsville police station. Formerly operated from a desk in back of the front counter, the equipment is now housed in a glass-paneled, sound-proofed room built by the police themselves. Six weeks' time was spent in construction of the room, which now houses the following equipment: Two burglar alarm indicating systems, loudspeakers from receivers for the Washington and Maryland State police, and a large speaker for their own cars; the remote control and monitoring system for their transmitter, which is in Cheverly, Md., and a new intercommunicating telephone system

Recreation Board to Study Policy on Non-Segregation

The Board of Recreation yesterday voted to study the policy which has barred non-segregated groups from meeting in Negro school auditoriums.

At the same time, it decided to deny requests from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the two locals of the American Federation of Teachers to hold interracial meetings in the Garnet-Patterson Junior High School, a Negro school.

The NAACP and the teachers' union will be informed, however, that although the board is following its usual policy of denying their requests, a study is underway.

Erroneous Beliefs

Board Chairman Harry Wender recommended a study of the bylaws under which the policy has been carried out since the board was set up in 1942. He said the board has been acting under two erroneous beliefs:

1. That it had to follow the policy of the Board of Education from which it took over control of the use of school buildings for nonschool purposes in 1942.

2. That the school board's policy, up to that time, had been to bar interracial groups from using the Negro schools.

Wender pointed out that on October 20 the school board made it clear that it has no control over the use of schools for nonschool purposes. He said he also had been informed that the school board had allowed interracial groups to meet in Negro schools before 1942.

He emphasized that neither the use of white schools nor segregation on playgrounds will be at issue in this particular study.

Board members voted to inform Harold and Gwen Mayers, of 1241 Valley ave. se., who protested segregated playgrounds, that the Rosedale playground is being operated according to law, and there are no plans to change to a non-segregation basis.

Wender invited board members to meet today at 9:30 a. m. with Corporation Counsel Vernon West to hear his legal opinion on whether the District or the National Park Service has jurisdiction over District playgrounds. West has indicated that the District has full control.

The board voted to ask the Veteran's Cooperative Housing Association for authority to operate a pre-school play center at Naylor Gardens after December 1, and acted to renew an agreement to conduct a pre-school play center at Livingston Manor.

Soldier's Body Is Recovered From Channel

The body of a young soldier, who had been recently treated as a mental patient at Fort Belvoir station hospital, yesterday was recovered from Georgetown Channel.

He was identified as Charles Bumbalough, 22-year-old World War II veteran, from Cookeville, Tenn., formerly stationed at Vint Hill Farm, a signal corps radio center, near Warrenton, Va.

Bumbalough attempted to jump from the 14th st. bridge about six months ago and was prevented from doing so by park police, Lieut. Jeremiah Flaherty of the Metropolitan Police Homicide Squad, said.

Records at Vint Hill Farm showed that the soldier was transferred to the Fort Belvoir hospital on April 13 as a mental patient. He was treated there as a "depressive neurotic," Belvoir authorities said. He was released about October 15 when he was transferred to Fort Monmouth, N. J., with orders allowing 10 days delay en route.

Harbor police recovered the body after it was discovered by Capt. Nelson Fagan of the tug Columbia, of the Smoot Sand & Gravel Corp.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald withheld issuance of a certificate as to cause of death pending further investigation.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Mother of Twins, 3 Years Old, Spanks Girl for Screaming When Brother, Bigger, Uses Fists to Corral Toys; Is She Right?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My twins, Mary and Larry, get along quite well at play. They are three years old and Larry is a bit huskier than Mary, and so when they both want the same thing, he almost always gets his way by striking Mary, who never hits back.

Mary will sometimes cry or scream during the tussle, which occasionally induces Larry to give in to her, but very seldom.

In my childhood I was taught that boys don't hit girls and that girls don't scream; or at least it never occurred to me to scream. But is it really better to just let the children fight things out between themselves, even though Mary rarely wins? If I adopt this policy, will she grow up feeling that men are bullies?

However, shouldn't she be broken of screaming? I have spanked her at times for it; but I am not sure this is the best treatment of her actions.

Incidentally, the children don't fight a great deal; it is just now and then, and at such times Larry wants to be boss and Mary resents it. I want both children to grow into normal healthy adults and would appreciate your good judgment. L. C.

Mother Is Showing Lurking Favoritism

DEAR L. C.: I certainly don't like the looks of this picture, in which you spank Mary for screaming in protest (her only defense) when Larry hits and bullies her; and yet apparently take no restraining, much less punitive, action as regards Larry's selfish assertion of superior brute-force.

Here is lurking mother-favoritism, equally damaging to the social conditioning of both children, and incited by no worthier impulse than subtle sex-infatuation—the doting mama's prideful preference for her husky male child as versus the weaker creature, the girl, who seems to mama not nearly so enchanting on the score of world-beater potentials, which she congratulates herself she produced.

Your letter illuminates the fact that your favoritism is emotionally projected at the children, or into their dealings, to insidiously foster Larry's bossy unfair play and Mary's appropriate resentment—roused alike by his injustice and your indulgence of it.

Woman Shuts Mind to Faults in Son

FOR INSTANCE, you tell me that you were taught in childhood that boys don't hit girls and that girls don't scream, or at least you never screamed (you piously report) as if this explained or justified your feeling, enacted in spankings, that Mary's screaming should be curbed.

But having said that, your mind balks—please note—at dealing directly, honestly and objectively, with the trouble-factor of Larry's hitting, another offense against your childhood credo. You dodge around it with the evasive question: "Is it really better just to let the children fight things out between themselves, even though Mary rarely wins? . . . but shouldn't she be broken of screaming?"

In short, your involuntary "policy" in re Larry is either to do nothing or react as if Mary were the spoilsport in Eden. But you have moments of knowing your weak treachery to her, and perhaps recent probing of a comparable story in this column has brought your guilt-sense to your notice.

For advice, the fact that Larry is huskier than Mary and male to boot gives him no warrant per civilized standards to act as if they were jungle cats, and he the victor by virtue of weight when disputes develop. It's your business to school him in control of brute reflexes: by discipline, watchful supervision and instruction. He cannot grow up to be a creditable adult unless his character is steeped in respect for ethical considerations, chief of which is decent deference to the rights of others. M. H.

The Family Scrapbook

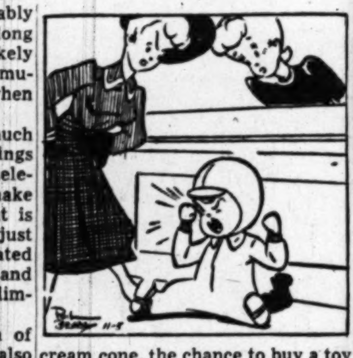
Child-Centered Shopping



For the most part, it's probably wise not to take youngsters along on shopping trips. They're likely to get tired, fussy and overstimulated. But there are times when it can't be helped.

A little planning will do much to eliminate the undesirable things and build up the values. A telephone call ahead of time to make sure that the stores have what is wanted and to find out in just what part of the store it is located will save unnecessary steps and the fatigue they bring. Time limits can be set too.

Giving the children an idea of what they will see and do is also helpful. They are less likely to become fussy if they have something definite toward which to look. Last but not least in the planning should be some simple treat—an ice-cream cone, the chance to buy a toy or book—something that is particularly the child's part in the expedition.

In making fudge for the holidays, cook it over low heat until the sugar is completely dissolved, stirring constantly. If you wish to wash down the sugar crystals that form on the side of the saucepan, use a fork whose tines have been wrapped in a small piece of damp cheese cloth.

Fruit cooked in a syrup tends to hold its shape; if the fruit is to be pureed, cook it in water and add the sugar after it is mashed or sieved.

New Swedish Envoy, Siamese Visitors Feted

By Elizabeth Maguire

WHILE THE Siamese yesterday were hosts to a visiting Minister of Foreign Affairs, the Swedish entertained in honor of a new Ambassador, Erik Boheman, and Mme. Boheman. Prince Pridi Thepyaphong, Minister of Foreign Affairs, and Phot Sarasin, Deputy Minister of Foreign Affairs, received at the Siamese Embassy with their host and hostess, the Charge d'Affaires and Mme Kridakon.

The Siamese party was small but very select. In the drawing room were a number of ambassadors and their wives and other top officials. Siamese and Burmese ladies, gentle and diminutive in size, were there in native dress of bright colored silks and precious gems.

Mme. Zaw Win, wife of the Burmese Charge d'Affaires, wore a skirt of crimson silk and white silk aingyi. Her necklace was a slender gold chain set with emeralds, rubies sapphires, and other stones from the mines of Burma. In her black hair-do, called the sadone, which translated means "bundle of hair," she wore a bar of small diamonds.

Men's Fashions

The Irish Minister, Sean Nunan, was there in handsome Irish tweeds, the likes of which haven't been exported from Ireland since before the war. The suit was of small brown and white checks with just a tiny thread of green in it. A brown tie, brown handkerchief and white shirt completed his costume.

The New Zealand Minister, who has just been appointed Ambassador, was at the Siamese party with Lady Berendsen. They were joined by the Australian Ambassador, who striking threesome were the Danish Ambassador and Mme. de Kauffmann and the Portuguese Ambassador, Pedro Theotonio Pereira.

Mrs. Susan Magalona of the Philippines, young and beautiful, was squired by the Philippine Ambassador, Joaquin Elizalde, who is leaving Friday for the Philippines to remain until January.

Other guests at the Siamese Embassy were the Italian Ambassador and Signora Tarchiani, the Ambassador of Paraguay, Juan Felix Morales, the Ambassador of Greece, Vassili C. Dendramis, the Ambassador of Ecuador and Senora de Dillon, the Minister of Luxembourg and Mme. Le Gallais.

The Minister of Finland and Mme. Jutila, the Charge d'Affaires of Iraq, Ahmed Izzet Mohammed, and Mrs. Robert A. Lovett, wife of the Under Secretary of State, were also guests.

New Ambassador Arrives

The Swedish Embassy has a very handsome couple for its new Ambassador and his wife. The Ambassador served in London and Paris as Ambassador before coming to Washington. Mrs. Boheman is tall and slender and brunette. At the party given in her honor yesterday by the First Secretary of the Swedish Embassy and Mme. Rydbeck, she wore a brown silk dress and wide-brimmed brown hat.

Mme. Rydbeck's house in Wesley Heights is furnished gaily in Swedish pieces. Orange curtains hang at the small windows, the walls are white-washed and hung with paintings by Swedish artists, and some of the furniture is hand-painted in blue flowers. Vases of pink and blue astors yesterday added a perfect touch. One of the paintings in Mme. Rydbeck's drawing room is by a foremost Swedish artist, Hugo Zuhr, brother-in-law of Mr. Rydbeck.

From the Swedish Embassy came the Commercial Counselor and Mme. de Belfrage, the Military Attache and Mme. de Croneborg, and the First Secretary and Mme. Lind. The Second Secretary of the Norwegian Embassy and Mrs. Mangor were there, as well as the Norwegian Counselor and Mrs. Olav. Mr. and Mrs. Hans Bertelsen and Count and Countess Adam Moltke-Huitfeldt came from the Danish Embassy.

State Department representatives included Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Satterthwaite, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McClintock, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Cunningham and George Baker. Mr. and Mrs. Arnauld Wapler and Mr. and Mrs. Jean-Claude Winckler were there from the French Embassy. The former Yugoslavian Ambassador to Turkey and Mme. Choumenkowich, Mr. and Mrs. Marquis Childs, Mr. and Mrs. James Reston and Mrs. Else Strom were also guests.

MR. and Mrs. Constantine Stackelberg entertained yesterday at the second and last of two cocktail parties given for Alexander Clayton, who had just finished a portrait of the hostess.

Among those there were the Philippine Ambassador, Joaquin Elizalde; the Netherlands Minister and Mme. Reuchlin; Roger Taymans, Counselor of the Belgian Embassy; the Agricultural Attache of the Spanish Embassy and Senora de Echegaray; Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Garrison Norton, and the Counselor of the Danish Embassy and Mme. Bertelsen.

Military Men From Argentina Honored at Embassy Reception

A group of military men from the Argentine met Washington diplomats yesterday at a reception held at the Argentine Embassy from 7 to 9 o'clock. Commodore Roberto Gilbert, commandant of the Argentine School of Military Aviation, was host in the absence of the Ambassador, Jeronimo Remorino, who is in North Carolina until Friday.

Commodore Gilbert with 30 officers and 79 cadets arrived in Mobile, Ala., last Friday. The group proceeded to Bolling Field on Sunday, and they are leaving today for Mitchel Air Force Base in New York. From there they will go on tour of the country by plane.

Air attaches from all the embassies and legations in town were invited to the party yesterday, as well as Army, Air and Navy officials. High officials and their wives invited to the fete included Secretary of Defense and Mrs. James Forrestal, Gen. and Mrs. Hoyt Vandenberg, the Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. W. TYPICAL of the dark, rich costumes in the collection of Omar Kiam designs shown yesterday at the Mayflower is this suit of brown wool with black braid trim. Accessories are also in black and brown.

By William Klemm—The Washington Post

THIS flame-colored lace dancing dress with matching net stole was almost the only note of high color among the fashions shown at the special fund-raising luncheon sponsored by the women's board of Emergency Hospital

Brown and Black Are Paired in Chic Costumes

By Sonia Stein

FORTUNATELY there were few men present at the showing of fashions by Omar Kiam, of Ben Reig, at the Mayflower yesterday. For the hundreth time in the past few seasons a top designer has deliberately and successfully combined black and brown in the same costume. And if the gentlemen ever catch on to this, what will become of the once useful plea for new gloves and shoes: "Darling, black and brown simply cannot be worn together."

Several of the choicest Omar Kiam designs modeled yesterday at the benefit luncheon of the women's board of Emergency Hospital were brown with black trim.

The jacket of one brown suit was covered with a profusion of black baroque braid in a flower design. A grosgrain ribbon tied under the collar. The color? Black, of course.

A satin cocktail dress, described as "dtep bronze" but which was nonetheless a brown tone, had black lace appliqued on peplum and around the deep V cut at the front and back. The lace in turn was spiced with jet beads.

Even navy blue was treated with this same restraint. For contrast on a very dark blue wool dress, black seal was used around the hem and as a jacket and hat. The fur band at the hem—about 10 inches wide—stopped short of going all the way around, allowing the "tail spin" pleats in the back to swing free.

The "tail spin" back was featured on almost all of the suits shown, giving a narrow silhouette in front with luxurious fullness spreading from a small point in the back.

TWO COATS were in pale and muted green. One was shown with a quiet absinthe green dress which was heavily embroidered with gold beads in a bib-like arrangement.

Two of the loveliest dinner dresses in this showing, which was handled by Julius Garfinckel and Co., were "brightened" in this same sober way, with dark but iridescent blue materials. One black dress had bands of electric blue sequins glistening from beneath a number of horizontal tucks in the black crepe skirt. Another sheathlike gown was in bright rose, with the same dark but shiny blue used in beads which were embroidered in an allover floral pattern.

This rose gown, and a flame-colored lace gown with matching net stole, was the wildest Kiam went with his colors. Even the two bright colored suits shown were subdued with pin checks of a darker color. A Chinese turquoise suit was pin checked in dark amethyst, which was also used for a matching blouse and hat. A bdight green suit was toned down with minute black checks. Both suits had "tail spin" backs.

Only one dress in the close to 50 gowns shown was in an unsophisticated color combination. A black gown with a tailored off-shoulder baby pink collar, it was saved from its "pretty-pretty" look by a band of jet beads embroidered in formal pattern on the pink collar.

Proceeds from the fashion show, which was attended by almost 700 women, will go to the special needs fund of the women's board of Emergency Hospital. Lady Welsh, president of the women's board, was in charge of the program. Brooke Johns, chairman of the Board of Commissioners of Montgomery County and WBCC disc jockey, acted as narrator.

Five nurses from Emergency Hospital and Mrs. Carmel Snow, editor of Harper's Bazaar, assisted in the distribution of a dozen door prizes which included a Ben Reig original.

ECA Official Gives Encouraging Report

By Genevieve Reynolds

Donald C. Stone, director of administration for the Economic Cooperation Administration, yesterday painted an encouraging picture of increased production in western Europe at the D. C. League of Women Voters' luncheon meeting held in Barker Hall.

At the same time, he warned, "the recovery of Europe can't be won with a slide rule and more goods alone, but will depend upon harmony among the participants and the human equation."

One factor in the whole complex problem of Greece is the role of the women and their progress in the country, according to Mr. Stone. "Before the war a Greek woman walked behind the donkey carrying her husband. Since the war the woman walks ahead of the husband an donkey feeling out the ground for possibly hidden mines," he related.

He suggested that the government, schools, churches and such organizations as the League of Women Voters could do much to build a climate in which democracy can thrive both here and abroad.

"If we approach the Europeans with a willingness to share their problems and not just tell them what should be done, we will get cooperation," he explained.

Recalls Italian Situation

"While the results of the elections in Italy heartened all, there still are staggering problems to be solved there," Mr. Stone told the gathering, adding "it takes a good down-to-earth administration to make laws effective and to keep platform promises in any country."

As for statistics, Stone pointed out that the United States is supplying only about 4 per cent in economic aid and that by 1952 there's hope, he said, that the economies of Europe will be able to carry on without assistance.

Here is the gist of his production survey in the United Kingdom, Norway, France, Belgium and the Netherlands.

United Kingdom—coal not quite to prewar production but considerably above 1937 and '38—retained exports decreasing but about prewar level; industrial production higher than prewar level.

Netherlands—production above prewar level, and foreign trade volume approaching prewar status.

Norway—production generally above prewar level. Pulp and cannery not up to prewar level.

France — industrial production above prewar levels.

"Increased production in western Germany is one of the encouraging parts of the whole production figure," said Mr. Stone.

The speaker praised the cooperation between ECA workers and the staffs of the American embassies in the European countries.

Mrs. Carson Duncan, International Relations chairman, introduced the speaker, and Mrs. John F. Thomas, president, presided.

Mrs. Maxwell Barus of Orange, N. J., who is in town attending the closed sessions of the National League of Women Voters' biennial board meeting, was among the guests at the head table. Mrs. Charles F. Brannan, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, was the ranking guest.

The league's national board is mapping out legislative programs for future league action.

Editor Sees Chinese Loss As Serious Blow

The United States lost the most important battle since the war when the Communists took Manchuria two weeks ago, Constantine Brown, foreign editor of The Evening Star, said yesterday. Mr. Brown spoke before members of the National Council of Jewish Women in the Jewish Community Center.

Mr. Brown discussed the economic and foreign situation in the world today with emphasis on Russia and Germany. He said the election must have had an effect on the Kremlin since Mr. Molotov, a person who rarely makes a speech, made the statement that it was not so much the United States that was hindering the peace as the reactionary Republican Congress.

However, "once bitten, twice shy," said Mr. Brown in reference to working with Russia. He cautioned everyone to examine carefully the advances that Russia might make in the future, citing cases in the past by which Russia has given cause to suspect her.

How to Clean Ermine Collar

Can you tell me how to clean a small ermine collar on my dress coat. The collar is not soiled, but I have worn the coat one season. S. G.

Fur can be cleaned to some extent at home by dampening cornmeal or sawdust with a dry-cleaning solvent (such as carbon tetrachoride) and rubbing it into the fur. Let it remain on the fur an hour or so, then shake and brush out thoroughly and air the fur. If the rest of the coat is dark material, be sure to protect it by putting a towel or other cloth about the shoulders when you clean the fur.

To A. P. G.: We have been advised that a shop where Octagon soap coupons can be redeemed has just been opened at 1205 Eye st., nw. Also, C. M. C. writes that they can be redeemed at 907 King st., Alexandria, and 4775 Lee hwy., Arlington.

TO L. W.: Readers have sent in the addresses of several additional places where clothes donations for American Indians may be sent. They are: St. Anne's Mission, Belcourt, N. Dak.; the Rev. David W. Clark, Good Shepherd Mission, Fort Defense, Ariz.; First Church of the Nazarene, 7th and A sts. ne., Washington, D. C.; Father Ildophonse, O.S.B., St. Michael's Indian Mission, St. Michael, N. Dak.; and Norma Runych, Supervisor of Education, Navajo Indians, Window Rock, Ariz. The American Indian Committee of the District of Columbia Daughters of the American Revolution says that beads may also be sent to the last-named address for use in Indian crafts and also as playthings for Indian children in hospitals. Clothing should be mended and wearable, because many of the Indians do not know how to mend and, moreover, have no needles and thread.

Could you tell me where it is possible to rent . sanding machine suitable for sanding down an old maple-leaf table? Also, do you believe an inexperienced person could operate this successfully? My problem is this: I had an old table sanded and an oil finish started, which I completed. Later I learned that the table had never been sufficiently smoothed, and also, I prefer a shellac finish. I have removed the top layers of oil, dirt, etc., but find that to remove all traces of the oil which has gone into the wood grain, a great deal of sanding is necessary. Actually, in one small area which is down to the natural wood entirely, the table edge appears thinner to the eye by about one sixteenth of an inch. This seems an endless job by hand, and I need to use the table. F. S. W.

The firms which rent sanding equipment, and are listed under "Floor Machines" in the yellow pages of the telephone book, have a belt sander which weighs between 30 and 35 pounds and is designed especially for use on flat surfaces such as table tops. I see no reason why you should not be able to do a good job with it. However, be sure to get as much instruction as possible on the use of the particular machine you rent when you pick it up.

I would like to know how I can remove baby oil stains from wallpaper? I. R.

Make a paste of cornstarch and carbon tetrachloride. Apply a thick layer of the paste to the spot and let stand until dry. When thoroughly dry, brush away. It may be necessary to make several applications to remove the stain completely. Also, it is wise to clean around the stained area with a dough type paper cleaner before applying the paste to prevent the formation of a soiled ring at the edge of the paste application.

If your family likes French pastry, they'll be enchanted when you serve them your own homemade Napoleons

Make Your Own French Pastry From These Interesting Recipes

IN MELUN, famous throughout France for its delicious baked goods, a mayor was elected because of his mastery of the pastry-making technique. Instead of holding an election, the citizens there held a baking contest and the winner became mayor of the town.

Pastrymaking here in America is popular, too, but many homemakers fear that puff paste delicacies like napoleons are too difficult to attempt. Actually, napoleons are sheets or layers of puff paste, put together with a custard filling and topped with a thin icing or dusted with confectioners' sugar. There are several methods of making the puff paste. The method given here is an adaptation of the French method and one which any cook will find simple and easy to follow.

Bear in mind that the shortening must be well chilled, the dough handled quickly when rolling and folding. The greater number of times the dough is rolled, folded and chilled, the lighter will be the finished pastry.

This dough will be easy to handle if it is left in the refrigerator overnight before it is prepared for baking—or it may be stored several days ready for instant use.

NAPOLEON PUFF PASTRY

3¼ cups all-purpose flour
¾ cup ice water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 egg beaten
1¼ cups cold butter
½ cup cold shortening
Cream custard filling
Confectioners' sugar

Sift flour into large bowl. Make a well in the center and pour in the combined water, lemon juice and egg. Work in quickly until dough is smooth and elastic. Knead lightly for 2 minutes. Cover and allow to rest 10 minutes. Roll out on lightly floured board into a rectangle ⅛ inch thick. Cover two-thirds of dough with bits of cold butter and shortening Fold the unbuttered third of dough over the center third. Fold the other third of dough on top to make 3 layers. Again fold opposite ends in thirds, finishing with dough in a square shape. Wrap in waxed paper and chill in refrigerator 20 minutes. Remove from refrigerator and roll out into a rectangle. Fold in thirds both ways as directed above. Chill 1 hour. Repeat rolling, folding and chilling three more times. If possible, chill overnight. Roll out into a rectangle ¼ inch thick. Cut into 2½-inch wide strips and place on baking sheets rinsed with cold water. Prick pastry with a fork to prevent blistering. Bake in hot oven (425°F.) 10 minutes. Reduce heat to slow (325°F.) and bake 15 to 20 minutes. Cool thoroughly. Cut into 3-inch bars. Spread half the pastry with custard filling or cream fillings of any desired flavor. Top with confectioners' sugar or toppings such as are given here in the following recipes. Approximate yield: 15 napoleons.

Cream Custard Filling

2 cups milk
½ cup sugar
Pinch of salt
2 eggs, beaten
2 tablespoons cornstarch
½ teaspoon vanilla

Combine 1½ cups milk, sugar and salt and bring to a boil. Beat together remaining milk, eggs, cornstarch and vanilla. Add to hot milk mixture. Cook, stirring constantly, until thick and smooth, about 10 minutes. Cool and use as filling for napoleons. Approximate yield: 2 cups.

ORANGE FROSTING

Grated rind of 1 orange
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon orange juice
1 egg yolk, slightly beaten
3 cups confectioners' sugar

Add rind to fruit juices. Allow to stand 15 minutes. Strain and add juices gradually to slightly beaten yolks. Stir in sugar until of spreading consistency. Approximate yield: 1 cup frosting.

To Brighten Brass

The brightness can be brought back to dull brass by soaking it for about a half hour in a pint of boiling water to which a little rock ammonia has been added. After removal, polish with a chamois.

The Light in the Garage

The placement of the light in the garage is most important. So often it is located in the exact center of the ceiling where it does little good. It should be located directly over the motor where it is most likely to be needed.

Prune-Spice Cake Good Choice

Then new prune spice cake, recently developed by home economists of the United States Department of Agriculture for school lunch kitchens throughout the country, is a good choice for a family dessert.

Flavorsome with fruit and fragrant spices, it is suitable for children and grownups alike, features the dried prunes now on the list of plentiful foods, is easy to make, not expensive, and holds its moisture and freshness well so that it can be kept for serving a second day.

For home use the original large-quantity recipe has been cut down to family size, furnishing about 16 portions. The ingredients are: ½ cup fat; 1 cup sugar; 2 eggs, well beaten; 1¼ cups finely chopped, cooked pitted prunes; 2 cups sifted flour; 1½ teaspoons soda, 1/16 teaspoon nutmeg; 1 teaspoon cinnamon; ¾ teaspoon cloves; ¾ teaspoon salt, and ½ cup sour milk or buttermilk.

To make; Cream the fat and sugar. Add eggs and beat until light and fluffy. Blend in prunes. Sift flour, soda, spices and salt together three times. Add to the creamed mixture, alternating with the sour milk. Line a greased 8x10-inch pan with waxed paper. Pour in batter. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for 35 to 40 minutes.

Expert Finds Percy's Poise Has Its Price

Modern education has given little Percy more social poise than his counterpart gained 25 years ago. But whether little Percy is any better adjusted personally—that is the question.

Gerald A. Koakam, professor of education at the University of Pittsburgh and consultant on elementary schools in the Washington School Survey, doesn't think he is.

Speaking before the District of Columbia Teachers Association yesterday, Yoakam told Washington teachers modern elementary education had made "a reasonable number of hits, a number of runs and a few errors." He called on the teachers to correct the errors.

As to the child personally, he cited two major deficiencies: (1) Many children are being spoiled by overindulgence in both home and school; and (2) Little Percy's failure to learn to read as he should is causing much maladjustment.

Of overindulgence, he said that while he did not favor a return to the severe discipline of yesteryear, he felt there is a "middle ground," and that the "really intelligent" parent or teacher should know what that middle ground is.

Little Percy, after all the indulgence, he declared, grows up with "so much care and so much attention that he isn't happy with anything" and "certainly isn't any better off" than his counterpart of a quarter-century ago.

As to reading, he said the University of Pittsburgh Reading Laboratory studies of 600 to 800 children had revealed "a tremendous amount" of maladjustment resulting from failure to learn to read properly. He expressed an opinion that present-day children cannot read any better, if as well, as children 25 years ago.

On the "hits" and "runs" side of the scoreboard, Yoakam said children today are more self-possessed, easier mannered, more in command of the social graces, and probably better behaved. And while he may have less precise knowledge with present teaching methods, he certainly has broader knowledge.

And, instead of fearing or hating school, today's pupil enjoys it and is happy in school.

One on the Aisle—

A Pert Producer Captures G. B. S.

By Richard L. Coe

PEOPLE OF THE THITTAH—Of all the ladies of the theater the public never glimpses, Jean Dalrymple is one of the most fascinating . . . Small, pert, chic, Jean once was a press agent, trotting around the country extolling other people's shows or gilding such lilies as Grace Moore and Jose Iturbi . . . Recently an independent producer, Jean lately has been pulling off one coup after another . . . She is presenting the Jean-Paul Sartre play, "Red Gloves," in Baltimore the week beginning November 15 . . . To play the leads she enticed Charles Boyer, Joan Tetzel and John Dall . . . To direct she lined up Jed Harris . . . Now Jean and Gabriel Pascal have snagged Bernard Shaw from the Theater Guild . . . That took some snagging, for the Guild has been Shaw's American producer for years . . . Only last season Shaw refused the Guild rights for a revival of "The Devil's Disciple" because, he stated, he couldn't afford the taxes the added income would allot him . . . The Dalrymple-Pascal team now plot not only a revival of "The Devil," but also seem to have been promised his latest script, "Buoyant Billions," which the original manuscript describes as "A Comedy of No Manners" . . . From a Swiss paper comes word that there's a prologue in which Shaw says that he "must continue writing in order to remain alive" . . . All this undoubtedly stems from Jean's interview with the Oracle of Ayot St. Lawrence last spring, which she reported at length in the new Theater Arts' first issue . . . Considering all the finagling that naturally goes on with the hint of a new Shaw script, it's a real triumph for Jean to have beaten out the Guild, Shumlin and the rest . . . Mr. Shaw's 93 years evidently don't deter him from saying yes to a pretty, lively lady (once the wife of the New York Sun's Critic Ward Morehouse), who long ago captured the drama editors of a nation.

A YOUNG SANTA! It seems fittin', 'deed it does, that Hecht's youthful store at Silver Spring should be having what must be the youngest Santa Claus in the country . . . He's dark, good-looking 26-year-old Hal Gould, youngest graduate of the Charles W. Howard Santa Claus School at Albion, N. Y. . . . But Hal takes pride in his whiskers and make-up and the youngsters will never know . . . Hal's the son of the Rev. Leslie E. Gould, 7103 Georgia ave., and is back in his hometown after a Hollywood fling that was cut short by the economy spree . . . Last year while working in the mail room of Twentieth Century, Hal copied down the names of 1000 folk who wrote to such guys as Tyrone Power and Cornel Wilde . . . He wrote 'em—with suitable photos—asking them to start Hal Gould Fan Clubs, and by golly they did, 21 in this country, Europe and Africa . . . Now he's earning his living at make-believe and holding onto some clippings under Hedda Hopper's byline . . . If you don't believe all this, ask him yourself after one of the Hecht Company's "Breakfasts with Santa" out at Silver Spring next Monday, Tuesday, Thursday or Saturday . . . Those breakfast proceeds go to the Community Chest.

THOSE YOUNGSTERS making midnight Technicolor movies at the Lincoln Memorial a quarter of a moon ago were Barbara Vandevanter, Billy Taylor and Arleen Beaman . . . The local school youngsters turned actor folk for a commercial film to be distributed by the Proprietary Association of America, "We Walked with Lincoln" . . . Unless the running time prohibits, the youngsters someday will see the picture in their own schools.

MISS EDITH C. BARNES, of Canton, Pa., has just retired from school teaching and behind that lies a story . . . A few years ago Miss Barnes and her sister took their savings and bought Canton's Rialto Theater, which they operated successfully for nearly 10 years . . . The girls finally sold the house—too good an offer to lose—but now that Miss Edith has the time, I'm wondering if she won't dip back to theater management . . . Think of having a teacher who could let you into the movies free!

TOVIO LIN is drama critic of the Catholic University Tower, and at long last I've had a look at his column . . . It's headed: "Two—not quite on the aisle—a little left of center" . . . Very good, Mr. Lin.

ESMOND KNIGHT, the blind actor to whom I referred the other day, is not only the Welshman of "Henry V" and the Bernardo of "Hamlet," he's also the conductor of "The Red Shoes" at the National . . . How I came to forget this I don't know, for it's a fine performance and one would never think it an all-but-sightless one . . . Knight was blinded while serving on H. M. S. Prince of Wales in 1941 action against the Bismarck . . . His sight is now partially regained, but even thus handicapped he's fought his way back simultaneously to the screens of four downtown theaters.

"RHYTHMS OF SPAIN" is tonight's dance program of the National Symphony at Constitution Hall, and in it you'll find the daughter of Gaonita, one of Spain's great bull-fighters, Tina Ramirez. . . . With Federico Rey, Gaonita's daughter will dance "The Cookie Vendor," by Chueca; "Muineira," a dance from the Province of Galicia, and "El Pelele di Goyescas," inspired by a Goya painting.

THE NEW MANAGEMENT of the Dupont, changing no policies, has a new one of its own and it sounds smart: Friday and Saturday midnight shows for the Government gals and guys who don't need to work the next day . . . Midnight would be quite a fancy time to see so darksome, brooding a film as "Day of Wrath."

September Income At Record High

By The Associated Press

Total personal income in September held up to the record high annual rate of $214,600,000,000 set in August, the Commerce Department reported yesterday.

For 1948's third quarter (July-August-September) as a whole, personal income was at an annual rate of 214 billions, up five billions from the second quarter rate.

Almost all of the third quarter increase came in the wage and salary bracket as a result of third-round wage increases and a rather general rise in employment, the department said.

For September alone, wage-salary receipts moved up slightly to a new record high pace of $134,500,000,000 a year, offsetting declines in farm income and State payments of bonuses to veterans.

Rise of 200 Millions

The September wage-salary rate reflected a 200-million-dollar increase over August.

Stockholders shared with wage earners in the September income rises. With dividends 19 per cent above last year, income from these disbursements and from interest payments hit a $17,600,000,000 annual rate, up $300 millions from the August rate.

Farm income slipped to a yearly rate of $22,400,000,000 in September from 23 billion dollars in August as prices received by farmers for their products declined for the third consecutive month.

Total nonfarming income, with wage and salary receipts easily the largest single item, was at the rate of $192,200,000,000 a year in September, compared with $191,600,000,000 the previous month.

Landlords' Income Dips

Incomes of landlords and owners of unincorporated businesses, second only to wage and salaries as a source of individual receipts, slipped in September to an annual rate of $49,800,000,000, off $200,000,000 from the August rate.

The decline in payments of veterans' bonuses was attributed to near completion of bonus programs by the States which had undertaken them before election day, when some States voted to start new bouns programs.

The September bonus payments drop sent the annual rate of "transfer payments"—mostly social security, pensions and unemployment compensation—to $10,600,000,000 in September from $10,900,000,000 in August.

On the Town

THE TOWN was fairly swarming with celebrations last week. Most every night spot laid claim to a party or two from the upper brackets to the lower. Democratic Chairman J. Howard McGrath and a large party were celebrating in the Old New Orleans. They were at the next table but no matter how hard we strained our ears we couldn't pick up a single bit of gossip as to whether or not they really expected their boy to come through.

Speaking of the Old New Orleans, Jody Miller (this year's Miss Washington) has been held over there for good reason. Lots of people have been coming back a number of times just to hear Jody sing. She isn't letting just one job satisfy her. Every Monday night she has a television show in town and then Monday through Friday she makes like a disc jockey for a half hour, sometimes singing to recorded music. At his rate we'll soon be hearing her as much as we did Arthur Godfrey at one time. By the way Jody, we like you much better now that you're roaming around the Sazerac Room with a hand mike. Soooooo much more intimate. As a P. S. we might add that Rita Dimitriou, who got her start in this country at the O.N.O., opened last night in the Club Charles in Baltimore.

The Club Cairo has decided to change its shows every week for a while. If the show clicks especially well it'll hold over for a second week. This week's headliner will be Larry Kent.

The songs in the show will be furnished by June Brady, who did a few numbers in the Universal picture "On Stage Everybody." We never heard of the picture ourself but perhaps some of you are able to take enough time off from the clubs to hit a movie now and then.

The only act being held over this week is Winn Seeley, a tricky little apser (short hair and all) whom you've probably seen in town before.

Kirby Walker has been doing well for the Crossroads. A year ago he was booked there as a comparative unknown. Now he's been booked there for an indefinite engagement, which means he'll stay as long as the public comes in to see him.

LAST Friday we mentioned Lady Anez, who is telling fortunes out at Brook Farm and used to be at Normandy Farm. The lady called to tell us that it was really Olney Inn that she'd been working at for such a long time. During the course of the conversation we asked her to drop in. She did, and we began finding things out as to the accuracy of her predictions.

Way back in 1936, when Lady Anez was working in another spot here, she predicted the landslide for F. D. R. Not only that, but last October 25 at 9 a. m. she made out another chart with the names of two men on it. One fellow was named Dewey, the other Truman. Anez said Dewey was kidding himself, that he would be very disappointed when Truman got the job.

We've asked the Lady Anez to do up a chart on us just to see what she can see in our black future. We'll keep you posted from time to time on the accuracy.

Ruby Newman, the bandleader, who told women's characters by the way they danced, departed from the Statler Embassy Room earlier this week and was replaced by Bob Miller and his orchestra. Piano-playing Bob organized his first orchestra in college as a strictly coffee and cakes deal to help him through UCLA. Of course his first efforts were directed at the college crowds, but later he found that it didn't pay off too well and followed through with a more general type of music that has done well for him. Bob and the boys are booked in for an indefinite stay.

The new Duke Ellington Club will rock and roll to the rhythms of the Golden Gate Quartet for the next few days. The boys make a specialty of swinging the old spirituals. Hardly anyone had ever heard of this musical aggregation until a few years ago when they stopped the show night after night in one of the New York night spots. They haven't stayed in the night clubs exclusively. Since they got their first big break they've been in Carnegie and Constitution Halls, the Library of Congress and even the White House. The rest of music at the club is being furnished by Joe Morris and his boys. They include a number of men from the old Lionel Hampton Orchestra.

Producers Pledge Aid In Lead Stockpiling

Ten primary lead producing and importing firms promised their cooperation yesterday in Government efforts to get lead for the strategic materials stockpile.

Representatives of the firms met with Government officials on invitation from Secretary of Commerce Sawyer and the National Security Resources Board, which has the responsibility for stockpile building.

The Commerce Department later expressed "satisfaction" with the conference.

Arlington Realty Study Is Planned

Tentative plans for a complete study of Arlington's real estate assessments are being made by county officials, it was announced yesterday.

Commisioner of Revenue Harry K. Green said the study would pave the way for the county's general reassessment in 1950.

General agreement on the plans was reached in a special meeting Monday night between the Arlington County Board, Commissioner Green, and Fred C. Forberg, supervisor of appraisals of the State Department of Taxation.

The study, which Forberg estimated would take from 9 to 12 months, will consider such factors as capitalized assessments for business properties, construction cost, sale values, and depreciation.

Art Exhibit Will Be Feature Of District Sesquicentennial

Plans for a four-fold art exhibit as part of the observance in 1950 of the Washington sesquicentennial were unfolded yesterday before a committee of the Washington Board of Trade.

Edward Boykin, director of the National Capital Sesquicentennial Commission, told members of the Trade Board's cultural development committee that one of the exhibits alone will bring four million dollars worth of canvases into Washington from every State of the Union.

This exhibit, planned for the Corcoran Art Gallery, would show the greatest scenes of American history, and would consist of between 300 and 400 canvases.

A second exhibit, planned for the National Gallery of Art, would show the greatest portraits of great Americans. Another exhibit, probably also at the National Gallery, Boykin said, would show American art from 1800 to the present day. A fourth exhibit, to be prepared principally by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the Fine Arts Commission, will deal with the development of Washington through the L'Enfant Plan and the MacMillan Commission's work, up to the present time.

This exhibit, Boykin explained, will depict future plans for Washington, probably until 2000, by means of scale models and architects' drawings.

The sesquicentennial observance is slated to begin April 15, 1950, and end on November 22.

Boykin said he hoped that one of the features of the 1950 observance will be the preparation of the world's biggest book, to be known as the "Bill of Rights" book. He said the book would carry the signatures of the President and his Cabinet, as well as other dignitaries of official Washington.

It is planned, he said, to ask each person who visits Washington during the sesquicentennial to sign the book.

Mrs. Gizycka's Attorneys Get Depositions

Depositions were taken from two witnesses and one partially taken from a third yesterday by attorneys for Mrs. Felicia Gizycka who is contesting the will of her mother, the late Mrs. Eleanor Patterson.

William A. Roberts, counsel for Mrs. Gizycka, said the depositions related to papers left by the late C. B. Porter, one-time treasurer of the Times-Herald which was owned by Mrs. Patterson.

Porter plunged to his death September 14 from a Clarksburg, W. Va., hotel window.

Roberts said the witnesses questioned yesterday were: John T. Barber, Times-Herald treasurer who went to Clarksburg after Porter's death; Sidney Epstein, Times-Herald reporter who flew to Clarksburg to pick up three of Porter's bags; and C. F. R. Ogilby, attorney who has been appointed collector of Porter's estate.

End of School Site Limitation May Be Sought

Attempts to repeal a State law prohibiting school boards for condemning any site of more than 10 acres for proposed schools may be made by the Montgomery County School Board.

School officials explained that the law restricts the board in negotiating for the purchase of large tracts of land for school purposes.

Approximately 30 acres are needed for a senior high school, 20 acres for a junior high school, and 10 for an elementary school, spokesmen said.

Possible revision of the law along with other legislative needs of the county's school system will be taken up with the county legislative delegation to the General Assembly at a meeting November 22, it was disclosed.

At the monthly meeting in Rockville, the County Education Board was told by Assistant School Superintendent Richard H. Carpenter that he will call for bids in about two months for a Negro high school and a Negro consolidated elementary school. Sixteen classrooms will be provided in the high school and eight in the elementary, Carpenter said.

Book Fair Today

A book fair will be held today and Thursday at the Clara Barton School in Cabin John, Md., from 12 noon until 2:30 p. m. Proceeds of the event sponsored by the Parent-Teachers Association of the school, will be used as a library fund. Elizabeth Hamilton, author of children's books, will speak at the fair Thursday at 12:30 p. m.

Postlude

Dance Pair Brilliant at Top of Form

By Paul Hume

Well, boys and girls, that's the way to dance.

Yes, sir; Alicia Markova and Anton Dolin gave plenty of tips on how to put together and put out a top dance program. Brought to Washington by the National Symphony Orchestra. they danced for a surprisingly small audience in Constitution Hall.

But they left the audience shouting and whistling at the close of an evening of brilliant dancing. Markova is at the top of her form this season, which is to say top form in classic dancing in this country. Lovely in a bright Italian suite, touching in her helplessness in Mefisto's Waltz, she was ravishing in the Dying Swan.

With perfect accompaniment from Howard Mitchell and Sylvia Meyer, she drove back the bareness of the hall and its depressing atmosphere by the piercing sweetness of her embodiment of the wounded bird.

Dolin was also in the best form we have seen. An admirable partner, he was exciting in solo variations, and won his share of the general ovation following the final pas de deux. His most interesting work occurred in Vestris, a sequence named for the noted family of eighteenth century Italian dancers.

The Mefisto Waltz is a wonderful idea for two dancers. In design it moved from fine moments for Dolin alone, and Markova and Dolin in more sensuous lines, to a rather feeble series of empty gestures as Mefisto triumphs over the village girl.

Robert Zeller conducted 70 members of the National Symphony with varying results. He belongs to the Svengali school of conducting, with motions akin to a handball fiend. Zeller has plenty of ability. He needs to cut out extraneous motion and specialize in accurate cueing and other things that make for good conducting. Granted that rehearsal time was short, the orchestral music was well chosen. A good routine conductor would have avoided some of the troubles that befell the Mefisto Waltz.

Tonight: Spanish dancing, with Federico Rey, Pilar Gomez, Carlos Montoya and a brilliant progarm.

Camera Seizure Papers Fited in 'Smuggling' Suit

The Government filed papers yesterday in District Court for seizure of $9077 in cameras and photographic equipment allegedly smuggled into this country by Lieut. Col. William E. Heltzel, now at the Command and General Staff School, Leavenworth, Kans.

Assistant United States Attorney Helena D. Reed filed the action, stating that the goods were illegally brought here between 1944 and 1946 from Europe. The goods are now in the Georgetown Customs House.

Irving Panzer, Colonel Heltzel's attorney, said that the materials were brought here from combat fields illegally under the Soldier's Gift Act. He said that no duty had been paid because the Custom's officials allowed the cameras and other sensitive equipment to deteriorate in storage.

Lee Boulevard, Just South of D. C., Virginia's Busiest

Virginia's busiest highway is the section of Lee blvd., between the Potomac River and Fort Myer dr., the State Highway Department revealed yesterday.

An average of 29,310 vehicles rolled along that stretch every day during the past fiscal year, officials said, a figure higher than any other State road.

Nearby Lee hgwy. with an average of 22,116 vehicles daily between Rosslyn and Cherrydale, was the second most-traveled road. Two other area highways, State Routes 236 and 244, averaged more than 10,000 cars daily, the officials said.

The highway department's conclusion was what most Virginia-to-Washington commuters already suspected: the State's heaviest highway traffic moves on roads immediately south of the Nation's Capital.

Outten Again Heads Kingman Park Group

The Kingman Park Civic Association last night reelected William A. Outen of 562 23d pl. ne., a Government Printing Office employe, to serve a second term as president of the association.

Bundrant, chaplain; W. L. Wheeler, sergeant-at-arms, and Helen T. Harper, editor of the Kingman Park Civic Association News.

As a Dazzling Example of conservative decorative art combined with the best in modern equipment, this corner apartment marks a milestone in our experience. The five rooms and bath face a street or broad avenue, look down on the treetops through plate glass picture windows. Given the means, most of us will pay extravagant prices for scarce and beautiful things. In this case we believe the owner is more interested in giving full value. Night or Sunday call Mrs. Merillat, CO. 5165. Other times this office.

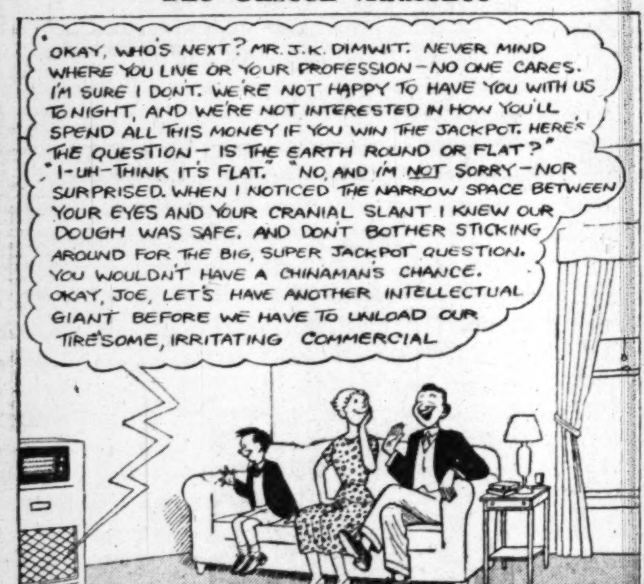
Portraits

By James J. Metcalfe

We Bow Our Heads

We bow our heads before the graves . . . Of our unselfish sons . . . Who gave their all to quell the foe . . . And still his blazing guns . . . Who donned the blue or khaki and . . . Went bravely into war . . . That we might live in liberty . . . And peace for evermore . . . Their names are written in our hearts . . . And on Old Glory too . . . In everlasting memory . . . Of red and white and blue . . . We honor them for courage and . . . For loyalty sincere . . . With silent praise in each salute . . . And love in every tear . . . And while our gratitude exceeds . . . Our power to express . . . We hope and pray that they have found . . . Eternal happiness.

The Unseen Audience



OKAY, WHO'S NEXT? MR. J. K. DIMWIT. NEVER MIND WHERE YOU LIVE OR YOUR PROFESSION—NO ONE CARES. I'M SURE I DON'T. WE'RE NOT HAPPY TO HAVE YOU WITH US TONIGHT, AND WE'RE NOT INTERESTED IN HOW YOU'LL SPEND ALL THIS MONEY IF YOU WIN THE JACKPOT. HERE'S THE QUESTION—IS THE EARTH ROUND OR FLAT?" "I-UH-THINK IT'S FLAT." "NO, AND I'M NOT SORRY—NOR SURPRISED. WHEN I NOTICED THE NARROW SPACE BETWEEN YOUR EYES AND YOUR CRANIAL SLANT I KNEW OUR DOUGH WAS SAFE. AND DON'T BOTHER STICKING AROUND FOR THE BIG, SUPER JACKPOT QUESTION. YOU WOULDN'T HAVE A CHINAMAN'S CHANCE. What's the Verdict?

PARTY WALL

Q.—The wall of a building is on the dividing line of two lots. Without promising anything to the building owner, the owner of the adjoining lot used the wall as part of a new building, without damaging it. He denies that he owes anything to the first builder. Is he correct?

A.—A person making use of a party wall is required to contribute his fair share of the cost of the wall, to the builder or his successor in interest. There is a considerable probability that "fair share of the cost" would now be construed as value, so that a 1948 builder could not take advantage of his neighbor's preinflation building costs—F. L. D.

Cases discussed illustrate general principles. They should not be construed as legal advice in particular cases. Take your legal problems to your lawyer.

Will Two Old "Friends" Meet in Courthouse?

It's not inconceivable that a man who has been indicted by the grand jury might one day encounter in some courthouse corridor a man who is appealing to the Supreme Court for a reversal of his jail sentence. Their conversation might go like this:

Thomas: Hello there. You're Gerhard Eisler, aren't you?

Eisler: Why, yes. But I can't seem to recall your name.

Thomas: The name's Thomas. J. Parnell Thomas. I ran that committee, you know. The one that got you sent up for refusing to testify.

Eisler: Oh, yes. Of course. How have you been?

Thomas: Oh, so so.

Eisler: Suing somebody?

Thomas: Eh?

Eisler: I mean—your being here in the courthouse, I thought maybe you were suing somebody or something.

Thomas: Oh, no. Nothing like that. I've been indicted.

Eisler: You don't say! (Suspiciously) Your committee turned on you?

Thomas: No, no, nothing like that. This is a grand jury case.

Eisler (obviously relieved): Of course. I might have known you wouldn't do anything un-American.

Thomas: Of course not. This is just a political smear.

Eisler: You told them so, didn't you? I mean, the grand jury?

Thomas: Well—not exactly. I didn't want to incriminate myself.

Eisler: Yeah. I see what you mean. Well—I'll see you around.

CONTINUED STORY

I see by the latest election returns that Mr. Truman is still leading Mr. Dewey by two million votes, but some 5000 precincts are still uncounted. Do you suppose that tabulation has been turned into a WPA project?

MISCELLANY

Producers and other representatives of radio give-away programs held a "mass meeting" in New York recently to protest the growing criticism of such shows. They called their critics "un-American." Pardon me while I stifle a yawn . . . I didn't have room to mention the Rose Lees Hardy School "Book Fair" yesterday, but there's another day of it today (10 a. m. to 4 p. m., Foxhall rd. and Q st. nw.) . . . Just what the doctor ordered for your Christmas book gift purchases, with the money going to the school library . . . District Liners who have been wondering why they haven't seen contributions from Andy Kisacky of 4802 Suitland rd. se., recently, can stop wondering. Andy explains that he got married a couple of months ago and had to settle down and "get serious" about life—no time for trivia... Starting a family is serious business all right, Andy—but keep your sense of humor intact. It'll come in handy as the years roll along . . . Bazaar fanciers can keep busy for the next three nights. Tonight (9 p. m., Hyattsville Armory) it's the Ladies Auxiliary of the Hebrew Academy . . . Tomorrow and Friday night (dinner from 5 to 8 p. m., South Monroe st., between 7th and 8th sts.) the Arlington Baptist Church will hold its bazaar and turkey dinner—and, once again: "How can they do it at these prices?" Adults get their turkey for $1.50, children 75 cents—and the kids invariably eat more than the grownups. Tickets must be ordered in advance from Mrs. Texanna (grandma was from Texas) Hoyer, Glebe 1409 . . . J. W. Eike of 3708 S. 1st rd., Arlington, Va., adds two more Connecticut license plates seen here: STAG (an advertisement?) and ELI—on a car from New Haven.

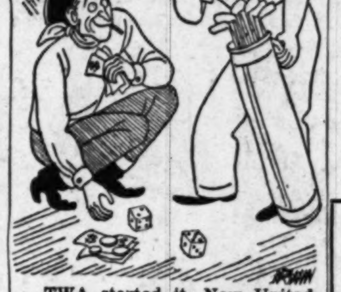
FORE! (THE HARD WAY)

The airlines seem to have entered into a conspiracy to make me feel miserable.



TWA started it. Now United Airlines sends me a folder which tells of the balmy breezes that are blowing in such places as Hawaii, Southern California and Las Vegas.

Incidentally, the leaflet speaks of the fine "golf" at Las Vegas. But it fails to say whether this refers to the same game we play around here, or the "barnyard golf" which is legal in Nevada.

I suspect that the biggest attraction out there is (to spell it politely) gamboling on the green. Returning players usually report "a very fast roll" on those greens.

So maybe it's just as well that I'll have to play my golf in Washington. A man who gets a chip shot up to the cup can win a lot of holes with 3's; but a man who shoots 3's out of a dice cup can lose a whole lot of chips.

THE PREDATORY SEX

The females tell me that in their circle, this one has whiskers—but it's still new to me.

One gal says to the other one, "He's too old to be considered eligible," and the other one replies, "My dear, he's too eligible to be considered old."

NEW YORK.—Mary Clynes, librarian of the Democratic National Committee, told her colleagues that she had done the utmost her position empowered her to in making sure of Dewey's defeat—she assigned File No. 13 to Thomas E. Dewey . . . There was drama backstage at the "Streetcar Named Desire" the other night when Understudy Gertrude Flynn was ordered to stand by for Jessica Tandy. Miss Tandy had received two phone calls warning that she would be shot when she appeared on stage in the second act. Detectives swarmed through the orchestra while Miss Tandy completed her performance.

"It is not worth coming to England to see what little is left of me," G. B. Shaw wrote to Fannie Holtzman, the lawyer, last week. "By all means send me a package of Kasha; I cannot get it here. But don't send anything else eatable. The conviction current in America that we are all starving here is not true—YET."

Robert Frost, the Pulitzer Prize poet, said this week that although he moved from New Hampshire to Vermont 25 years ago, his name still doesn't appear on any list of Vermont writers. "I guess," he said, "you can't become a Vermonter simply by moving to Vermont" . . . Ludwig Bemelmans was invited to lunch by a notorious check-dodger. When the waiter placed the check on the table, the man said to Bemelmans: "You must lunch with me next week." Bemelmans countered with: "Oh, no. I couldn't let you be my luncheon host twice in a row."

Although Time Magazine does not decide on its Man of the Year until late December, its editors are positive that President Truman will be the man . . . A Pulitzer Prize feature writer spent nine weeks collecting material for a press-service series of articles to be called "What Will Dewey Do?" The series, which was to start Monday in more than 500 newspapers, was canceled with a wire to the editors, "What Will Dewey Do? Answer, "Go back to Albany."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Truman Asks Action of Cabinet

By Drew Pearson

President Truman's first Cabinet meeting after the election was no backslapping affair. It was a sober, down-to-business, back-to-work session.

Barkley

Only humorous note came as the stragglers were filing in, when Vice President-elect Alben Barkley told about an incident occurring at a Kentucky political rally. When the chairman announced there would be a two-minute wait before going on the air, someone piped up, "I would like to take the two minutes to say a prayer for the Democratic Party."

President Truman did virtually all the talking at the Cabinet meeting and finished in less than 15 minutes. He asked his Cabinet to go to work on a future program which would put campaign promises into action. He said:

"I want you fellows to get your programs in shape for discussion immediately, because we've got to present them to Congress when it reconvenes."

Significantly the President gave no hint of firing anyone from the Cabinet. He talked about his long-range program as if everyone present would take part. Only Secretary of State Marshall, now in Paris, did not attend. The man with the least to say was Dewey's friend, Secretary of Defense Forrestal, who didn't let out a peep.

Changes Discussed

Truman advisers were discussing changes in the State Department. Donald Dawson of the White House staff remarked that Averell Harriman had been suggested as Secretary of State.

Remarked Clark Clifford: "One Union Pacific man in four years is enough."

Pearson's Cat

Now that the election is over and we can worry about other things, I am reminded that this is national cat week, and that, thanks to my friend, Bascom Timmons, I am chairman of national cat week.

Behind that shrewd political visage of his, Mr. Timmons has a tender heart and a fondness for cats. He promoted national cat week last year, and, without consulting me in advance, got me appointed chairman for 1948.

Perhaps I should admit, however, that it was not so much Bascom, but my cat Cinder that got me into this.

Cinder sits on my desk when I am writing a column and acts as unofficial censor. As far as I know, she cannot read, but she has uncanny instinct. For when I heave a brickbat in the direction of Bascom's boss, Jesse Jones, Cinder purrs with pleasure. But if I want to start writing anything critical about her friend, Harry Truman, she stages a sitdown strike on the paper and won't move until I pry her loose.

While I realize that some people don't like cats, I would like to call their attention to the fact that the No. 1 enemy of our grain crop is rats. If the rats in our farm areas were eliminated, enough grain could be saved to feed all the people who starve in China.

Canadian Air Arsenal

The Joint Chiefs of Staff, in cooperation with the British, have decided to make Canada the arsenal of the British air forces. Factories will be set up in Canada shortly to turn out jet bombers and transports plus a special Arctic jet fighter.

American aircraft companies have agreed to provide their technical "know-how" and help supervise production. Britain's famous jet fighters will still be made in England, though later transferred in part to Canadian factories. As the first step in putting this plan into operation, Fairchild Aircraft will permit its noted transport, known as the workhorse of the airways, to be manufactured in Canada under a special licensing system.

The United States Army and Air Forces enthusiastically approved of the idea for two reasons: (1) It will disperse the highly vulnerable British aircraft industry; and (2) boost production of fighters and bombers in the Western Hemisphere.

French Commie Crisis

The American Embassy this week quashed a secret plan to bring Communists into the French government.

French Socialist leaders had quietly suggested the move as one way of stopping the Communist-led coal strikes now threatening French recovery. But American Ambassador Jefferson Caffery got wind of the deal, went to see Foreign Minister Schuman and solemnly warned him every nickel in Marshall Plan help would be shut off if this happened.

Schuman, who was against the idea anyway, agreed to talk to his colleagues. Using the threat of American disapproval as a weapon, Schuman succeeded in convincing French politicians to drop the whole idea—at least for the time being.

However, the American Embassy fears an attempt to revive the plan later, especially if the Communists continue to order strikes in vital French industries.
